P R E F A C E .

This book had its origin in the desire of the compiler to know something of his own family history. The purpose of compiling it was formed in boyhood, after his father's death ; and the first crude notes which he committed to paper, containing the facts which had been treasured up in his mother's very retentive memory, are yet preserved. The occasion of meeting with any aged relative was always improved to add something to the information already secured, and the swelling bulk of the carefully kept " notes," when further interlineations and additions seemed inadmissible, made repeatedly necessary the task of transcribing and re arranging them, each time in a new and larger volume. The series of books which have been thus laboriously filled finds an end in the volume which is now presented.

The family name, common and widely disseminated as it is known to be now, was, in the early days of this enterprise, rarely met with and scarcely known outside of a few nearly related families. It was natural to suppose that all of the name, at least in this country, must be descended from a common ancestor, discoverable by genealogical researches. How far this early belief was from the truth, this collection of records will bear but partial evidence.

Records, more or less nearly complete, of a large number of families, the descendants of different American ancestors, not known to be otherwise connected than by identity of family name, are here presented. These are generally classified according to the states in which the ancestors first settled or chiefly resided. Of some families, believed to be quite considerable in point of numbers, records are almost entirely wanting. Greater fullness and accuracy would gladly have been secured, but it was impossible to publish information which those who were applied to for it, failed, for various reasons, to furnish.

To such as have kindly responded to his inquiries, the compiler would tender his grateful acknowledgments.

EXPLANATION.

The plan adopted in the arrangement of the following records differs from that of any similar work known to the compiler as well as from any system recommended by either of the Genealogical Societies. It has seemed to the compiler to be convenient and reasonably simple, and for these reasons, as well as because of the difficulty of recasting these records to conform them to any other plan, it is retained. By means of the marginal numbering, merely, the inquirer may readily trace the lineage of any individual of a family either in the ascending or descending line, and the necessity of the insertion of figures in parenthesis for purposes of reference is avoided; thus dispensing with what seems usually a complicated and difficult feature of publications of this character.

The compiler's plans will be found to differ from those of most genealogists, also, in the fact that he has paid more attention to the descendants of female children than is common, often tracing them through several generations, and under various changes of names. In England, where the law of primogeniture prevails, genealogies have little regard except for the descendants of the eldest male child in each generation. In this country it has been common to preserve the record of the descendants of all the male children, but to disregard those of the female. Latterly a better fashion has been introduced of recording the descendants of all the children, though naturally the difficulty of tracing the descendants of female children, in consequence of changes of name, prevents the extending of such records in most cases as far as those of the descendants in the male lines. This feature will be noticed more especially in two of the most extended of the records which follow, viz. those commencing respectively at pages 21 and 411.

In another respect the plan of the compiler differs from that pursued in most works of this nature, in the fact that he has attempted to give, by means of copious foot notes, the genealogical history of those who have come into the Family, or rather various Families, by marriage. Thus, where the plan has been successfully carried out, the lineage of any one ranking as a descendant of the ancestor first named may be traced back on both sides — in the case of the parent, whether father or mother, who was also a descendant, by means of the marginal numbers, and in the case of the other parent, by means of the foot notes. It seems to the compiler that a study of the ancestral qualities on both sides, and equally on one side with the other, is indispensable in the case of every one who would obey the injunction, Know Thyself.

It has been attempted, also, herein, to render the record of each single family or household complete in itself, to the extent of presenting the history of the parents as fully as practicable, and of the children sufficiently to indicate their names, dates and places of births and deaths, whether married or single, and, if living, generally the place of residence. If a child dies unmarried, the biographical sketch of same, if any, is usually introduced in this connection; if the child marries, the facts, beyond those of birth, marriage, and death, or place of residence, are reserved to be stated in connection with the re-appearance of the name as that of the head of a family. In such case all these facts are restated, and the biographical sketch receives such amplification as the circumstances may warrant. Though thus involving the necessity of a repetition of certain facts, the very desirable object is accomplished of presenting the family group — the single household — before the eye, upon a single page, or as concisely as practicable, yet with all the facts essential to show what has been its history as to numbers and members, ages, marriages and locality.

In these records two columns of marginal numbers are used. The left-hand figures are intended to indicate the particular generation to which each individual belongs, and in the right-hand column the members of each generation are separately numbered in consecutive order. The head of the family, founder, first known ancestor or original emigrant, receives, however, merely the number one (1), which indicates that, for the purposes of this work, he is regarded as alone of the first generation. His children are numbered 2-1, 2-2, 2-3, etc., which indicates that they are of the second generation, and the first, second, third, etc., of that generation in chronological order. The children of such of these as become heads of families are numbered 3-1, 3-2, 3-3, etc., the numbering in the right-hand column being consecutive as to all the individuals of that generation. The children of those who were of the third generation receive the numbers 4-1, 4-2, 4-3, etc., consecutively through the entire generation, and the same plan is continued through all the generations which follow. This plan does not admit of numbering the children of each separate household in chronological order, as is done in most similar works. In general, however, this special numbering is more ornamental than useful—the number of children in any given family being easily ascertained at a glance—and as the separate chronological numbering would involve the necessity of a third column of figures, it is dispensed with.

The numbers attached to the names of HEADS OF FAMILIES are in larger type than those which stand against the names of children.

In the records of each family let the following particulars be noticed :

The name of the father is printed in CAPITALS.

The maiden name of the mother is in italics.

The letter m. placed after a son's name, indicates that he has married, and that the record of his family is to be looked for further on.

If a daughter has married, the name acquired by marriage is placed in CAPITALS after her own, thus also indicating that the record of her family is to be looked for forward.

To find the son's or daughter's family record, notice the numbers opposite his or her name, and look forward to where they appear in larger type opposite the same name introduced as that of the head of a family. In this method any particular line of descent may be followed throughout the work.

To trace back the line of an individual's ancestors, find (by the proper index) where his name appears in the record, notice the figures opposite the name of his father or mother, refer back to where the same figures appear in smaller type opposite the name of a child; notice again the numbers opposite the name of the parent there mentioned, and refer back as before. This method, repeated, will bring the enquirer back to the original ancestor.

OF THE NAME.

The desire to know something of the origin, significance and history of one's name is no mean or idle curiosity.

All names are said — and doubtless in some sense truly — to have been originally significant ; yet their signification, in many cases, can have been but slight or fanciful, and cannot always have been considered in their selection or bestowal.

The sources from which names have been derived are many. These include manifold forms of human pursuits, almost all varieties of bodily and mental characteristics, and a multitude of localities, events and objects in nature.

Names, thus variously derived, have changed with languages and customs, and have, in process of time, undergone such modifications and corruptions that, in many instances, as we are assured by diligent students, the originals cannot be traced.

However significant and appropriate they may have been originally, names which have descended through several generations are likely to have lost their special fitness to those who bear them ; and as we daily meet with individuals bearing names descriptive of bodily peculiarities the opposite of those which they possess, so it is common to find like disagreements between the names of persons and their mental or moral qualities. We may, therefore, well conclude with Camden,¹ that “no name whatever is to be disliked in respect either of originall or of signification ; for neither the good names doe disgrace the bad, neither do evil names disgrace the good. If names are to be accounted good or bad, in all countries both good and bad have been of the same surnames, which, as they participate one with the other in glory, so sometimes in shame Time hath confused and intermingled all.”

Surnames (over names, for so they were originally written), as now used, and transmitted to succeeding generations, are of modern invention. At the beginning of the Christian era, and for many centuries after, they were unknown; for although surnames were used by the Romans to some extent, they had not, among them, the inheritable quality by which they are now distinguished. The early converts to Christianity in Europe, in laying aside their Pagan names, received such as were conferred upon them by the missionaries who instructed and baptized them — names derived from the Scriptures or from church history. Their example was followed by others, until the ancient Pagan names were almost universally supplanted. With a few exceptions, a single name sufficed for each person, and in some cases it is said that a whole company would be baptized by the same name to save trouble. Thus such names as John, James, Matthew, David, Mark, Luke, Peter, Joseph and the like, became extremely common. Then came surnames by way of distinction: among the higher classes at first, finally among all. These were formed by adding the name of the parent to the personal name, or by adding some name suggested by anything peculiar to the person, his residence, condition or estate. Camden tells us that surnames began to be settled or hereditary in France about the year 1000, and in England about the date of the Conquest (1066) or a little before; also, that the Scots claim a like or even greater antiquity for their surnames, although he doubts if any have descended to posterity of a date earlier than the Conquest. In Ireland and Wales surnames were not adopted until long after this time, but were in process of introduction in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. In all Great Britain they remained irregular and unfixed among the common people throughout a great portion of the middle ages. After the Reformation the introduction of parish registers of births, marriages and deaths in England, greatly contributed towards giving them permanence.

As well before as after the introduction of hereditary surnames, the name of the father was used as a surname by the child — either with a prefix denoting son, as Fitz (Norman), Ap (Welsh), Mac (Irish), or with the addition of son (English), or s merely, which is Welsh. The Scotch used both the Irish and English forms.¹ Thus, instead of John the son of John, or John John's son, the name became, by a slight abbreviation, John Johnson, or the Welsh Johns, and from this Jones; and these latter came finally to be transmitted as family names. Thus, also, were formed the names of Davidson or Davids, instead of the son of David, or David's son; Matthewson or Matthews, instead of Matthew's son, and so on; and these, with like names, constitute a class of surnames of the most obvious origin. The diminutives or nicknames of these same originals furnish other forms of surnames. The son of one whose name was Robert, but nicknamed Rob, might be called Rob's son or Robson; the son of Walter, nicknamed Wat, Watson; and thus, by various forms of prefixes and suffixes to the same Christian or baptismal name, and its several nicknames and diminutives, a considerable variety of surnames may have been formed from the same original. McWilliams, Williamson, Willson, Wills, and no less than twenty-five other surnames are formed by Lower² from the name of William. The name of David³ affords, according to the same author, a variety of surnames almost as great and equally as diverse, and among these is reckoned by Camden, Arthur,⁴ Lower, and other authors, the name of DAWSON. "Though of ancient standing in Wales," says Lower, "this Christian name scarcely appears in England before the Conquest. Modified in various forms, it has since produced many family names, some of which are among the commonest in use, as Davids, Davidson, Davidge; Davey, Davy, Davie; Davics, Davis, Davison. From Daw,⁵ the nickname, come Daws, Dawes, DAWSON, Dawkins⁶, Dawkes, Dawkinson; and from another form of the nickname, according to Camden, we get Day, Dayes, Days, Dakin." Of Dow, he remarks that it is "probably a corruption of the Gaelic Dbu—i.e. black; but dow or doe, the Scottish for dove or pigeon, may be the origin. It also appears to have been a personal name, and to have given rise to Dowson, Dowse, Dowsing and Dowsett." "Dossou," he says, is "the same as DOWSON"; but it will be seen hereafter that both these names, as well as Dorson, Dolson and Dauson, are sometimes at least merely corruptions, or perhaps only misprints, of the name DAWSON.

⁶ The nickname Daw, and diminutive die, or little.

Truly, if, as Lower tells us, we are descendants of some early worthy named, and haply baptized, DAVID, and if from the same source comes that great array of families which he enumerates, the name of our kindred must be legion! But if the name is thus derived, is it to be supposed that we are all descended from one original? Why not many different stocks from as many originals so named? It is evident that there may have been numerous founders of the name. So, also, of those surnames which were derived either from some peculiarity in the characters or the persons of the originals, or were suggested by occupation or place of residence—as, for instance, the Smiths, the Clarks, the Farmers—the Browns and Whites—the Hills, Woods and Vales—all of which might originate in a great number of separate parishes, as they doubtless did. "There is," says Whitmore,² "one popular fallacy into which too many of our genealogists have fallen, and that is the supposition that all the bearers of a given name are descended from a common stock." Identity of name, therefore, does not always imply identity of origin. It is, however, the first token of kinship, and as such is not to be lightly esteemed; though the fact that it does not furnish positive evidence of that relation is not to be forgotten.

² From the account of the Anglo-Irish Dawsons which follows in this chapter it will be seen that the name was introduced into Ireland about 1600. It is said to be a fact, however, that some Irish families who are now known in English as Dawsons are really sprung from septs of much more ancient date. During the time when the Penal Laws against Irishmen and Catholics were in force, it was not unusual for members of the prescribed race and creed to adopt such English surnames as came near to their own either in significance or sound. Thus Dawson is said to be a rather frequent surname of the very Gaelic county of Donegal, for families who call themselves in their vernacular either O'Dorrian or MacDavett. Both these names belong to different and very ancient septs. No reason whatever appears why an O'Dorrian should call himself Dawson, in English, though it is asserted such is the case; but Dawson is an exactly literal translation of Mac Daibhidh (Mac Davett or Mac Devitt), and the facts stated are interesting in connection with the suggestion of a multiplicity of original or distinct founders of the family name. (It may be here mentioned, also, that the name is borne by sundry "American citizens of African descent," former slaves, who adopted their name after that of their late masters on being emancipated. A Mr. Dawson is a colored member of the Arkansas state senate, Feb. 1873; and Lawrence Dawson, colored, was recently proposed as a candidate for Holy Orders in the Episcopal Church of South Carolina.)

In regard to the termination "son," which belongs to our name in common with a great number of English, Scotch and other surnames, Lower remarks that "a popular but very erroneous notion prevails that it indicates a Danish extraction." In fact, no evidence as to race can be deduced from it.

According to Burke¹ and other writers on the British Peerage, the founder of the DAWSON family in England was Sir Marmaduke D'Ossone (Marmaduke of Ossone). He was one of the Norman noblemen who accompanied William the Conqueror into England in 1066, and for services rendered in battle is said to have received a grant of an estate from his successful leader, and to have remained in England during the rest of his life. It is said that the original seat of the family was in the county of York. The descendants of Sir Marmaduke intermarried with many ancient and some noble families, and the name, by an easy process, became changed, Anglicised, to DAWSON. Several of the family have been elevated to the British Peerage, and the books of heraldry mention no less than fifteen coats of arms belonging to individuals and families of this name. These are described in the Encyclopedia of Heraldry (Burke, London, 1844), in the following order: 1. That of the Earl of Portarlington, whose motto was as noble as his rank: Vite via virtus—Virtue is the way of life; 2. Viscount Cremorne: motto, Toujours propice—Always propitious; 3. Family of Penrith, county of Cumberland, 1761; 4. Of Ireland and London; 5. Thomas Dawson, Esq., Grasmere, county Westmoreland; 6. James Dawson, Esq., Sutterby, county Lincoln, 1664; 7. cashire, President of Liverpool Medical Institution, etc, of the same family as the Dawsons of Sutterby: motto, Deeds, not words; 8. Castle Dawson, county Londonderry, as borne by Rt. Hon. Geo. Robert Dawson, descended from Thomas Dawson, Esq., who purchased Castle Dawson in 1663,¹ and was of a Westmoreland family; 9. London; 10. Newcastle;² 11. Spaldington, county of York; 12. Wharton, county of Lancaster; 13. Yorkshire; 14. Dawson; 15. Dawson. (The localities of the two last named families not stated).

The pedigree of the late Earl of Portarlington, (John Dawson) an Irish peer, was, according to Burke, as follows: From Sir Marmaduke D'Ossone lineally sprang (being the twentieth in descent), Richard Dawson, of Spaldington, in the county of York, who married Anne, daughter of Sir Henry Lowther, Knight, of Westmoreland county. "From this marriage descended William Dawson, Esq., the first member of the family whom we find in Ireland, a collector of the revenue for the counties of Down and Antrim, and the port of Carrickfergus, in the reign of Charles the Second.³ His son, "Ephraim Dawson, Esq., having purchased the Portarlington and other estates in the Queen's county, took up his residence there, and represented the same in Parliament in the reigns of George the First and George the Second." His son, William Henry Dawson, Esq., also M. P. for Queen's county, was made Baron Dawson, 1770, Viscount Carlow, 1776; and was succeeded by his son John, second Viscount, made Earl of Portarlington, 1785, in whose family the title and estates remain. The pedigree of this Peer as given by Stockdale,⁴ differs considerably from the above, but he also states that the family is of Norman extraction, and claims a lineal descent from Sir Marmaduke D'Ossone. The descent is traced from Alexander Dawson, of Spaldington, county of York, 1584.

² The representation of dawos in this coat of arms suggests the possibility of the name having originated, in one family, at least, from some fancied resemblance in the founder of it to this bird. Perhaps he was a boisterous talker:

"The loud daw, his throat displaying, draws

The whole assembly of his fellow dawes."

But possibly the name may have suggested the device.

⁴ STOCKDALE'S Peerage of the United Kingdom.

Of another Irish peer, Viscount Cremorne, (Thomas Dawson, created Baron Dartry), of Dawson Grove, in the county of Monaghan, grandson of Walter Dawson, who died in 1718, it is stated by Stockdale that his family, which was originally of Yorkshire, settled in Ireland in the reign of James the Second.¹ But according to Burke's Peerage, the ancestor of this peer in Ireland was Thomas Dawson, who removed from York (Westmoreland ?) towards the close of the reign of Queen Elizabeth,² and became in the succeeding reign³ a burgess of Armagh. The viscounty became extinct in 1813, but the barony of Cremorne descended to Richard Thomas Dawson, of Castle Dawson, Monaghan, grand-nephew of the above-named viscount. It may be noted in passing that the second wife of Viscount Cremorne was Philadelphia Hannah Freame, of Philadelphia, a grand-daughter of William Penn.⁴ One of the sons of Walter Dawson, above-named, was Richard Dawson, an eminent banker in Dublin, 1723-1776, and other members of the family, being excluded from succession to their ancestors' titles and estates through the operation of the law of primogeniture, entered the army or navy, or took holy orders; while the same law which forced them into these professions must have carried their de-

² She died in 1603. In Burke's Genealogical and Heraldic Dictionary of the Landed Gentry of Great Britain and Ireland (1868) it is stated that the family was long seated at Acornbank, in the parish of Sowerby, Westmoreland, and became established in Ireland at the opening of the 17th century, when Thomas and Robert Dawson, sons of Christopher Dawson, Esq., of Acornbank, settled in that kingdom. The younger of the two, Dr. Robert Dawson, was consecrated Bishop of Clonfert in 1627; the elder, Thomas Dawson, went to Ireland in 1601, from Temple Sowerby, Westmoreland, and purchased the lands of Castle Dawson, 1633. By another line of descent from him, we have the lineage of Robert Peel Dawson, Esq., M.P. from Londonderry, 1868, as follows: 1. Thomas Dawson, above named. 2. His son Thomas Dawson, commissary of the musters of the army in Ireland, died 1683. 3. His son, Thomas Dawson Esq., of Castle Dawson, M. P. for Antrim. 4. His brother and successor, Joshua Dawson, Esq., of same, M.P. for Londonderry, one of the barons of the Exchequer, 1742. 5. His nephew and successor, Arthur Dawson, Esq., of same, M.P., died 1822. 6. His son, Rt. Hon. Geo. scendants back into the common walks of life. The descendants of these, as well as of the minor branches of the Earl of Portarlington's family, must be numerous. There are or have been other families of our name in Great Britain possessing hereditary titles, but it will not serve any useful purpose in this connection to inquire further into their origin or history. The above facts have been referred to simply as furnishing data by which to trace the rise and spread of the family name, and without any intention on the part of the compiler hereof of claiming connection for any American Dawsons with the noted families of our name in Great Britain. Among the younger branches of those families, constituting the gentry of the country,¹ very many cases must have occurred where individuals became tradesmen and yeomen, losing all recollection of their connection, not even preserving the family arms or other memorials. It is not improbable that some of this class may have emigrated to this country. "None are so apt to seek foreign shores as those deprived by fortune of the position of their ancestors;" but where there is no evidence from records or other contemporary writings of descent from illustrious families, it will be most reasonable to conclude that no such relationship exists.

That the name, however it may have originated, is an ancient and highly respectable one, no other evidence need be adduced than the foregoing. Of other English bearers of it may be mentioned John Dawson, of the county of Lancaster, who went a pilgrim from England to Rome in 1504;¹ also two early printers, John Dawson, of London, 1639, in which year he printed (and sold, for the printers of those days corresponded to our modern publishers) a work entitled New England's Prospect, esteemed a rare and valuable book now; and Thomas Dawson, of London, 1652, who printed in that year another important work relating to America, entitled Divers Voyages touching the Discovery of America and the Islands adjacent unto the same, etc. (Perhaps it was the same Thomas Dawson, possibly another, who, in 1613, then "dwelling near The Three Cranes in the Finetree," London, printed "The Excellency of Good Women. The honor and estimation that belongeth unto them"). Henry Dawson, who died in 1653, was, in that year, the first representative of the county of Durham in the House of Commons.² This was the Parliament called "Barebone's," and prepared the way for the Protectorate. The name of the member for Durham has sometimes been printed dubiously "Davison,"³ but all doubt as to the true name has been removed by the discovery of a monumental inscription upon a tablet affixed to the northern wall of the church of St. Mary Abbots, Kensington.⁴ "It has been said that fame is but a name. It was not even that, hitherto, with the first member for the county of Durham; for Henry Dawson had to share his seat with a possible Davison.¹ But the name is at last established; and the member is identified with a mayor of Newcastle." He was deputy-mayor of that city, 1646-47, and mayor 1652-53, dying during his incumbency of the office. Two other Dawsons held the same office—William, 1649-50, and George, 1650-51, and a second time 1657, besides completing Henry's year of office in the borough, from his death, in August, to the appointment of a new mayor in October, 1653. The Dawsons who thus held the office of mayor five times between the siege of Newcastle and the restoration, "were evidently of the commonwealth party."² Ambrose Dawson,³ a native of Yorkshire, became an eminent physician in London, and died in 1794, aged 88; and his son, Pudsey Dawson, Esq.,⁴ who died in 1816, aged 64, was mayor of Liverpool, and founder of a school there for the indigent blind. Peter Dawson was vicar of Cumberland, Surrey, England, from 1618 to 1643. He was also rector of Carshalton. John Dawson, a collector of the customs at Yarmouth (Norfolk county, England), died there in 1679, aged 56. He was a native of Loughborough, to which town he bequeathed £100, and the same sum to the corporation of Yarmouth, for the payment of £5 yearly "for teaching poor children arithmetic and the mathematics."⁵ Another John Dawson was a noted English mathematician and teacher of mathematics, 1734-1820.

³ He was son of William Dawson, Esq., of Landcliffe Hall, Yorkshire, a justice of the peace for that county, and a personal friend of Sir Isaac Newton, who is said to have paid him frequent visits. From him also descend the Dawsons of St. Leonard's Hill, county Berks. His father was Christopher, eldest son of Joseph, eldest son of Christopher Dawson, Esq., who was of the parish of Arncliffe, in Yorkshire, about 1600.

Ripon, Yorkshire (probably before 1750), were celebrated in a neat epitaph, as follows :

“ His Nature mild, his Mind devout,
His Wealth the Poor well fed :
Tho' dead, he lives in Spite of Death,
And Grave, his fatal Bed ;
Whom lately Sheriff, Merchant free, York's wealthy City had ;
And Farmer chief of Rippon church,
Now Rippon Mould hath clad.”

Within the recollection of many persons now living was a celebrated Wesleyan Methodist preacher in England named William Dawson, a very entertaining sketch of whom may be seen in Pulpit Portraits, by John Ross Dix. He was better known as the Yorkshire farmer — a sturdy, rough man, wholly unprofessional in appearance, but gifted with eloquence so remarkable, such a fertile imagination and power of language, and endowed with such fervent piety and untiring zeal, that thousands were attracted to his ministrations from miles around, and were moved in a most unwonted manner by his wonderful oratory.² George Dawson, another noted English divine, was a native of the parish of St. Pancras (1821) where his father conducted an extensive academy. He was graduated at the University in Glasgow, and has since been distinguished as an Independent minister at Birmingham, but has been more widely known as a literary lecturer, in which capacity he attained the highest popularity. And lie lamented in this Tomb.”

[Ewall, Surry, England, 1755.]

1812, at an advanced age, was the author of a volume of Sermons on the Divinity of Christ, 1765, Free Thoughts on the Subject of a further Reformation of the Church of England, 1771, a Dictionary of the English Language, 1806, and other works. Of other early English authors the compiler has seen the names of Thomas, author of The Good Housewife's Jewell, 1596-7; John, "minister of the word of God, at Mayden-head, in Berkshire, sometimes of Christ Church in the University of Oxford,"¹ Eighteen choice sermons preached upon the Incarnation and Nativity of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, posthumously printed, at London, 1642; George, a Treatise on the Origin of Laws, 1694; John, author of a Greek and English Lexicon, 1709; Thomas, Memoirs of St. George, the English Patron, and of the Order of the Garter, 1714; William, author of The Atheist, a Philosophical Poem, 1723;² Thomas, author of sundry dissertations on Biblical subjects, 1727; Ambrose, M.D. and Thomas, M.D., authors of professional treatises, 1744-82; Rev. Abraham, a Biblical translator, 1763-86; and others. Since 1800, the name, although not very prominent in literature, has afforded too many authors for enumeration here.

It may be safely asserted that there is no English speaking country or colony where the name is not found, and the commercial enterprise and religious zeal of individuals have carried it far beyond these limits—into nearly all lands, indeed, Christian and heathen.³

³ The names of many Dawsons in Foreign parts have been seen by the compiler, but not preserved. The following may be noted: Dr. J. Dawson and wife were American Baptist Missionaries at Avah, Burmah, in 1850; J. Dawson, Gold Coast, Africa, 1849, was a Life Member of the British and Foreign Bible Society; Colwell, Dawson & Co., merchants, 1869, at Callao, Peru; R. Dawson, Vice Commercial agent of the U. S., 1871, at Ceylon, India; Geo. B. Dawson, U. S. Vice Consul, Cork, Ireland. The Commercial Directory of London, 1867, contains the names of 86 Dawsons, and the Coast Directory of that year the addresses of 38 persons of the same name. The Directory of Liverpool, England, for 1871, contains the addresses of 105 persons of the name, that of Glasgow, 16, and that of Edinburgh some half dozen only. The name is much more common in England than in Scotland, although by no means rare there.

The name of Dawson is borne by an important river in East Australia, by a lake in Canada,¹ by an island in the Pacific,² by a street and a place in London, a street in Dublin,³ by several counties,⁴ and numerous post-offices⁵ in the United States; and as a personal name is not always a surname, being not unfrequently found as another part of the individual cognomen.⁶

NEW ENGLAND:

NOTES RELATING TO EARLY SETTLERS, AND RECORDS OF SEVERAL FAMILIES OF NEW ENGLAND ORIGIN.

EARLY MENTION.

Perhaps the first of the name in New England was HENRY DAWSON, of Boston, admitted a freeman 2 June, 1641,¹ having joined the church on the 16th of May preceding, to qualify him for admission as freeman.² In the same year in which he was admitted freeman, a will was executed at Roxbury, and "Goodman Dawson" received a small bequest.³ This may have been N. DAWSON, of Charlestown, 1648, in which year Robert Saltonstall conveyed to him by deed a house in Windsor, Conn.⁴

¹ In the list of freemen of this date the name is spelled DAUSON. — N. E. Hist. & Gen. Reg., vol. 11, p. 188; Farmer's Genealogical Register.

⁴ Suffolk deeds, Boston, Mass., 22d 9th Mo., 1648. "House in Windsor, Conn., formerly of Francis Stiles, of Seabrook, now in occupancy of Thomas Gilbert and John Bancroft." But the "N. Dawson" here mentioned may be the same resident of Charlestown who is called Nicholas Davison by Savage. Another "possible Davison" THOMAS DAWSON, of Morley, county York, England, had certain "land and housing" in Windsor, 1697. — Trumbull's Colonial Records of Conn., vol. 14, 206.

The name of HENRY DAWSON occurs in "A list of Capt. William Turner's men, as they came from Boston, taken at Medfield," Feb. 1675-6,¹ and on Conn. river, April, 1676, under Capt. Pierce.² This could hardly have been the freeman of 1641, because of age; yet the same Capt. Turner was a freeman of Dorchester, 1643. The name again occurs in a list of Boston freemen, 8 May, 1678;³ at which time it appears he had two children;⁴ and HENRY DAWSON was a freeman of Boston, 15 May, 1690,⁵ where he had baptized at the Second church, Thomas, 22 Nov., 1691; James, 9 Feb., 1695-6; Hannah, 20 March, 1698; Elizabeth, 31 March, 1700.⁶ JAMES DAWSON (probably the same who was baptized 1695-6), had baptized at this church, Mary, Nov. 1, 1719; Samuel, Feb. 16, 1723-4; Henry, April 2, 1727.⁷ MARY DAWSON was admitted a member of the Second church Jan. 5, 1728-9, and had baptized Elizabeth, March 14, 1731; Abigail, March 10, 1734; Abigail, Feb. 1, 1735-6.⁸ There was also baptized in the New Brick church, Boston, BENJAMIN DAWSON, Feb. 22, 1740-1; Hannah, Oct. 17, 1742.⁹

There was a member of the Society of Friends, named GEORGE DAWSON, at Boston, July, 1677.¹⁰ It was during the time of the Quaker persecution. In this month one Margaret

Turner, that he had command on the upper waters of the Conn. river; on the 18th May, (1641) surprised the Indians at the place where the falls have since borne his name, giving them a signal defeat; but on the return was surrounded at Green river, and the next day after the Falls fight, was killed, with eighteen of his men.

Brewster, a Quaker, for "making a horrible disturbance on the Lord's day," was "whipped at a cart's tail up and down the town, with twenty lashes." On the same day that Margaret and her companions were apprehended, three other women and eleven men, one of whom was George Dawson, were taken up at a Quaker meeting, and all but two of them (Miles Foster and Thomas Scott, whose fines were paid by some person, against their wishes), were publicly whipped.¹ At the next meeting several of the same company (including GEORGE DANSON, as printed, though undoubtedly written DAUSON), were again arrested and whipped.² The same George Danson (Dauson) was one of three "loaf bread bakers" in Boston, who petitioned the general court, Oct. 29, 1679,³ for relief from the "intolerable burdens" which they alleged were imposed upon them "by reason of y^e defect of y^e assize given in y^e law." They observed that their calling was a lawful one, to learn which they had "served long and hard apprenticeships," and added, "wee conceive wee have a just right to live by itt."⁴

⁴ Probably the same George Dauson (misprinted Danson) removed to Barnstable within a year or two after the date of this petition; one of this name was in possession of the house and land comprising the estate of Nicholas Davis, deceased, of Barnstable, seized by the "chief marshal" of the colony, by order of the court, as per return made 7 July, 1681.—Plymouth Colony Records, vol. 6. One of this name, had been, also, prior to 14 May, 1684, a petitioner, with others, for certain lands which they claimed to have purchased from Wampas, an Indian. The court made answer at this time that it knew not "of any land that Wampas, Indian, had any true or legal right to, he being no Sachem, but a common person; if the persons can find any lande that was his, and withheld from them, the law is open where they may obtayne their right, if they can make any such appear."—Plymouth Colony Records, vol. 5, 442. In his will, 1692, his trade (that of a baker) is stated, and he is again described as "of Boston." The will mentions his w. Elizabeth, and gr. chn. George, Charles and Elizabeth Crossweight. A representation of his seal is to be found in the Heraldic Journal, vol. II, p. 181. Art: Suffolk Wills. He obtained, about 1686, a grant of 200 acres of land at Worcester, and it would seem that he built a house there, and occupied it (either by himself or some representative) for three years.—Lincoln's History of Worcester, 36, 37.

In a list of early settlers of Essex and Old Norfolk, Mass.,¹ occurs the name of MARGARET DAWSON, relict of DANIEL, late of Ipswich, 1693.²

It appears that there were persons of the name at Hull, Mass., about 1750-60; one MARY DAWSON having become the second wife of Joseph Spear, a lighterman of that place, some time after 1743;³ and one JOSEPH DOSSON having been listed as one of a foot company of militia in the town of Hull, under command of John Gould, jun., as appears by a list "taken at Weymouth, March 22, 1759."⁴

JOHN DAWSON, of Salem, was taken a prisoner and carried to Canada, at the surrender of Fort William Henry, in 1757;⁵ and TIMOTHY DAWSON was a school teacher at Salem in 1781.⁶

At Marlborough, Mass., WILLIAM DAWSON, by wife Sophia, had Darius, born March 8, 1780.⁷ Of him or his family nothing more has been learned, nor is it known whence any of the persons above mentioned came to this country. "It is not common to learn that interesting fact concerning more than one in ten of our early settlers."⁸ such as relate to the persons and families below mentioned, whose records follow in this work in the order named :

I. ROBERT DAWSON, a resident at East Haven, 1682-3, and probably in or near there some years earlier. He had two sons, whose descendants are very numerous.

II. THOMAS DAWSON, who, in a deed to his son Job, describes himself as "late of Newport in the province of Road Island," was at New Haven, 1721-2.

III. JOHN DAWSON, an Englishman, who had deserted the British service in this country towards the close of the war of the revolution, and married at Philadelphia, removed shortly after to Connecticut, and settled at Monroe, in Fairfield county. His descendants are also quite numerous.

IV. PETER DAWSON, a native of Linlithgow, near Edinburgh, Scotland, emigrated thence about 1800, and settled in Barnet, Caledonia county, Vermont. He had three sons and six daughters, some of whom had issue.

Of many other families of the name originally established in this country, in other than the New England States, such information is given in the following pages, as the compiler hereof, after diligent efforts, (by means of an extensive correspondence and otherwise), has been able to obtain.¹

Concerning the many imperfections in the records which follow he craves the indulgent judgment of his readers. Those alone who have had some experience in attempting the compilation of records of this nature, can appreciate the difficulties which beset the work.

FAMILY OF ROBERT DAWSON,

OF EAST HAVEN, CONN., 1682-1718.

The township of East Haven, in Connecticut, forms a part of New Haven county, and consists of a tract of land about seven miles long from north to south, and from two to three or four miles wide, lying between the townships of Branford and North Branford on the east, and New Haven township and harbor on the west. On the north it is bounded by the township of North Haven, and on the south by Long Island sound. The population is largely agricultural.

The central portion of the township is divided from Branford by a beautiful sheet of water called Saltonstall lake (formerly locally known as the pond) which, besides being the scene in recent times of gay regattas of the college students from New Haven, is the source from which that city is principally supplied with ice. The lake is about three miles in length, but quite narrow, being nowhere, perhaps, more than one-third of a mile in width. The East Haven, or west, shore of the lake consists of a high rocky ridge, formerly known as the Pond Rock or Pond Rocks, and which, though "the pond" has now a nobler designation, is still called by its ancient name. On the northwesterly side of the lake and rock (being in the northerly part of the township) is a fertile plain, on some portion of which it is supposed that an Indian sagamore named Foxon had his residence at an early day. The plain was called Foxon's Farms from this circumstance, and the farms there lying are still so designated. The name is on record of the date of 1644.¹ Through this plain, and coursing thence along the foot of the rock in a southwesterly direction, flows a small stream called Stoney river, which, turning to the southeast below the rock, flows thence into the sound, forming, in its lower portion, the boundary line between Branford and East Haven.

This township was formerly a part of the ancient colony of New Haven, and was connected with that colony and town, in all its domestic and foreign concerns, about one hundred and forty years. It was in part originally purchased of Momauguin, then sachem of that part of the country, and his counsellors, by Theophilus Eaton, Rev. John Davenport, Thomas Gregson, Edward Hopkins, and other English planters,² on the 24th Nov., 1638. These persons had arrived in Boston the previous year, where they were strongly urged to continue, but came to this wilderness in accordance with their design of founding a new colony, a New Haven for their persecuted brethren of the mother country. To this, their first purchase, they shortly after added another large tract, three miles long north and south, and thirteen miles in breadth; the two tracts costing the purchasers altogether twenty-five coats of English cloth, and a few articles of merchandise of small value.

This was probably the most opulent company of adventurers which had come into New England. Mr. Davenport had been a celebrated minister in the city of London, and Mr. Eaton and Mr. Hopkins had been merchants in that city, possessed great estates, and were men of eminence for their ability and integrity.

Early after their arrival the planters entered into covenant, binding themselves, in all civil and religious concerns, to "be regulated by the rules which the Scriptures held forth to them." The next year they formed their constitution.¹ They were men loving power, their community was small, and their laws, if scriptural, were often severe and arbitrary.

For many years public worship in the colony was attended solely at New Haven, but to the inhabitants on the east side of the Quinipiack,² with great inconvenience, labor and danger. "They were obliged," says the author of the East Haven Register,³ "to leave home early in the morning, travel through the woods on unmade roads, and then cross the ferry, which was often dangerous. During the Indian wars and commotions the women and children, on the sabbath, were collected together at one house in the neighborhood, under the protection of a guard, while some part of the families attended public worship at New Haven. And for many years the men were required by law, under the penalty of a fine, to appear at meeting with their arms ready for battle." It was not until 1680 that the people of East Haven obtained liberty to become a distinct society.⁴ This was greatly to their relief and satisfaction, and they proceeded at once to "invite and settle an orthodox minister amongst them," in accordance with the grant and stipulation of the court.

Their meetings were warned

"By sound of horn
Or beat of drum."⁵

² The Quinipiack river separated East Haven parish from New Haven.

Their dwellings were mostly plain structures of one story, and their means were generally small. They had not the same facilities for education that the people of New Haven enjoyed. They were obliged to endure all the hardships and privations of a frontier life — literally a life in the wilderness — and, particularly of the generation immediately succeeding the first settlers, it must be remarked that their deficiency, even in regard to a common education, was very great. Experience taught them the necessity of paying more attention to the education of their children, and advantage was taken of the earliest opportunity offered for the establishment of schools in the township. The first school appears to have been established in 1707, and was taught by their first minister, the Rev. Mr. Hemingway, then recently graduated from Yale College, and the first from this township who had enjoyed this honor. Prior to this time the people of East Haven had been dependent for educational facilities, of course available to but a limited extent, on the schools established at New Haven. A free school had been opened and taught there as early as 1641.

In the fall of 1655 the General Court of New Haven, which then had jurisdiction over East Haven in civil as well as ecclesiastical affairs, was informed ¹ that there was a purpose "that an Iron Worke should be set up beyond the farmes at Stoney river." Liberty was given for the Worke to go on, and it was accordingly established; being the first of the kind within the present bounds of the state. Branford appears to have been jointly concerned with New Haven in this enterprise, or at least "was treated as having some interest in the Iron Works," pending a neighborly controversy as to the ownership of certain territory adjoining the Furnace pond, the right to which was claimed by both townships. The land was afterwards relinquished by Branford to East Haven, and is referred to in the records as "the half mile." Some of the workmen employed here were probably brought from similar works in Massachusetts ² — others perhaps came direct from English furnaces. The furnace was supplied with bog ore from North Haven. Of so much consequence was this establishment considered that after the union of New Haven with Connecticut a special grant was made (1669) to the people employed in the work to free them from taxes for seven years; yet the population thereby introduced brought in some disorderly elements, requiring the occasional interposition of the civil authority. There was great mortality in the village in the year 1679, and the business was about this time (1679 or '80) relinquished — for what reason cannot now be satisfactorily ascertained. Probably it had not been very profitable, and the loss by death of some of the principal workmen, which happened just then, may have hastened its discontinuance. The Iron Works farm, after one or two changes, passed into the hands of William Rosewell, of Branford, formerly an extensive merchant at New Haven, whose only daughter and heir married Gurdon Saltonstall, afterwards governor of Connecticut, in honor of whom Saltonstall lake was named. In 1681 a grist-mill was set up at the furnace dam, and though at this time some reservations were made in the grant of the dam for the mill, with a view to the possible reestablishment of iron works here, and though some years later (1692) a bloomery furnace was erected on one of the small brooks running into Stoney river, the business never subsequently attained to much importance, and was soon permanently abandoned. Thus the town returned to the quiet pursuits of a farming population. Of the people at the works, thrown out of employment by the discontinuance of the business, it is probable that some, receiving no encouragement to remain, removed to other parts — while others, of the sort better calculated to live in a farming community, and better esteemed by the townspeople, received grants of land, and made their homes permanently in the township.

It is possible that among those who were thus graduated from the Furnace to the Farms, was ROBERT DAWSON,¹ founder of the family whose records are herein given. East Haven had then established, or at least asserted, for itself a semi-independence in civil as well as ecclesiastical affairs (though under a certain bondage to New Haven in township concerns for a hundred years after), and at a village meeting, May 17, 1682, Thomas Pinion, William Roberts, Robert Dawson and William Luddington, propounded for land to be assigned to each of them on Stoney river. Of these persons one, Thomas Pinion, had certainly been engaged at the Iron Works. Luddington's father had died there in 1662, and without doubt he had been employed about the same business. (His daughter subsequently married the eldest son of Robert Dawson).

At the next division of land, which was made in 1683, and was the third in which the first inhabitants of New Haven had participated, Pinion, Dawson, Roberts, Joseph Abbott and James Tailor, being evidently partial to the Stoney river land, and apparently desirous of having their farms constitute adjoining tracts, were, on their own motion, excepted from the regular division — which if made as usual by lot would leave their location subject to chance — and it was accordingly ordered that they should have their land next to that which the town had obtained from Branford, thirty acres each being allotted to the three first named in consideration of their being married men, and twenty each to the others, on condition that each of the five should build on his land a tenantable house within three years. This land was afterwards surveyed to them in a body, and was described as lying “about 30 rods eastward about y^e place where Foxon's wigwam was,” they being left, “for their five p'ticular parts,” after making sufficient allowance for “cartwaies between y^e Pond Rock and their land,” “to lay out and to bound as they will agree upon among themselves.”¹ The grants made by the village to these men were confirmed by a town vote of New Haven, and their land was afterwards referred to in the records as “the five men's land at Foxon's.”

It had been laid out to them by Matthew Moulthrop, whose father had been by appointment conservator of the morals of the people about the Iron Works, and by Sergt. John Potter, who was by trade a blacksmith, and had been concerned in the Iron Works property. He and Pinion were the ones who petitioned the town for the privilege of the bloomary which was built in 1692. Concerning Roberts, Abbott and Tailor, little is known; certainly nothing to discredit the supposition that they were Iron Works men.

Dawson made record of his land 17th March, 1683, it being described as "lying half a mile in length and thirty rods in breadth, east and west, with the river running [through] the middle, and is bounded by Thomas Pinion's on the east [and the] highway on the west."¹ Pinion was thus his nearest neighbor. It is probable that he built and occupied immediately. Dodd makes the following record:

"ROBERT DAWSON settled at Foxon's in 1683. He then had John, born in 1677. After this he married widow Hannah Russell, and had Thomas, 1693."²

Her maiden name is not known. John Russell, her former husband, had been a potter in the furnace at the Iron Works, and died there in 1681.³ His brother Ralph, one of the principal workmen, had died there during the great sickness, two years previously.⁴

In regard to the former wife of Robert Dawson, no information can be obtained. If they were living at the Iron Works—as may be surmised from his having been so curiously connected with the furnace people—it is not unlikely that she may have fallen a victim to the prevailing sickness in 1679, leaving him with one child, John, born 1677, as stated by Dodd. If this was the case, the marriage of Robert Dawson and widow Russell must have occurred before the settlement at Foxon's, he having been a married man at the time the grant of this land was made to him. And this would explain the fact that in this year (1683) his family is "listed" as consisting of six persons. His son John was then about six years of age; the other five were himself and wife, and probably her three children by her former husband.¹

As to the date of birth of Robert Dawson's son Thomas, it is probable that the date above given (1693) is erroneous; for at his death, Jan. 12, 1759, he was said to be 72 yrs. of age,² which would make the date of his birth, 1687.

It has been erroneously supposed that Robert Dawson married, first, Sarah Tuttle,³ daughter of William Tuttle, one of the first settlers of the colony. A copy of the East Haven Register, in the possession of William H. Dawson, Esq., of Westville, Conn., contains a marginal note, supposed to be in the handwriting of the author of that work, which states that Robert Dawson and Sarah Tuttle were married Nov. 17, 1663. The error is referred to by Savage in his Genealogical Dictionary. It appears that she really married John Slawson, of Stamford, Nov. 12, 1663. In the original record,⁴ his Christian name is not given — a very unusual circumstance — and the surname was so illegibly written that it might easily have been mistaken for Dawson. (The initial letter has been over-written S by a modern hand). These circumstances, and the fact that Slawson was not a New Haven or East Haven name, may account for the error by which her name has been connected with that of Robert Dawson.

³ Concerning her there is a curious chapter on record, which, as illustrating the character of those times, is here briefly referred to. All intercourse of society was very formal, and especial pains were taken that there should be no disorderly conduct among "the young men and maidens." At a court held May 1, 1660, Jacobeth Murline (Melyen) and Sarah Tuttle were prosecuted "for setting down on a chest together, his arme about her waiste, and her arme upon his shoulder, or about his necke, and continuing in yt sinfull posture about half an hour, in which time he kyssed her and she kyssed him, as ye witnesses testified." Mr. Tuttle alleged that Jacob had endeavored to steal away his daughter's affections, "but yt Sarah denied, and it did not appear to ye courte." They were sentenced to pay each of them 20s. to the treasurer.—Lambert's History of New Haven. But one half of her fine was subsequently remitted, at her father's request.—N. H. Records, March 4, 1661-2. Jacob Melyen removed to Elizabeth, N. J., where, and in New York, he was a prominent citizen.—Hatfield's History of Elizabeth. There was also a sad and tragical chapter in her history, for thirteen years after she became the wife of John Slawson, and when she was the mother of three little children, she was killed with an ax by her brother Benjamin, who, though probably insane, was executed for it, 13 June, 1677.—Savage's Gen. Dict.—Huntington's History of Stamford.

⁴ New Haven Records of births, marriages, &c.

Whence or when Robert Dawson came to this country is uncertain. Speculation on the subject is of little avail. That he was English or of English parentage is undoubted.¹

The township and parish records afford but scanty information.

In 1683 his name occurs in a catalogue of donors to a fund "for building the minister's house, and fencing the home lot." His contribution was £2.² He had a house to build for himself that year.

The privilege which the inhabitants of East Haven had obtained in 1680 of becoming a distinct society, was understood by them as conveying a larger liberty in local affairs — especially in the disposal of the public lands — than the people at New Haven were willing to sanction. The danger of more serious difficulties with their neighbors appears to have been apprehended, and it may have been questioned whether, in order to avoid controversy, they should not return to their former status. At a meeting of the village, therefore, March 29, 1684, the question

¹ On the Branford Town Records, under date of 14 July, 1680, (nearly two years prior to the date of his appearance as a propounder for land in East Haven), his name occurs as a witness to a deed of William Rosewell and others, agents for and all at that time of the town of Branford, of a parcel of land which they had sold on behalf of the town. The other witness was Katherine Rosewell, wife of the said William Rosewell, and this being the very earliest record of the name of Robert Dawson which has been discovered,* though of slight importance in itself, suggests speculations as to his origin in another direction. Rosewell's wife having signed as witness to the deed in question indicates that the instrument was executed at his house, as would have been natural, he having been the chief agent of the township in the matter. The other most convenient witness would naturally be some person employed about the premises, and (though the circumstances are slight on which to base a theory) it is surmised that Rosewell (who, it will be remembered, was the purchaser of the Iron works farm) had, on the discontinuance of the business at the Furnace, taken Dawson into his employ. But it is possible that Dawson came to Branford or New Haven originally in Rosewell's service, and had not been at the Iron works at all. Rosewell had come into the colony some fifteen years before from Charlestown, in the colony of Massachusetts, and his father-in-law, Hon. Richard Russell, had resided there until his death in 1676. The surmise that Dawson may have come from thence receives some slight support from the fact that one N. Dawson was a resident of Charlestown — the purchaser, it will be remembered, from Robert Siltonstall of a house in Windsor — possibly related to the Thomas Dawson, of Morley, Co. York, England, who afterwards claimed property there. But these are the merest hints. Can any clue be got from them as to R. D.'s history prior to 1680? Was Russell, whose widow he married, in any way related to the family to which Mrs. Rosewell belonged?

* E. H. Register, p. 61.

² Doubtless the birth of J. D., son of R. D., 1677, — three years earlier than any date seen by the compiler. If he did not find this in original records, how did he obtain it? He may have done so by deducting 55 (alleged age) from 1732 (year of J. D.'s death, as he has it) though the latter date is certainly erroneous.

was stated whether they "should go on or not with [carrying on] of the village." The people were "desired to declare their minds by speech." Nineteen men, one of whom was Robert Dawson, being present, they all "declared for carrying on y^e village."¹ And with what tenacity some of them clung to the privileges held by them to be conveyed by the original concessions from New Haven will be seen by what follows. In 1707, the general assembly, on the petition of the villagers, who sought thereby to end disputes, ordered that "they should be a village distinct from the towne of New Haven," with all proper "immunities and privileges" necessary for the "upholding of the public worship of God, as also their own civil concerns," with the "libertie to have a school amongst themselves," and freedom "from paying any taxes to the towne of New Haven."² Articles of agreement between East Haven and New Haven under this act being proposed at a village meeting, Oct. 25, 1708, "Capt. Alling Ball, Robert Dawson, John Hemingway, William Roberts, Geo. Pardee, Joseph Grannis and Henry Luddington," entered "their protest against any propositions being offered that may," says the record, "be a wrong to our old grants."³ The pertinency of the protest is explained by the fact that New Haven denied that the assembly's act conferred full township privileges, as claimed by East Haven, and persisted in asserting the same right of control over the common lands there as before. Two years later—the legislature sitting that year in New Haven—they succeeded in getting the assembly to so explain its former act as to neutralize its effects, though not in form to revoke it.⁴ Nevertheless, the people of

One article of the "grants" from New Haven was as follows: "That when they are settled in a village way with ministry, they have liberty to admit their own inhabitants, for the future, but to attend to such cautions and considerations for the regulation of their settlement as may consist with the interest of religion, and the congregational way of the churches, provided for to be upheld." Another gave them permission to purchase land of the Indians, and the whole would seem designed to set them at liberty to control their own affairs.—E. H. R., 57.

This assembly taking into consideration an act passed in the general court held at Hartford, 8 May, 1707, granting several privileges to the village called (in the said act) East Haven, do declare upon the same that there is nothing contained in the said act that concerns property of lands, or that

East Haven, though overreached, were not defeated. They had not much influence in the "general court," but they had a certain dogged perseverance that was better than wit. They relied on their "old grants," and quietly pursued their course. New Haven threatened and prosecuted, but East Haven sold land to defray the expenses of its lawsuits, to maintain its minister, and for its other occasions, and in process of time it disposed of every acre within its limits. The last regular division was made in 1715, and the Indian reservation¹ was sold some fifteen years later; but the vexed controversy in regard to their township privileges was not settled until 1785, when they procured a new charter from the assembly, constituting them in express terms "a distinct and separate town by themselves." The first town meeting under this act was opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Street, and a sermon from a text in Psalms cxxii: "For my brethren and companions' sakes I will now say, Peace be within thee."

From the date of his settlement at Foxon's onward for more than thirty years, R. D. continued to participate in the divisions of the town lands, in which the inhabitants shared — not equally, but equitably — upon the basis of their estates, and the number of persons in their several families.²

In 1702 his family was "listed" as consisting of four persons,³

² As, in 1704, when what was styled a "half divisyon" was made, and they agreed to draw lots "who should pitch (pitch, i. e. select) first and next and soe on." R. D. received 13½ acres at this time, which he sold in 1711 to Samuel Russell. In 1708 the division was made "after much discors how to pay ye charges of building our meeting hous and some reariges of rates to mister Hemingway." Each man was required to pay on the land he received "one shilling and eight pence per acre to cleare ye aforesaid debts." In 1709, the undivided lands on the Pond Rock were ordered to be sold (see p. 27, n. 1) and in March, 1714-15, a sort of clearing up distribution was ordered, which included the unsold lots on the Pond Rock, a "half division" at Piper's brook, and sundry parcels of broken land, as to which latter, if not yet laid out, "the proprietors to have liberty to pitch a half division where they please." — E. H. R., pp. 38, 45, 47, and E. H. Village Records. R. D. owned land at Piper's brook in 1709, which he sold to Henry Luddington, and in 1713 he sold land near Foxon's to widow Elizabeth Potter. In his deeds he is described as "a husbandman" or "yeoman."

³ His son John was now 25 years of age, while his wife's second child, William, was dead, and her eldest, Hannah, was this year married. Hence it is inferred that his family consisted, besides himself and wife, of her youngest child by her former and in Feb. 1708-9 of two only.¹ In this month he executed a deed of gift² to his eldest son, John, married the preceding summer, of a house and home lot of five acres at Foxon's; reserving to himself, however, liberty of half the fruit of the orchard, then standing, yearly, and of planting tobacco as long as he should live, "in y^e yard for that use." It is pleasant to find the words "for y^e love I beare" in the ancient records. As to the donor's further intent in the gift of the homestead,³ the deed recites as follows: "I give y^e aforesaid land to my aforesaid son and to his first son if he live, and if he die before possessed, then to y^e next son, and soe forth, and for want of male heirs to female, beginning at y^e oldest," etc. The land is described as bounded on the north "by land I have given to Joseph Grannis." The deed to Grannis bears a later date — the next month — and conveys to him a small tract of about two acres. He had married, seven years before, R. D's step-daughter, Hannah Russell, and was a farmer of average estate. Probably it was expected or hoped he would occupy the two acres as a home lot. The consideration of love, as expressed, seems to have more than a formal significance, in this quaintly worded instrument. "For y^e love I beare to my son-in-law Joseph Grannis and to his present wife Hannah.....as also y^e grate affection I beare to their oldest child Joseph," so says the record,⁴ "I doe make over a certain trackt of upland lying on y^e bounds of East Haven aforesaid, at a place called Foxon's, by estimation two acres, be husband, and their one child, Thomas, then probably fifteen years of age. Or, if the daughter was not married until after this "listing," she may have been reckoned as one of R. D's family, and his wife's youngest son by her former husband, being then just of age, not reckoned. Or, it may be that R. D. had another child by his second wife, living at this time, but who died young and unrecorded. After his death his sons John and Thomas described themselves as his only surviving children.

¹ Thomas being at this time separately listed as a single man proves that he must have been of age this year, and consequently born in 1687, as before suggested, instead of in 1693, as Dodd states. He and John (who, having married in 1708, was set down as having two persons in his family) both participated in the division of land this year, as also in the later distributions.

G. and H. his wife during their life, and at their death I give it to their oldest child Joseph aforesaid, and if he die before possessed then it shall be to the next of my son Joseph Grannis children," &c.

Thirty years after the settlement of Robert and Hannah Dawson at Foxon's she died, said by Dodd to be "aged 49",¹ an impossible age, as her eldest child (Hannah Russell Grannis) was born in 1670, and was therefore about forty-three years of age when the mother died. The record states neither name nor age, but this only: "The second wife of Robert Dawson deceased the 30th day of January, 1713-14."² In the March following — "a valuable," but unexpressed, "consideration" him "thereunto moving"—he gave their son-in-law Joseph Grannis — son to him however only by adoption — a deed of his second "home lot" at Foxon's.³ This contained eight acres of land, with dwelling-house thereon, and adjoined the lot of land which he had previously given Grannis, as mentioned above.

He was still living in 1717,⁴ but the date of his death does not appear. It is certain, however, that it occurred before the 17th March, 1718, his sons John and Thomas joining in a deed of that date in which they describe themselves as "sons of Robert Dawson deceased."⁵ By this instrument, upon consideration that their father had bargained and sold "all his right to land in a place called y^e Pond Rock" to Ebenezer Chedsey, and had "received satisfaction for the same," but had not "made it over to him," they confirm to said Chedsey "all y^e right that did belong to our aforesaid father in said rocky land called Pond Rock, according as his lot was drawn by East Haven," though "not yet laid out," &c.

By another instrument,⁶ their father having evidently died intestate, these sons enter into an agreement for the settlement of his estate. It recites that they, being the sole surviving children of their deceased father, the movable estate being already divided, are to pay debts and receive dues of the estate equally, Thomas Dawson to have a certain home lot of five acres, and also a piece of lowland and upland (the quantity not expressed) and John Dawson to have the house and homestead which R. D. lived in, then in J. D.'s possession, containing about five acres, and a piece of lowland and upland of about twenty acres; all the remaining undivided land to be divided in equal shares between them, their heirs and assigns.

The age of Robert Dawson at his death was probably from 65 to 70 years; and his record may be briefly restated as follows:

1. ROBERT DAWSON, farmer, received grant of land at Foxon's, East Haven, 1683, on condition of building a tenantable house thereon within three years; was living, 1717; died there before 17 March, 1718, aged near 70 years. Had by his first wife, name unknown, one son:

2-1. John, born 1677, died 1737 or later; m.

He married, second, 1683 or earlier, widow Hannah Russell, who died in East Haven, 30 Jan., 1713-14. They had:

2-2. Thomas, born 1687, d. Jan. 12, 1759; m.

2-1. JOHN DAWSON, farmer, b. 1677, eldest son of Robert Dawson, also resided at Foxon's, in East Haven. He shared in various divisions of the common lands after he became of age, and also received land from his father's estate before and after the death of the latter.¹ He was chosen one of the "Listers" of Estates, 13 Dec., 1714.² In 1737 he and his wife were parties to a sale of land of her late father, William Ludington, sold to pay the debts of his estate.³ In the same year, it having been voted in a village meeting "to sell the parsonage and constitute a permanent fund with the avails," he and a few others entered their protest against the sale of the property.¹ Dodd states that he died Aug. 28, 1732, aged 55.² As to the year the error is manifest; it may have been 1737, but could not have been earlier.³ He married, 1st. ³ The original record, which Dodd must have seen but incorrectly transcribed, as to date, and perhaps as to age, has not been found by the compiler hereof, and the discrepancies here apparent cannot at present be explained. (See p. 29, sub-note *) It is not impossible that J. D. was son of the second wife of R. D., since 1683+55=1738.

3-5. JOHN DAWSON JUN., farmer, b. in East Haven, d. in New Hartford, Conn., May 19, 1787, aged abt. 68 years.¹ Some say that he was a ship-carpenter and mariner. It is probable that he went on several voyages, principally to trade in the West Indies; but his occupation was properly that of a farmer.² He was a person of considerable estate.³

In 1741 he, with three others, obtained liberty from the East Haven proprietors to set up a "Sabba-day house" for each of them, near the meeting-house.⁴

² Stories of his capture and maltreatment by pirates, at one time in the course of his seafaring life, are traditional in the family. He doubtless had some experience of that sort. In his old age he resided with his son Titus, in New Hartford. The late Mr. John Dawson, of Spencer, N. Y., son of Titus, was 8 yrs. of age when the gr. father d., and in 1870 told the compiler hereof he had often heard his gr. father relate the story of his capture by the pirates, and remembered that he would always appear excited and angry when he referred to the outrages they had committed. He was a man of medium height, thick set, and very sprightly in step and manner. Though nearly 70 yrs. of age, his hair and beard, which were naturally dark, retained their original color.

³ Several deeds of sale of his lands in East Haven are on N. H. Records. To Isaac Grannis, 3 March, 1745-6; to Russell Grannis jun., 31 May, 1748; to Stephen Grannis, 11 Jan., 1748-9; same, 4 Jan., 1749-50; Timothy Jones, 5 Jan., 1761.—*N. H. See deed to Eber Merriam, consideration £90, tracts of 30 acres and 2 acres, 22 Jan., 1784.—South'n. Records, vol. 1, p. 331. He received from Farmington town commissioners deed of land in consideration of land taken for highway, 24 May, 1764; from Barnabas Dunham half of house, barn, 91 acres, and "one piece more of y^e little plain," 17 Dec., 1767. ⁴ "Jan. 18, 1741-42, voted that Lt. John Russell and John Dawson, and Matthew Moulthrop and Asher Moulthrop shall have liberty for each of them to set up a Sabba-day house as near the meeting house as may be convenient."—E. H. Prop. Rec., vol. 2, p. 2. The Sabbaday or noon houses then common were rendered necessary from the fact that the meeting houses were destitute of the modern conveniences for warming. They usually consisted of four rooms, with a fire place in each, and were generally built at the united expense of four or more persons, to be occupied only on the sabbath by their respective families, and such guests as they invited to join with them. "On the morning of the sabbath, the owner of each room deposited in his saddle bags the necessary refreshments for himself and family, and took an early start for the sanctuary. He first called at his noon-house, built a fire, deposited his luncheon, warmed himself and family, and at the hour of worship they were all ready to sally forth and to shiver in the cold during the morning service. At noon they returned to their noon-house, where a warm room received them. The refreshments, consisting of bread and cheese, doughnuts, apples, cider, and perhaps cold meat or chicken, were

3d. 1818, Lucina Marsh,⁴ who was b. in New Hartford,

¹ Many anecdotes are told of his achievements of this sort. One which illustrates his character as well as his strength is as follows: A neighbor, somewhat below him in stature, angered by some fancied wrong, attempted an assault on him, but he, holding the assailant for a moment at arms' length, and innocent of any wish to injure him, said, with a good natured smile, "Why, neighbor J.—, I would scorn to strike you!" at the same time lifting him from his feet, and, with extended arms, holding him in that position until his anger had time to cool. He was a large, broad shouldered man, and somewhat noted as a perpetrator of practical jokes, and the promoter of harmless pleasantries of all sorts.

² Dau. of Daniel (b. Sept. 6, 1711, d. June 11, 1756), and Anna Smith Holt. Her father was one of the prominent men in E. Haven, and took much interest in public affairs. He was son of John and Sarah Russell Shepard ; gr. son of Thomas and Hannah Shepard, who became members of the Church in Branford, 1709, and removed to E. Haven, 1717. Thomas had removed from Charlestown, Mass., to Bristol, before 1700, and thence to Branford. He was son of Thomas Shepard, b. in England, who was at Charlestown, 1657, and m. Nov. 19, 1658,

5-12. Mary Dawson, twin sister of Thomas, above named, m. May 1, 1815, CHRISTOPHER TUTTLE,¹ farmer, b. in E. Haven, Sept. 26, 1759. They resided in the Foxon district, in that township, where he d. June 29, 1839, aged 80, and she July 31, 1870, having just completed her 95th year, and being at the time of her decease the oldest person in the township. She had been a remarkably active, industrious woman, and had enjoyed almost uninterrupted health. They had one child only:

6-38. Sarah Smith, b. in E. Haven, Nov. 4, 1816, res. 1873, in E. Haven. JACOBS.

5-14. Anna Dawson, b. in Southington, Ct., Aug. 7, 1779,² d. in Union, N. Y., at the residence of her son-in-law, Charles E. Keeler, Feb. 26, 1858, aged 79. She m. in Southington, March 25, 1798, HENRY MELOY, who survived her. The term of their married life lacked only one month of sixty years. They had five children, all born in New Haven, and removed thence to Broome county, N. Y., residing for many years, and until within a few months prior to her decease, at Chenango Forks. Mr. Meloy was b. at North Branford, Ct., March 25, 1778, and d. suddenly in Union, March 8, 1860, aged 82. He learned the cooper's trade in Conn., and carried on the coopering business at various places in that state, but chiefly at New Haven, where he was also a merchant. He spent a part of the year 1807 on the Island of Trinidad, where he employed workmen Hannah Ensign, dau. of Thomas Ensign, of Scituate, who was killed by Indians at the Rehoboth fight, March 26, 1676.

² The notice of her death, published in the Cattaraugus Freeman, says she d. at Union "after a lingering and painful illness, on the 26th day of February [1858] aged 78 yrs. 7 mos. 12 days." If so, the date of her birth must have been July 14, 1779, but the date above given was communicated by her grandson, and he received it from her own lips. Her disease was a neuralgic affection. She was a very motherly, amiable and pious woman, universally beloved.

in making hogsheads, which he exchanged for molasses. A cargo of that commodity he took back with him to New Haven. He continued trading in the West Indies for years after, carrying on at the same time his business in New Haven. He was one of a company who fitted out a privateer in the war of 1812. The vessel was lost in Charleston harbor. On his removal to Broome county, he purchased a tract of timber-land, and carried on the combined business of merchant and cooper for many years. He was a man of exemplary piety, and of excellent natural abilities,¹ improved by experience and observation. He was highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. They had five children :

¹ He left in Ms. an interesting autobiographical sketch, which is now in possession of his grandson, W. A. Meloy, Esq., of Washington, D. C. His father, Edward Meloy, was b. in Dungannon, county Tyrone, Ireland, May 16, 1734; emigrated to New Haven when 16 years of age, where he learned the shoemaking trade. After completing his apprenticeship, he bought out the business of his employer, but shortly after abandoned this, and engaged in the shipping business, in which he amassed a large property. He traded in the Mediterranean and W. Indies, and when the Revolutionary war broke out was owner of several vessels, and part owner of others. The war occasioned him the loss of a considerable part of his property, in consideration of which the state of Connecticut granted to his heirs a large and valuable tract of land in Ohio. He was a man of piety, and zealously devoted to the American cause. He was one of about one hundred citizens of New Haven who petitioned the governor and council of Conn., Sept. 17, 1776, complaining of some half dozen residents of that town as being unfriendly to the cause of the country. See Hinman's Part Sustained by Conn., etc., pp. 566-7. He m. 1758, Mary Parmelee (b. Oct. 29, 1739, d. Feb. 1800, or 1801), dau. of Jeremiah Parmelee and w. Mary Beecher, dau. of Joseph ancestor of Moses Beecher (see 5-18, note). He contributed £19 towards building a Pier at New Haven on the site of the present Long Wharf. He paid £10 "in rum," money being then very scarce, and barter the order of the day. This was in 1771.— New Haven His. Society's Papers, 1, pp. 92, 96.

more than respect and neighborly good will, though including both of these; it was positive affection — such only as a simple-hearted, genial, honest and truthful man could inspire. He was something above the medium stature, and possessed a good degree of physical vigor; and, with his father's peculiar tendency to humor, he had an almost womanly sensitiveness and tenderness of character — qualities which were perhaps traceable to his mother.

He m. in Windsor, Conn., Feb. 8, 1813, Rubamah Roberts,[†] who was b. in Windsor, Oct. 22, 1792. She now (1873), resides in Clarendon, Orleans Co., N. Y. A few months after their marriage they removed to Canton, in Conn., where they owned a small homestead, and where they remained until October, 1815. From this place they removed to the town of Cazenovia, Madison Co., N. Y., where they settled upon a farm situated on the eastern boundary of that township, on the line of the turnpike between the villages of Cazenovia and Nelson. He had purchased the farm while on a journey through the state some months previously. About the year 1822 they removed to Nelson village in the same county, where they occupied and kept a public house for many years. This little village was then, before the era of railroads, a place of considerable business. It was a station on the chief thoroughfare for eastern and western travel through the state, and in those days the "way-side inns" were often thronged to their utmost capacity. From Nelson he removed, about the year 1838, to the village of Cazenovia, where he also kept a public house, in which he remained until his decease.

His brother, Peletiah Roberts, was a physician. His mother, Mary Allyn, above named, was dau. of Capt. Peletiah Allyn (b. May 3, 1689, d. ³²There is a tradition that the last named John Roberts, or perhaps his father of same name, was a Huguenot, coming from France in consequence of the revocation of the edict of Nantes. Oliver Roberts, above named, fully believed this to have been the fact, and sought repeatedly to impress it upon the minds of his children. In their day it was generally believed in the family. The evidences on which their faith was based, if such existed, seem to have faded out; but it appears certain that this was a family distinct from all others of the name, Roberts, in Connecticut, and the compiler has learned nothing tending to disprove the theory of the Huguenotic origin.

He had great fondness for company, and was noted for his hospitality, kindness of heart, and practical benevolence. These qualities rendered him a popular landlord, while a remarkably keen insight into human nature, and a conscientious and faithful devotion to business, contributed to render him a successful one.¹

¹ It is said that he could never listen to any tale of suffering unmoved, and his charities were numerous and wholly unostentatious. After the war of 1812-14, while he was living on the farm, and when the country was overrun by poor wayfarers, beggared by the evil fortunes of the times, many a poor but worthy person, who had been refused admittance to other doors, found shelter and good cheer under his roof. To such as were really needy and deserving, his benefactions were not limited by a meal or a night's lodging. He nursed the sick, kept the footsore till they were healed, helped the destitute to clothing or shoes, assisted them on in some way towards their destination, or found them employment and the means of self-help. Many a grateful "God bless you!" was spoken at his door in those early and troubled times, as well as often in later days. The sick and poor of his neighborhood were not forgotten, and he had a sympathetic, helpful manner that seemed to be peculiarly encouraging and comforting. His charities were not large, but they were frequent and discriminating, and he had always the co-operation of a wise and frugal help-meet who was never weary in well doing.

One of his daughters writes as follows: "He was very fond of pets, and had the art of making every helpless and dependent creature love him. For years before his death he had for proteges a flock of birds, which came daily, during the summer, around the piazza, to be fed from his hand....."

"He used to say that whatever bills he might yet quarrel with he should never quarrel with a school bill....."

"..... Charitable as he was in his acts, he was not less so in his judgments. He rarely censured any person, and he permitted no approach to gossiping or censorious conversation among his children. 'If you have nothing good to say, don't say anything,' was his motto.

"He had great store of wit and humor, and of the most amusing anecdotes. His temperament was very cheerful, yet he sometimes suffered from extreme depression of spirits. The shadows were short-lived, however, and the sun soon shone again.

"He had strong kindred affection..... I have seen him greet absolute strangers, who came to him recommended only by identity of family name, and a very remote common ancestry, as if they had been the friends of a life time. And he never forgot them afterwards."

Another writes: "He was the truest of friends, the most genial of companions. He enjoyed a good joke as much as any man I ever saw, and had a quick and ready wit, especially in repartee. He was dignified in manner, yet one of the most loving and indulgent of parents. His word was law with his family, yet spoken so mildly and reasonably we never wished it otherwise."

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mixed in him that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man!'"

Timothy J. and Rubamah Roberts Dawson had eight children :

Afterwards he became engaged as an accountant in the Land Office of the Old Holland Land Company, and in 1827, he was transferred to a similar position in the Company's Land Office at Ellicottville. In this very responsible situation some twenty years of his life in Ellicottville were spent. Subsequently he was engaged in a manufacturing business, which he carried on until within a short period of his death.

He possessed cultivated literary tastes, and not a little literary skill, was specially fond of music and poetry, and was withal a person of great integrity and moral worth, taking rank as an influential and useful citizen of his town and county. He received from the governor of the state, as early as 1830, the appointment of surrogate of that county, which office he held for eight years, and he was repeatedly appointed by the same authority to 7-55. Ella Anzonetta, b. Aug. 3, 1849, res. 1873, in Westville.

6-34. HENRY SHEPARD DAWSON, b. in New Hartford, Conn., July 3, 1813, m. in Orange, Ct., June 4, 1839, Elizabeth Alling,² who was b. in Orange, Feb. 17, 1817. They reside, 1873, in New Haven, where he was for many years a merchant and manufacturing confectioner. He was, until recently, president, and is now a director and vice-president, of the New Haven and Derby R. R. Company. He is also a director of the Yale National Bank, of New Haven, and president of the New Haven City Water Works Company, with which company he has been prominently connected from the date of its organization, about 1859. He early recognized, as few at that time did, the necessity and advantages to New Haven of an abundant supply of pure water, and to his sound judgment and indomitable energy it now largely owes the distinction which it enjoys of being among the most favored of our cities in this respect. Much of the recent rapid increase of that city, in business, wealth and population, is due to the numerous manufacturing establishments removed to or originating in New Haven since the introduction of water, and impossible there before for lack of it ; while the benefits of its introduction, as regards health, comfort, security from fires, and domestic con-also of Southold — the place where, it is said, the ancestors of this family "settled when they emigrated from England to America." Sarah Beach, above named, was dau. of Leander Beach (d. in Orange, Dec. 28, 1823, aged 96), and w. Abigail Baldwin (d. in Orange, Feb. 25, 1824, aged 97) m. in Milford, lived together over 60 years, and left living descendants, 7 children, 72 gr. children, 192 gr. gr. children and 17 gr. gr. gr. children.

² Dia. of Glad Allin ; (b. in Orange, d. in New Haven, May 25, 1844), and w. Mary Smith, b. in Milford, April, 1792 — dia. of Thomas and Mary Lambert Smith, m. in Orange ; gr. dau. of John and Lydia Hall Alling, of West Haven.

venience, are almost incalculable. In connection with many other enterprises for the benefit of the "city of Elms," Mr. Dawson's name might be honorably mentioned. He is one of its most active, public spirited and useful citizens. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson have had nine children, all b. in New Haven :

- 7-56. Henry Shepard, b. Aug. 22, 1841, d. in New Haven, Dec. 3, 1867, a. 26 ; unm.

 7-63. Florence Irene, b. Nov. 10, 1854, d. May 27, 1861, a. 7.
 7-64. Charles Herbert, b. Nov. 16, 1857, d. Feb. 16, 1861, a. 3.¹

6-36. THOMAS HOLT DAWSON, school teacher and farmer, b. in Northford, Ct., Dec. 17, 1807, d. in Licking county, Ohio, June 7, 1847, aged 40. He m. in Caldwell, N. J., Nov. 27, 1833, Abigail Jacobus, of Caldwell, who was b. March 28, 1813. They removed the same year to Northford, returned to Caldwell in April, 1836, and removed thence to Hartford-town, Licking county, O., in 1840, her parents having gone thither a short time before. She m. again, and res. 1873, at Condit P. O., Delaware Co., O. They had five children :

- 7-65. Stephen V., b. Nov. 10, 1834, d. Aug. 15, 1855, aged 21 ; unm.
 7-66. Mary Adaline, b. Jan. 28, 1839, d. May 21, 1868 ; was m. but d. without issue.
 7-67. Reuben Thomas, b. April 10, 1841, d. June 7, 1847.
 7-68. Fanny, b. Jan. 7, 1845, res. 1873, Condit, O. HUFF.
 7-69. Chloe, b. Jan. 14, 1848, res. 1873, Condit, O. WILSON.

6-37. Mary Adaline Dawson, b. in Northford, Conn., April 25, 1810, m. in Northford, April 25, 1833, HORACE SMITH, farmer, b. in North Haven, Jan. 20, 1811, res. 1871, in Wallingford. She d. in Northford, July 2, 1837, aged 27, leaving one child, then three weeks old, viz :

- 7-70. Merit Dawson, b. June 11, 1837, res. 1871, in Wallingford ; m.

7-71. Hiram, b. in East Haven, Jan. 22, 1836, res. 1873, in East Haven; unn.

6-39. Harriet Lewis Meloy, b. in New Haven, Conn., Jan. 4, 1799, m. in Chenango, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1820, JOHN BARKER ROGERS, who was b. in Lisle, N. Y., May 6, 1796. He resides 1873, in Chenango Forks, N. Y., where he has been for many years in active business as a merchant, miller, and extensive dealer in dairy products, which commodities he purchases in large quantities for eastern markets. He was postmaster at Chenango Forks, by appointment of several different administrations, but, having acted prominently with the whig party, was removed for political causes during the presidency of James K. Polk. He was a member of the state assembly in 1844, and has repeatedly served as county supervisor, to which office he continued to be elected so long as he would consent to accept it. Probably to him more than to any other man is due the business prosperity of the village and vicinity where he resides, and he enjoys in a high degree the confidence and esteem of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their pleasant home on the fourth of January, 1870. Besides a very large attendance of friends from near and far, the family gathering numbered over fifty, including seven children, eighteen grand-children, and three great grand children; and it was remarked of the groom and bride that they received and entertained their friends with a cordiality and ease which would have graced a much earlier anniversary of their wedded life. They were made the recipients of very many elegant and costly gifts, as well as of letters from numerous friends in distant places, expressive of the utmost good will and best wishes.¹

Mrs. Rogers d. at Chenango Forks, Feb. 22, 1873, aged 74. "For half a century she was identified with the social and religious history of this village. Of the Congregational church, during the half century of its existence, it is not too much to say that Mrs. Rogers was 'the strongest soul.' In this community, for the same period, alike in her social standing and her Christian example, she was 'a shining light.' Of the many women whose social and Christian influence has been a blessing to this place, the general verdict would promptly give to Mrs. Rogers a representative place."....."Where there was good work to be done, there she was to be found, and always among the foremost. Surely hers was a worthy life."¹ They had nine children:

- 7-72. Henry Augustus, b. in Chenango Forks, April 30, 1821, res. 1873, in Chenango Forks; m.
 7-73. Theodore Simeon, b. in Chenango Forks, Oct. 14, 1824, res. 1873, Binghamton, N. Y.; m.
 7-74. Mary Ann, b. in Greene, N. Y., April 17, 1826, res. 1873, Dunkirk, N. Y. FULLAGER.
 7-75. Norman Stevens, b. in Chenango Forks, Oct. 3, 1828, res. 1873, Chenango Forks; m.
 7-76. Julia Eliza, b. in Chenango Forks, Oct. 30, 1830, res. 1873, Chenango Forks. HAGAMAN.
 7-77. William, b. in Chenango Forks, Dec. 4, 1832, d. May 5, 1837.
 7-78. Caroline Harriet, b. in Chenango Forks, Feb. 16, 1835, res. 1873, Chenango Forks, N. Y.
 7-80. Catharine Juliett, b. in Chenango Forks, June, 1844, d. Sept. 23, 1848.

1790. She was a dau. of John Barker, a pioneer settler in the Chenango Valley country. See interesting anecdotes of her early life and adventures among the Indians, Annals of Binghamton, pp. 160-163. Simeon Rogers was a "minute-man" at New Haven, when sixteen years old; served for six months at one time, and for shorter periods on other occasions. He opened in 1795, "the first inn, kept the first store, and built the first mill" in the town of Barker. His marriage was also the first in the township. He was appointed, under President Jefferson, the first postmaster at Chenango Forks, which office he resigned after a few years in favor of his son, who held it continuously until removed as above stated, by Pres. Polk.* Of Simeon Rogers it was said that "he had been in the enjoyment of remarkably good health all his long life, and he possessed unusual mental and physical activity and energy. Intelligent, patriotic and kind hearted, he was respected and beloved by all who knew him." — Obituary: Binghamton paper.

*About a year after his removal, his son Theodore was made postmaster, and the office is now held by another son, Henry, having been out of the family only one year since it was established.

The father of Gideon Richmond was Nathaniel, who also lived at Taunton. The Richmonds are of English descent. They were at Taunton as early as 1640. Rev. Edmund Richmond was "for sixty years a worthy member of the Baptist church, and for above fifty years a faithful and successful preacher of the Gospel. He was pastor of the Baptist church in Milford, Otsego Co., N. Y., more than twenty years, during which time a church of 14 members increased to 144, and erected a good House of Worship, which still remains. Thence he removed to Rome, Ashtabula Co., O., where he gathered a small church, which increased to 50 members, and erected a House of Worship, during his pastorate of seven years. The last twenty-three years of his pastoral life he devoted to the Baptist church in Sheffield, to which he gave a lot of ground for a meeting house, towards the erection of which he was also the principal donor. He had eight sons and four daughters. Of these, all but two sons survived him, besides whom he left a posterity of 67 grand children and 27 great grand children." — Obituary. In September, 1853, one hundred of his children and children's children met him on a visit. Several large general gatherings of the Richmonds have taken place, and it is understood that a book of Records of the family is in course of preparation.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinney were greatly esteemed in the community where they lived. They would hardly have been selected, perhaps, as suitable pioneers to the then "far west," whither they so early emigrated. In point of education and refinement they were superior to the majority of the early settlers of those western wilds; but all their resources, mental and physical, were devoted to the developing and upbuilding of their chosen home, shared with their less fortunate neighbors, and made instrumental of good in numerous ways, such as only the truly charitable, laboring in the spirit of genuine Christianity, can devise and adopt. Their influence was widely felt and gratefully acknowledged. They were Universalists in religious faith and by church membership. They had five children:

¹ He was a pupil in the Clark Seminary, at Aurora, and was a lad of great promise. For some years he had been living at Aurora, in the family of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, who supplied as far as possible the place of parents to him during his orphanage. "He was kind and amiable in disposition, genial and gentlemanly in manners, respectful and dutiful to teachers. He was sincere, outspoken and upright, uniform in temper and spirit, determined in purpose. He was without reproach, so far as we know, in words, habits and morals.....In some departments of study he ranked among the best in his classes.....On his way home [from school] he was crushed beneath the cars. His fellow pupils, from their windows in the seminary, witnessed his misfortune, and hastened to his presence, and attended him, so far as their services were needed, to the last. He exhibited unusual presence of mind and fortitude. Much more calm than any about him, he gave directions as to taking him home, and continued quiet and self possessed as long as he lived. From time to time he ministered words of comfort to his deeply afflicted and sorrowful friends. He was buried at Bloomingdale."—Obituary.

On the death of his father, in March, 1843, he succeeded to the charge of the business and family. He removed to Syracuse, N. Y., in 1845; became landlord of the Fayette House in that city, and subsequently of hotels in Oran and Delphi, N. Y., selling out the three latter establishments, however, in each instance, within one year after commencing business. He spent about two years in the service of the saddlery hardware house of C. Pope & Co., of Syracuse, as traveling agent for the sale of their goods, and for some years was also employed as traveling agent for the sale of drugs and patent medicines. In 1853, he removed to Adrian, Mich., and accepted a clerkship in the General Ticket office of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad, being the chief clerk of the "Local Ticket" Department of that office, which position he has ever since held. The office, however, has been

From the first of January following he was engaged in the business of Insurance, until Oct. 1, 1858, when he reëntered the saddlery hardware trade under the firm name of E. S. Dawson & Co. In this business he continued, conducting an extensive trade and a large manufacturing establishment, until Jan. 1, 1869, when he accepted the position of treasurer of the Onondaga County Savings Bank, which position he still occupies. This bank, of which he had been, for many years previously, a trustee, is the oldest institution of the kind in Syracuse, and one of the largest in the state. his thirteenth year he became a clerk in the bookstore of L. W. Hall & Co., of Syracuse, with whom he remained something more than a year, leaving their service to accept a clerkship in the general country store of Camp and Stone, at Trumansburg, N. Y. Two years later he returned to Syracuse, and became a clerk in the book establishment of Wynkoop & Brother, successors to his former employers. After about two years spent in their employ he became bookkeeper to Mr. Ezra Towne, grocer and insurance agent, in whose service he remained until 1853, when he removed to New York city, to fill the position of bookkeeper and cashier in the book publishing house of Daniel Burgess & Co., then leading school book publishers in that city. With this firm he remained until its dissolution in 1856, which occurred in consequence of the death of Mr. Daniel Burgess. In the fall of that year he made a collecting tour through the western states as representative of the administrator of Mr. B.'s estate. As a result of this trip came his removal to Des Moines, Polk county, Iowa, in the month of January following, where, as one of the firm of Redhead & Dawson, he engaged in business as a bookseller, publisher and stationer. In this business he continued until the winter of 1859-60, when, having been elected superintendent of Public Schools for that county, he disposed of his interest in the book business and devoted himself to the duties of his office, in connection with the business of a real estate and insurance agency, which he established about this time. He also became assistant state agent of the Aetna Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., traveling extensively for the purpose of adjusting losses, appointing local agents, inspecting the condition of various local agencies, and performing other like duties. At this time also he occasionally wrote for the papers and magazines in prose and verse,¹ wrote and delivered various lectures and addresses, and served as permanent secretary of sundry literary, social and church organizations. In the second year of his term of office as school superintendent he resigned the same in favor of his deputy and friend Dr. Wilmot H. States Circuit Court of the District of Iowa,¹ which office he held about two years, meanwhile continuing his business as a Real Estate and Insurance agent, and also at the same time as for some years previously, serving as secretary of the City School District. In the spring of 1863 he was appointed chief clerk in the office of the provost marshal² for the fifth congressional district of Iowa, and assisted in organizing the provost service in that extensive district, then comprising twenty-three counties.³ In this very laborious position he remained nearly two years, conducting also, during a part of the time, the agencies before mentioned, which, however, he surrendered early in 1864. In the fall of the same year considerations of health, and the desire of availing himself of certain advantages of study and instruction, with change of air and scene, and relief from business cares, induced him to resign his clerkship in the provost service, and remove with his family to Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he became a student in the State University. He remained there in that capacity during the residue of that year and all of the year following, graduating in the Law Department of the University in the spring of 1866. While making arrangements to return to Iowa for the purpose of engaging there in the practice of law, he was offered, during a visit to New York in the summer of 1866, and accepted, the position of corresponding and advertising clerk to the parties then controlling by contract the sale of the Congress and Empire spring waters.⁴ In 1869 he became a member of the board of trustees of the company owning the ³ The provost service was the great system by means of which the army of the Union was continually reinforced. There were then no railroads in the district, and the District Headquarters were 180 miles from the General Rendezvous of the state, to which all recruits and arrested deserters were required to be forwarded. The providing of transportation, clothing and subsistence, under these circumstances, for large numbers of men, was attended with peculiar difficulties, and involved a multiplicity of accounts, and the necessity of a large correspondence.

April 21, 1831, TRUMAN ROWLEY COLMAN, who was b. in Coventry, Conn., Nov. 9, 1809, and resides, 1873, in Dunkirk.¹ His parents removed to Madison county, N. Y., in his boyhood. At the age of twelve he left home, and thenceforth not only supported himself independently, but assisted, to some extent, his father's family. He first lived two years with the Hon. Gerrit Smith, who, discerning in him capacity superior to his position, procured for him a clerkship in Peterboro, in the store of his brother-in-law, Mr. Backus. In 1826, his employer discontinuing business, he went to Utica, where he found a situation with a mercantile firm whose business was transferred to Rochester in 1828, and to Ellicottville in 1829, he going with it, and remaining as clerk in the establishment until 1832, when he became a partner. The next year he became sole owner. The stock consisted of dry goods, groceries, drugs and medicines, and a large variety of miscellaneous goods, including, as was common in the country stores of the time, spirituous liquors. He signaled his new position by discontinuing wholly the sale of the latter, thus becoming the first merchant in the county to adopt this reform. He has ever since been a consistent and influential advocate of the temperance cause. He continued in the mercantile business

He built a brick house on the site of the present parsonage of St. John's church in Elizabeth. A portion of the original house still remains, in which is seen the old corner stone, inscribed with name and date— [1697— Andrew Hampton and Margret.] His w. was Margaret Cummin. They had 8 children, who were bapt. by Rev. Geo. Keith (an Episcopal missionary, formerly a Quaker preacher), in Nov. 1705, himself and w. having, so writes Keith, "come over from Quakerism to the Church." His son Andrew, however, though probably one of the children bapt. by Keith, was a Quaker. A. H., the deputy, supported a son: James Hampton, who emigrated from Salem, Mass., to Southampton, L. at Ellicottville until 1844, when he became agent for the proprietors of extensive tracts of lands in western New York, known as the "Holland Land Purchase." Three years later he purchased a large interest in the property, to the management and sale of which he afterwards devoted several years. In 1854 he removed to Dunkirk, and established the Lake Shore Bank, of which he is now president. Mr. Colman is distinguished for his liberality and public spirit. To his efforts in the years 1868, 1869, and subsequently, are largely due the introduction and growth of the Order of the Knights of Pythias in New England. He was elected, in 1869, grand chancellor of the Order in Connecticut, and deputy grand chancellor for New England. The second lodge of the Order organized in his native state (the Dawson lodge, Fair Haven, Dec. 17, 1868), was named in his honor. He has also been prominently identified with Odd Fellowship and Masonry, being, in 1869, W. M. of Hiram Lodge No. 1, of New Haven (Masonic), said to be "the oldest lodge in the United States, save one."² He has recently made a trip to Europe for the benefit of his health, spending some months in Italy. 7-140. EDWARD FRANCIS BATES, physician, b. in township of Cazenovia, Madison Co., N. Y., Dec. 30, 1840, d. in Washington, D. C., March 6, 1864, aged 23 years. At the commencement of the civil war he was a student in the Medical Department of the State University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor.

May 19, 1839, and w. Ruth Church, b. in Conn., 1770, d. in N. Y., June 30, 1834, m. in New Lenox, Ct., July 4, 1789. The gr. gr. father said by correspondent to have been from England, but it is queried whether the English emigrant was not probably some generations more remote? The name formerly G. Davis.

In the summer of 1862, in advance of an assuredly high and honorable graduation, he repaired to Washington, in company with a few other patriotic young men of his class, and entered the service of the United States as a Medical Cadet. He was assigned to duty in Carver Hospital in July of that year, where he manifested a degree of talent and a thoroughness of preparation which caused him to be speedily promoted, in December, 1862, to the rank of assistant surgeon, and a few months later to that of surgeon of volunteers. Not long after the latter advancement he received the notable distinction of an assignment to duty as a member of the Medical Board of examiners, in Washington, and he was still engaged in that service when he was attacked by the malady which terminated his life. He was a diligent and methodical as well as an enthusiastic student, and of untiring industry in his profession. Notwithstanding his youth, it is not too much to say, that as an officer he evinced the highest order of efficiency. He was the author of several graceful poetical compositions, and his talents were brilliant and varied.² He m. in Cleveland, O., Jan. 26, 1863, Eusebia Fleming Moore, niece of Hon. J. H. Wade, of that city, where she now resides (1873).

7-141. WILLIAM RUFUS BATES, lawyer and editor, was b. in Cazenovia township, Madison county, N. Y., June 28, 1845. He was educated at the Oneida Conference Seminary, in Cazenovia, and in the Law Department of the Michigan State University; and has been editorially connected with several newspapers, especially the Saginaw, Mich., Daily Enterprise, and the Chicago, Ill., Republican. He was elected, in the fall of 1870, from Bay county, Michigan, a representative in the state legislature, and, though the youngest member of that body, is already distinguished in his state for his ability as a legislator and as a political orator and leader. In the spring of 1871 he was appointed, by the President, register of the United States Land office at Saginaw, which office he now holds (1873). He is, of course, republican in politics. He m. in Flint, Mich.,

² His remains were removed to Cazenovia for burial. The following—in raised letters, within the American Shield—is the inscription upon the monument: "Major EDWARD F. BATES, Surgeon U. S. V., died at Washington, D. C., March 6, 1864, aged 23 years, 2 months, 11 days."

7-161. Ellen Sophia Colman, b. in Ellicottville, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1840, m. in Dunkirk, N. Y., April 27, 1859, Capt. PATRICK BARRETT, who was b. at Ballyknock, in the parish of Downfeeny, Mayo county, Ireland, March 10, 1832. He was mortally wounded at the battle of Williamsburgh, Va., May 5, 1862, and d. at Yorktown the day following, aged 30.

Capt. Barrett came to this country in 1847, when about fifteen years of age, in company with his mother, sisters and brothers: his father, whose name was James Barrett, having died in Ireland about ten years previously. In the spring of 1849, he obtained employment on the Erie railway, and having, by his efficiency and diligence, attracted the favorable notice of the railway superintendent, he was soon placed by him in a line of promotion which led to his employment in various capacities of increasing trust and responsibility.

The following are extracts from an obituary published in the Dunkirk Union.¹ "In 1850, with his family, he made our village his home. Attentive and faithful in the performance of every duty, courteous and kind to all he met, thoughtful, studious, and of an active and enquiring mind, his leisure was employed with books, and in the society of the intelligent and cultivated; and as years passed on, the graceful, handsome, well mannered boy, ripened into the accomplished gentleman and active citizen.....

"Capt. Barrett received the appointment of postmaster of our village from President Buchanan, and held the office during his administration. Happily connected by marriage, of commanding presence, with manly and shining qualities, uncommon energy and perseverance, a prosperous and successful career seemed open before him. He gratified his martial tastes and aptitudes by raising, mostly from among his countrymen, in our village, and for several years commanding, the Jackson Guards, an independent company ; and in drilling them and directing their movements he, in some measure, fitted himself for the service in which he has been distinguished.

“ His patriotic ardor was aroused at the outbreak of the rebellion. On that memorable day when came flashing on the wires the startling news of the fall of Fort Sumter, Captain Barrett immediately repaired to our village armory, with his own hands raised the Stars and Stripes, and avowed his purpose of offering his services to the government. With much labor and sacrifice he gathered around him the brave men who followed him to the war. We recall, with melancholy pride, that bright summer day, almost a year gone by, when our noble contribution to the cause of the country, the two companies of Captains Barrett and Stevens, took up their march for the beleaguered Capital, and amid tears and benisons and prayers the youthful hero turned from his elegant home to go where duty called him. The summer months were profitably spent at Camp Scott, on Staten Island, in perfecting himself and his command in the service so soon to be their daily occupation. Ordered with the brigade last fall to Washington, they were soon assigned important duty in guarding the Maryland shore below the Capital, and delicate and responsible trusts were so well discharged by Captain Barrett as to meet the warm approbation of superiors in command. The captain and his company, and indeed the whole of the Third Regiment, mostly from this county, are said to have made great proficiency, and to have become accomplished soldiers. Connected with General Hooker's division, they formed a part of the pursuing force after the evacuation of Yorktown, and engaging the enemy's rear at Williamsburg, are represented in the records of that memorable engagement, as having ‘ fought with unprecedented bravery ’ ; and there, at the head of his company, bravely directing them against the foe, Captain Barrett received the wound that has robbed the service of a gallant officer, and plunged our community in grief.”

Capt. B. was a member of the Catholic church. He was attended in his last hours, greatly to his comfort and consolation, by the Rev. Joseph O'Hagan, regimental chaplain, who was also his warm personal friend.

FAMILY OF THOMAS DAWSON,

OF NEW HAVEN, CONN., 1721-2.

Of this family but little is known. Nothing has been discovered to connect it with the family of ROBERT DAWSON, of East Haven.

1. March 5, 1721-2, John Hitchcock conveyed to "THOMAS DAWSON, formerly of Newport, on Road Island,¹ now of New Haven," 2½ acres in New Haven: consideration £100. (New Haven Records, vol. 6, p. 24).

April 14, 1722, THOMAS DAWSON, similarly described, in consideration of "love, good will and natural affection," conveyed to his "loving son,"

2-1. Job Dawson, of New Haven, a house, barn and home lot in New Haven,² and sundry household goods. (N. H. Records, vol. 6, p. 101. The same land bought of John Hitchcock).

2-1. JOB DAWSON and Sarah Thomas³ were married at New

¹ The R. I. Colonial Records, 1636-1740, recently printed, have been examined without discovery of this name.

² This house was in West Lane. Adjoining it on either hand were the residences of the Nott and Beecher families, and next beyond the latter that of the Thomas family, with which Job D. became connected by marriage. See "A plan of the town of New Haven, as taken by Mr. Joseph Brown in the year 1724."—Barber's Antiquities of New Haven, p. 109.

³ Records of conveyances by Job and Sarah Dawson are as follows:

July 20, 1724. To Jona. Atwater jun., of New Haven, 3½ acres "in said New Haven, lying in Plainfield, and in the first division of sequestered land."—N. H. Records, vol. 6, p. 466.

Dec. 24, 1733. To Samuel Brown, of New Haven, a certain quantity of meadow land lying in the "subhards" quarter in the town aforesaid, being half the meadow lying in Hill's cove, formerly belonging to Samuel Thomas, of the town aforesaid, deceased, and in the division of said Thomas's estate by the freeholders set to Sarah, the wife of Job Dawson.—Records, vol. 9, p. 392.

Feb. 24, 1734-5. To Jona. Atwater, a half division of land in township of New Haven, containing 21½ acres. "being a lot that was drawn and laid out in the name of our honored father, Samuel Thomas, deceased."—Records, vol. 10, p. 53.

Feb. 22, 1728-9, recorded May 7, 1735. To Joseph Thomas, of New Haven, "land lying in the subhards quarter in New Haven, being one acre which accrued to the said Sarah as part of her portion in the estates of her father, mother and sister, deceased."—Records, vol. 10, p. 93.

Haven, Feb. 12, 1718-19. He d. before Oct. 21, 1745.¹ She was the daughter of Samuel Thomas. They had five chn. :

3-1. Ann, b. June 28, 1720. WANTWOOD.

3-2. Sarah, b. March 27, 1724.²

3-3. Elizabeth, b. Feb. 4, 1727-8.

3-4. Rhoda, b. Aug. 5, 1731.

3-5. Job, b. March 6, 1734-5.

3-1. Ann Dawson and BENJAMIN WANTWOOD, both of New Haven, "were joyned in marriage" March 30, 1743. He was b. July 20, 1712, son of Benjamin Wantwood, of East Haven. They had :

4-1. Phebe, b. June 5, 1745. (The date of this birth is also recorded in same volume, March 30, 1744-5, and March 30, 1748, making the record abundantly confusing and wholly inexplicable. It would appear that the mother must have d. before 1747, and B. W. m. 2d, Sarah——. The birth of a son is recorded as follows : "Benjamin, son of Benj. and Sarah Wantwood, Nov. 5, 1747").—N. H. Records of births, marriages, &c., pp. 227, 267 and 504.

¹ On that date the Court of Probate at New Haven appointed Lt. Thomas Holt of New Haven, guardian of Rhoda Dawson, minor child of "Job Dawson, late of New Haven, deceased."

² She never married. Administration on her estate was granted to Joseph Peck of New Haven, Nov 5, 1787. It was divided between Rhoda and Elizabeth, her sisters, then also unm.

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF MONROE, CONN., ABOUT 1785-90.

1. JOHN DAWSON,¹ was b. in England, June 4, 1749. He graduated at Oxford, and was sent to America in the British army, a member of a regiment called the Legion, commanded by Major Cochran. He was at the taking of Philadelphia, in 1777, and at the battle of the Cowpens, 1781, "got whipped by Morgan." He was concerned in an engagement at Egg Harbor with a brig called the Middletown, which was taken by the British, although the crew escaped. The prize money gained by the capture of the brig was the subject of an altercation between him and the major of his regiment, in the course of which he struck the major with his fist, and knocked him down. According to the articles of war he would have been liable to be put to death for striking a superior officer, and he deserted to save his life. He went into the state of Connecticut, where he was joined by his w. whom he had m. in Philadelphia. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Maria Hamilton Maxfield, and she was b. in Ireland, May 1, 1754. Her mother, a Miss Hamilton, had m. a man named Knox, and he dying, she m. 2d. a protestant minister named Maxfield. Their dau. Elizabeth came to America for her health, and lived with an aunt in Philadelphia. The war broke out six months after her arrival, and when the British army was at Philadelphia, her half brother, who was a naval officer, and had been a classmate of Dawson, invited him to see her. A mutual attachment sprang up between them, and led to their marriage. They settled in Monroe, Fairfield Co., about sixteen miles north of Bridgeport. From this place they removed to New Haven county before 1792, Nov., 1852, and 1st. March, 1853. — See Cothren's Woodbury, p. 798. From Mr. William Dawson, of Hotchkissville, is learned the facts that his namesake of Woodbury removed thence to Norwalk, and, while employed there in a woolen mill, disappeared suddenly, and has never been heard from since. He had a brother, James Dawson, in Rockville, Ct., and one named Robson Dawson, who "went west and died." They were born in England.

FAMILY OF PETER DAWSON,

OF BARNET, VERMONT, ABOUT 1800.

From Mr. Adam Dawson, of New London, Ct., 1870-73, and others, the following :

1. PETER DAWSON, a cabinet maker, noted for the perfection of his workmanship, was b. about 1770, at Linlithgo, near Edinburgh, Scotland, where his father, James Dawson, lived and died.¹ His uncle, Abram Dawson, was a large and wealthy distiller of that place. His mother's maiden name was Jenny Drummond, and he had two brothers — William, who d. in Scotland, though he had resided for a short time in this country, and Adam, who d. young. He m. in Scotland, Margaret Selkirk, and emigrated shortly after to the city of New York, about the year 1800, where he had a married sister, who had preceded him — the wife of a merchant named Lang. Mr. Dawson and his wife remained in the city only a few months, and removed thence to Barnet, Caledonia Co., Vermont, where they resided for many years. They afterwards removed to Derry, N. H. He d. in Windham, near Derry, 4 Sept., 1829, aged 59, and she d. in Methuen, Mass., Feb., 1838, aged 57. They had nine children, all b. in Barnet, Vt. :

 Mass. He res. 1873, in New London, Ct.

Mr. Dawson has been engaged for the past forty years in the building of railroads and other public works. In 1831, he constructed, under contract, a portion of the Boston and Lowell
 R. R.—the first railroad in New England. In 1833-4 he built a section of the Boston and Worcester R. R., and in 1835 a part of the Bangor and Piscataquis R. R., of Maine. After this he had a contract on the Croton Water Works, at New York, which occupied him a year and a half. The Hartford and New Haven R. R., 1839, and the Western (Boston and Albany) R.
 R., 1840-41, were his next undertakings. In 1844-5 he built eleven miles of the Fall River and Myrick R. R., besides doing other railroad work in New England. In 1846 he built the foundation of the Bay State Mills, at Lawrence, Mass., and in the two following years, in connection with his brother-in-law, Mr. Mattoon, he built the Worcester and Nashua R. R., forty-five miles in length. Twelve miles of the Ohio and Mississippi
 R. R. were built by him in 1852, and the masonry of fifteen or twenty miles of the Wabash Valley R. R., besides a part of the grading of same, in 1853-55. In 1856-57 he constructed the masonry of the Suspension Bridge, at Cincinnati, O., and in 1858 he contracted for the building of the Brooklyn, N. Y.,

Water Works, to which he devoted the two following years. The extension of the Boston and Fall River R. R. to Newport was done by him in 1861-62, after which, during the civil war, he was engaged in various public works in the city of Worcester, Mass. In 1867, in company with two other gentlemen, he purchased the extensive and valuable granite quarries at East Lyme, Conn., and has since built a number of light houses on the New England coast, of which that at Sabin's Point, at the mouth of Providence river, built in 1872, is the largest and costliest — being one of the best of the government works of this character. It would be difficult to point to a life more industriously or usefully spent.¹ Mr. Dawson has had five children :

3-6. Mary Louisa, b. in Springfield, Mass., Nov., 1843, res. New London, Ct. ; unm.

3-7. Adam, b. in Worcester, Mass., May, 1845, d. April, 1846.

3-12. Henrietta, b. in Troy, N. Y., May 2, 1836, res. 1873, in Clinton, Mass. ; unm.

3-13. Clarence L., b. in Troy, N. Y., July 1, 1838, enlisted in the 123d Regt. N. Y. Vols., and d. in hospital at Alexandria, Va., Oct.

¹ Mr. D. wrote, May 29, 1870, as follows :

"I left Vermont at the age of 22, and have not resided there since. I did not know of any other family of our name in the state, and have seldom met any of the name since I left it. Although I have traveled through all the New England states and most of the western states, I have not seen more than three or four that I remember. In 1838, I looked over the Directory in New York city, and found but three or four of that name in it, and as the name has greatly multiplied since that time I think there must have been some fresh arrivals from over the water, of late years." [Mr. Dawson is quite right in regard to the new comers — they are very numerous — but he is in error in regard to the number of Dawsons named in the New York City Directory for 1838. It contained the addresses of fourteen persons and one business firm of our name.]

NOTE. There may have been DAWSONS in Vermont of earlier date than the family of Peter Dawson, of Barnet. At the time when jurisdiction over the territory of Vermont was claimed by the Province of New York, numerous tracts of land in Vermont were granted or sold to citizens of New York by the authorities of that Province.

Vol. XIX, page 117, July 25, 1765. Return of Survey for John Dawson, and four others, "late corporals in the 80th Regt." for 1000 acres, in Shelburne, Vermont.

Vol. XXVII, page 8, April 3, 1770. Return of Survey of 600 acres of land in Danville, Caledonia Co., Vermont, to Frederick Dawson and others.

Whether either of these Dawsons removed to Vermont is not known.

In New Hampshire the name is as rarely met with as in Vermont. Peter Dawson, of the foregoing record, lived for a time in New Hampshire, and d. there. Benjamin Dawson, of Salem, in that state, a deaf mute, pupil at the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Hartford, Ct., was killed at Hartford, Oct. 17, 1857, a train on the Hartford and New Haven R. R. passing over him.

FAMILY OF HENRY DAWSON,

From the Misses Dawson, of South Norwalk, Conn., 1873, and others, the following :

1. JOHN DAWSON,² grandfather of Henry Dawson, above named, was b. in Kendall, Westmoreland, England, probably between 1735 and 1740. He was by trade a wool comber, and is reputed to have been a person of fine appearance, and of more than ordinary address and education for a man in his station (being able to read and speak Latin), but of somewhat improvident habits. He lived to be 75 years of age, or upwards. He m., about 1765, Margaret Calvert, dau of Matthew Calvert, of Lancaster. Their eldest son was :

2-1. Matthew, named for his maternal gr. father, by whom he was "bound to the sea," at the age of twelve years. At the age of twenty-four he sailed from Liverpool for Africa, the second in command of a merchantman or trader. The captain d. of fever on the voyage, and he of the same disease after reaching the coast of Guinea, within a year after leaving England. The news of his death hastened that of his mother, who d. soon after.

2-2. Mark, second son of John Dawson, became a tailor, and lived and d. in Preston, Lancashire, where his children now reside.

2-3. John, a seaman, married, and when last heard of was living in Whitehaven, Cumberland.

There were six daughters, two of whom d. in infancy, and two more d. unmarried. The others were :

2-4. Agnes, m. John King, and had several children ; lived in Blackburn, Lancashire ; and

2-5. Mary, b. in Hawes, Yorkshire, Dec. 10, 1775, d. at Holcombe, Lancashire, Sept. 4, 1845 ; mother of

² His father, Henry Dawson, was game keeper on a nobleman's estate, called Leven's Park, for forty years. The father of Henry Dawson, game keeper, was also a game keeper on the same estate for about the same length of time. His Christian name is not known.

“JOHN DAWSON, of Monroe, Conn.” Since the record beginning on page 131 was printed, additional information has been received by the compiler, which necessitates the following corrections and additions :

JOHN DAWSON came to America under command of General Clinton, 1775. He was at the battle of Bunker Hill, and afterwards joined a corps of cavalry and mounted infantry called the Legion, commanded by Major Tarleton (not Gochran). Himself and wife first settled in Connecticut, on the Shepaug river, in Litchfield county, where they lived several years. They afterwards lived in Fairfield and New Haven counties, and finally removed to Greene county, N. Y., as stated in the record referred to. Their children, all b. in Conn., are now named in the order of birth, as follows :

I. Catharine, who m. JOHN SHARP, and d. aged 36, without issue. II. JOHN CHARLES, b. in Litchfield county about 1785, d. in Greene county, N. Y., aged 46, m. Betsy Benson, and had children : George, David, Ebenezer, Polly, Harriet and Susan. III. Sally, m. WHEELER BEARDSLEY, and had dau. who m. Thomas Ward ; their son, John T. NEW YORK.

Notes relating to early settlers, and records of the families of HENRY DAWSON, of Long Island, ROGER DAWSON, of New York and Staten Island, GEORGE DAWSON, of New York and Michigan, ABRAHAM DAWSON, of New York city and Ithaca, HENRY DAWSON, of Brooklyn and Cohoes, N. Y., JAMES and THOMAS DAWSON, of New York city, JOHN and JAMES S. DAWSON, of Brooklyn, and others.

Unfortunately for his design, the compiler, although residing in or near the city of New York a number of years, has been able to devote but little time to the collection of the records of the families of his name in this locality. Some of the records which are herewith presented are, therefore, imperfect and fragmentary, but the insertion of them in their present state is rendered unavoidable from the fact that an attempt to perfect them now would unduly delay the publication of this work, and their omission would be inconsistent with the spirit in which the work has been undertaken. To the genealogical student the injunction, "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost," is an ever present inspiration. He treasures up every name, fact and date which suggests the possibility of aiding him in his inquiries, of throwing any light upon the history of families or individuals within the line of his investigations.

The following specimen "treasure trove" may be of service to whomsoever shall attempt to do more thoroughly, what the compiler hereof reluctantly leaves to other hands in the field of family research :

One HANS DAWSON was a resident of Broad street, in the city of New York, when the Dutch ruled here. Whence and when came he?¹

THOMAS DAWSON, who described himself as "of the parish of St. Paul, Shadwell, in the county of Middlesex" [England], "marriner, aged nine and thirty years, or thereabouts," made an affidavit dated Feb. 19, 1691, setting forth the condition of affairs in New York, at the time of his arrival, "on or about the eight and twentieth day of January, with Captain Richard Ingoldsby, in the ship Beaver."²

A marriage license was granted to THOMAS DAWSON and Mary Thaxter, by Lord Cornbury, governor of the province, June 9, 1705.³

THOMAS DAWSON was, in 1711, a contributor towards building the steeple of Trinity church.⁴

WILLIAM DAWSON and Elizabeth Read were, upon due filing of a marriage bond, licensed to marry, June 23, 1738.⁵

These were similarly licensed in 1756: April 12, Rachel Cuyler and DENNIS VAN DORSON⁶; April 23, Susannah Dawson and ELIAS ANDERSON; June 7, Mary Dawson and MYNOERT VAN EVERA.

⁵ Bonds were formerly required to be given in New York on obtaining license to marry. They were not required after 1783.—New York Marriages, printed by order of the secretary of state, 1860. All the licenses after mentioned from this source.

⁶ This probably was Van Duursen or Van Dursen; but Dawson was often written Dorson.

In 1758 (June 3), BOSWELL DAWSON and Phebe Pell, were licensed to marry.¹

In 1760, licenses were issued to Eleanor Dawson and JOHN SHERMAN, Nov. 3d; and to VOLKERT DAWSON and Gettrey Denison, Dec. 15th.²

In 1762, a part of the Brevoort Estate, lying north of 16th street, New York, and consisting of 23 acres, was sold to "Mr. DAWSON."³

Marriage licenses were issued to HENRY DAWSON and Catharine Kemper, June 15, 1763;⁴ RICHARD DAWSON and Elizabeth Van Norden, Feb. 28, 1764;⁵ Elizabeth Dawson, and JACOBUS VAN NORDEN, Oct. 14, 1766.

FREDERICK DAWSON was a soldier at Oswego in or before 1764, belonging to the Fourth Battalion of Royal Americans.⁶

JOHN DAWSON was one of several disbanded non-commissioned officers, who petitioned the government, June 13, 1766, praying that money paid to the surveyor general of the Province for their Patents might be refunded,⁷ and JOHN DAWSON was a goldsmith in New York in 1767, having his shop in Old Slip.⁸

JOSEPH DAWSON was one of several who made assignment of their right to bounty lands about this date.⁹

One HENRY DAWSON, a Baptist preacher, arrived in New York "from Dr. Gifford's church, in London," in 1767. He "offered himself to our Association, but being under the censure of his church, was rejected again and again, so that he stands alone, railing at associations and regular ministry." He removed to Newport, R. I., and there reconstituted a church which had fallen to pieces, adding to it a few which he himself baptized. Of the church thus organized his unfriendly contemporary says they "are not likely to hold together long."¹⁰ He appears to have returned to England a few years later, and to have been no better liked there.¹¹

These received license to marry: Rachel Dawson and JOHN REEVES, April 11, 1775; THOMAS DAWSON and Lena Magee, March 6, 1778.

DANIEL DAWSON was a fifer—enlisted for three years, in Col. Peter Gansevoort's company, Third New York Regiment—in winter quarters at Albany from Dec. 1, 1778 to March 15, 1779.¹²

MARY DAWSON of New York, widow, made a will 16 Jan., 1783, which was probated on the 17th of March following, naming a dau. Sarah, w. of David Man, butcher; a dau. Mary, formerly w. of Minard Van Everen (above named Myndert Van Evera), now w. of Archard Getfield; a dao. Susannah, w. of Alias Anderson (Elias Anderson above), and their dau. Elizabeth; a gr. dau. Mary Weeks; a son Richard Dawson, and his sons, Charles and James; and a son Borevelt Dawson (Boswell or Roseville Dawson above named), who was then d. The connection of several of the before mentioned is thus indicated.¹

In 1784 (27th of 10th month) the Friends worshipping in Queen (now Pearl) street, New York, "agreed with NATHAN DAWSON to take care of the meeting-house at £12 per annum."²

JOHN DAWSON, of Glenville, Schenectady Co., m. Jacomyntje Groot, about 1808.³ ABRAHAM DAWSON was a preacher in the Tioga Circuit, Susquehanna District, N. Y., (M. E. Church), and in Canaan Circuit, same district, 1819. "He was a good preacher, but his success was not marked."⁴

No one of the name is mentioned in the first Directory of New York, which was published in 1786.⁵ The Directory of 1790 contains the names of JOHN DAWSON, who was a hair-dresser in Courtlandt st., and of JOSHUA DAWSON, 4 Magazine street. The latter is not afterwards mentioned, but the name of the former reappears until 1805. THOMAS DAWSON, a miner, came in 1791, and was here also the next year; WILLIAM DAWSON, jeweler, was here from 1795 to 1797; THOMAS, a mariner, was here in 1796, 1799, 1803, and 1805 — perhaps absent on voyages the intermediate years; ABRAHAM, also a mariner, appears once only, 1796;⁶ FRANCIS, a boarding-house keeper and ship-broker, was here from 1797 till 1803; TUNIS, a cartman, 1801; JONATHAN, a painter, 1802 and 1806, and JONATHAN B., same occupation, 1808-11; THOMAS, a doctor, from 1802 until 1810;⁷ another THOMAS, blacksmith, 1802 and 1804; ROBERT, a livery stabler, came in 1804, and reappears annually, in same business, for 15 years after, and is still named, without occupation stated, for two years more; SAMUEL, trunkmaker, 1805-15; JOHN, ferry-man, 1805; WILLIAM, mariner, 1806 and 1814; JAMES, ropemaker, 1807; MICHAEL, a mason, 1809 and 1810; ROBERT, a ship-master, 1810-15 and 1818-21; JAMES, a mariner, here in 1815; JOSEPH, tinman, 1815-18, JAMES, same occupation, 1820, and JOSEPH again, 1824; SAMUEL, a mariner, 1815, 1820, and 1821; THOMAS, a marketman or "fruiter," 1815, 1818, and 1819, and THOMAS A., a fruiter, 1822; WILLIAM, a merchant, 1816, was of firm of William Dawson & Co., 1817; GEORGE, book-binder, 1816, was father of Hon. George Dawson, now of Albany, N. Y.;⁸ CALEB, saddler, here in 1818 and 1820; JAMES, cartman, 1819-21; WILLIAM, tailor, 1819, merchant, 1820; ISABELLA, a school teacher, 1820-25; JACOB H., a cabinet-maker, 1822-25;⁹ JOSEPH, tailor, 1822; JAMES, weaver, 1823-1826; JOHN, mariner, 1824, and THOMAS, grocer, 1824-26. It is doubtful if more than two or three of these were natives of this country; they were probably for the most part emigrants from England and Ireland, though Scotland was also represented. But few seem to have established families.

Since 1825, the names of Dawsons in the city Directory, which in that year were eight only, have increased five-fold, and are "too numerous for mention."¹⁰ Among the more prominent have been the English firm of DAWSON BROTHERS (WILLIAM¹¹ and

OF LONG ISLAND, about 1760-1803.

1. HENRY DAWSON, a native of Dublin, Ireland, came to America about 1760, and lived for a time at Jamaica, L. I., but afterwards removed to Brooklyn, where the greater part of his life was spent. He was of good family, and is said to have held a commission at one time in the British army, but to have emigrated because of dissatisfaction with the disposal of his father's estate, which, after the fashion of the country, went chiefly to the eldest son, named John Dawson, which is supposed to have been also the name of the father. In 1774 (Oct 20), his mother, Jane Dawson, then living at Chapel Izod, Dublin county, made a will, in which, having declared her belief that her son John had already had "three times as much" of his father's estate as he was entitled to, she left to him only a small nominal legacy, but provided that her property should go principally to her son Henry, then in the province of New York, and to her daughter, Elizabeth George, of Chapel Izod, "widow of Delancy George, Esq., late Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery." The will also mentioned her daughter's sons, Ramsey and Joshua George; and her own son, William, who had "been long abroad," and for whom she made provision "in case he should ever return."¹ Henry Dawson m. at Jamaica, Miss Morton, a sister of General Jacob Morton, who was for twenty-six years

¹ It is said that he was a lieutenant in the royal army, and went to Montreal. Was he afterwards on Long Island? "Capt. WILLIAM DAWSON m. about 1780 Lydia Hallett, dau. of Samuel Hallett, son of William Hallett, both of Newtown, L. I., and the last named b. in Dorsetshire, England, 1616, removed to Greenwich, Ct., thence to Hellgate, L. I."—Riker's Annals of Newtown, L. I., Art. : Hallett Family, p. 463. the clerk of the common council of the city of New York.¹ His second w. was Elizabeth Comes, dau. of John and Heziah Comes, of Jamaica. They were an English family, in good circumstances.² By his second w. he had six children. One of his name, perhaps himself, was a captain of provincial troops in the king's service some years prior to the Revolution.³ He kept a public house in Brooklyn, near the old ferry, in Doughty street; and in 1789 he was appointed one of the three ferry men of "Brookland Ferry" by the corporation of New York.⁴ In connection with this appointment he is styled "Captain Henry Dawson," which title may have been acquired in the provincial service, as above suggested, or possibly indicated his rank in the British army.⁵ He held the ferry until his death in 1803.⁶ It is said of him, that, "retaining all the sportsmanlike tastes of his early life, he kept a pack of dogs, as well as hunting studs, with which he frequently took 'a brush' in the country around the village of Brooklyn."⁷ He was a subscriber to a fund for building the Academy at Jamaica in 1792.⁸ Some of the family appear to have returned to Jamaica, and to have resided there

⁴ See Stiles' Brooklyn. His house was called the "Corporation House."

⁵ Stiles states that he was a major in the British army.

⁶ The date of his death is incorrectly stated by Stiles to have been 1808. His will, in which he is described as "Henry Dawson, of Brooklyn, Long Island, gentleman," was dated 2 May, 1803, and probated 16 August, in the same year. It mentions his w. Elizabeth, and "youngest daughter, Jane," and refers to "the rest" of his children, but not by name. The w. and John I. Dawson (probably his son, but not so described), were named executrix and executor. George Hicks signed as witness.—(Kings county Surrogate records).

commenced, in Newark, N. J., the manufacture of patent and enameled leather, to which place he removed in the following spring. He sold out this establishment shortly after, and in 1851 erected a new factory, for the manufacture of the same kind of goods, being at this time joined by his father, with whom, and a brother (I. W. Dawson, Esq.), he is now associated in the firm of J. H. & T. W. Dawson & Co., leading manufacturers of that class of goods in Newark. Besides contributing largely to the active management of the very extensive business of this firm, Mr. Dawson is one of the managers and vice president of the Dime Savings Institution of Newark, a director of the City National Bank, one of the directors of the Firemen's Mutual Insurance Company, (of which he was the originator), and vice president of the Stevens and Condit Transportation Company. He is also sole owner of a steamer engaged in the Newark trade. He was for several years a member of the Newark city Board of Education, and was president of the board during the years 1861, '62 and '63. He was president of the city Board of Trade in 1869. FAMILY OF ROPER DAWSON,

OF NEW YORK and STATEN ISLAND, 1758-1771.

1. ROPER DAWSON, son of Major George Dawson, (b. 1689, killed at Carthagena, 1741), was b. in England, bapt. 21 July, 1724, and was of Ferriby Grange, North Ferriby, Yorkshire. His family was of the landed gentry of that shire.¹ He removed from England to New York, and thence to Staten Island, where he d. 14 June, 1771.² It is believed that his w. resided there at the time of their marriage. She was Rachel Burnett, and was b. 17 March, 1739. He was a merchant in New York, as early as 1758.³ They had three children, all minors at the time of their father's death :

- 2-1. George ; m.
- 2-2. Harriet. McDONOUGH.
- 2-3. Charlotte.

2-1. GEORGE DAWSON, m.———, and had :

- 3-1. Alexander, of whom nothing further is known.
- 3-2. A daughter, who m.——COLEMAN.
- 3-3. A daughter, who m. WASHINGTON JACKSON.

² His will, dated 22 March, 1771, probated 15 Aug., 1771, mentions w. Rachel, son George, a minor, and daus. Harriet and Charlotte.

2-2. Harriet Dawson m. THOMAS McDONOUGH, who had been private secretary to Gov. John Wentworth, of New Hampshire. The marriage, for which license was issued July 23, 1778,¹ occurred after he had left Portsmouth. Some time prior to 1800, Mr. McDonough was appointed British Consul at Boston, which office he held until his death in 1805, aged about 65. He was buried at Milton, Mass., in the tomb of his son-in-law, the Hon. Peter O. Thatcher. They had twelve children, for an account of whom see Wentworth Genealogy, vol. 2, p. 380.

FAMILY OF GEORGE DAWSON,

OF NEW YORK AND MICHIGAN, 1816-1849.

1. GEORGE DAWSON (son of George Dawson, a gardener, who d. near Edinburgh, Scotland), was b. in Scotland, 1789. He served his time as an apprentice to the bookbinder's trade with the Constables of Edinburgh, and afterwards removed to Falkirk, where he lived several years. He removed thence to America, arriving in New York in 1816, in which city he remained about two years. In 1818, he removed to Toronto (then Little York) Canada, where he prosecuted his trade for six years, after which he lived, first in Niagara, Canada, and then in Rochester, N. Y., following the same occupation. From Rochester, in 1836, he emigrated to the state of Michigan, where he died (at Royal Oak) in 1849, aged 60 years.¹ He m. in Scotland, Mary Chapman, who d. at Royal Oak, Michigan, in 1841, aged 50. 1733. 1800

1736. 1803. Born in the town of Wethersfield, Conn., Dec. 14, 1803. He was the youngest son of the Rev. Mr. George S. Lawrence, who died in 1859, and whose funeral proceedings preceded his death. His mother was Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence, having a residence in Wethersfield, Conn. He received his education at the Wethersfield academy, and at the University of Vermont, where he graduated in 1824, and had previously pursued a course in the law. The family removing to Rochester, N. Y., he received there an apprenticeship in the office of the Rochester Compiler, of which Hon. Thurlow Weed was the editor. In 1831, Mr. Weed having established on Albany the Evening Journal, Mr. Dawson followed him to that place, and became foreman of the office, which was distinguished by his rationally writing, and regular attendance. In the fall of 1835, and the spring of 1836, when he was absent from Rochester, he edited the Rochester Daily Democrat. In the summer of 1836, he remained until August, 1839, when he assumed the editorial management of the Journal of the Day, Free Advertiser. His publications in 1840 were Practical Treatise on the Diseases of the Eye, and Practical Treatise on the Diseases of the Ear, which offices he held until the publication of the Journal of the Day in 1842, destroyed the establishment. Returning to Rochester, he resumed his position of editor of the Free Advertiser, which he held until August, 1845, when he returned to Wethersfield, to the residence of Mr. Fennell, and became his associate in the editorial management of the Wethersfield Journal, of which paper Mr. Dawson died in 1848. His death was the result of a long illness, and he was interred in the cemetery near Wethersfield, N. Y.

2-2. GEORGE DAWSON, b. in Falkirk, Scotland, March 14, 1813, came with his mother, brother and sister to New York, in 1817-18, the father having preceded them some eighteen months. In 1824 (his family having removed that year from Toronto to Niagara, Canada), he entered as an apprentice to the printing business in the Niagara Gleaner office. He was then but eleven years old, and had previously but scanty educational advantages. The family removing to Rochester in 1826, he entered there an apprentice in the office of the Anti-Masonic Enquirer, of which Hon. Thurlow Weed was the editor. In 1831, Mr. Weed having established in Albany the Albany Evening Journal, Mr. Dawson followed him to that city, and became foreman of the office, which position he held (occasionally writing, and regularly reporting in the legislature) until the spring of 1836, when he was called to the editorship of the Rochester Daily Democrat. In this service he continued until August, 1839, when he assumed the editorial charge of the Detroit, Mich., Daily Advertiser. His political friends, assuming that he was chiefly instrumental in securing that state to the whigs, made him State Printer, which office he held for three years, and until a fire (in 1842) destroyed the establishment. Returning to Rochester, he resumed his position of editor of the Daily Democrat, and continued therein until August, 1846, when he returned to Albany, upon the invitation of Mr. Weed, and became his associate in the editorial management of the Evening Journal, of which paper Mr. Dawson has been senior editor and proprietor since the retirement of Mr. Weed, in 1862. During his connection with it the Journal has been twice named the State Paper, and now holds that designation. In the politics of the state it wields an influence second to that of no paper outside of the city of New York. Indeed, the paper has a National reputation and influence, and Mr. Dawson, in his editorial chair, and as a political manager and adviser, is, like his predecessor and former associate, Mr. Weed, recognized as a "power behind the throne" often "greater than the throne."

Mr. Dawson was, against his protest, appointed postmaster of Albany by President Lincoln in 1861, and held the office for six years, when he resigned, being unwilling to continue under Mr. Johnson's administration, which he opposed.

He united with the Baptist church in Rochester in 1831, and still holds his connection with that denomination, finding great pleasure in Sabbath school and other work incidental to his church relationship.

Mr. Dawson is a disciple of Isaac Walton who should hold a place very near to the heart of the great master of the rod and line. In a knowledge of the habits and haunts of the finny tribes, and in a genuine love of nature, he is excelled by few in these utilitarian days. Of himself, in a letter to the compiler, he says: "What little leisure I have I employ in angling — a recreation of which I am very fond, and which I prosecute with an enthusiasm which my friends find it difficult to comprehend. But as I find in it both health and amusement, I am not sorry to know that the passion grows with my years. I can understand the feelings with which Christopher North lovingly scanned his fly-hook on his death bed." Before the war, Mr. Dawson published in the Journal a series of racy letters entitled "Wood Notes from the Adirondacks." A new series of these delightful sketches of forest life, full of vigorous and piquant description, appeared in 1873.

He m. in June, 1834, Nancy M. Terrell, who was b. in Connecticut. Their children who survived birth, were:

2-3. Ellen Dawson, b. in Falkirk, Scotland, 1815, m. April 4, 1836, JAMES WARREN HOYT, farmer, b. in Norwalk,

¹ "He was wounded in the leg in the assault on Petersburg, and sustained an amputation. He remained in the hospital at Washington for a long time in a most critical condition, but by the end of September was well enough to be brought home. About five weeks ago a large abscess was developed, soon after followed by two more. His system was too much exhausted to sustain the drain upon it, and death put an end to his sufferings. He was in full possession of his faculties until within a few minutes of his death, and expressed full faith and abiding confidence in a happy hereafter. FAMILY OF BENJAMIN F. DAWSON,

OF NEW YORK, about 1823-1866.

1. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN DAWSON, b. in England, about 1808, son of a clergyman of the established church, d. in New York city, June 24, 1866, aged 58. He came to New York while a mere lad, about the year 1823. An obituary thus speaks of him: "Left alone, at the age of fourteen, to battle with the world, his high moral and Christian character enabled him to resist the demoralizing influences of a large city. Industrious and upright in business, he won the respect and confidence of older men. At the age of twenty-four he became a partner in the house of Buchanan, Caulder & Co., one of the largest and most prosperous in the world. In this house he remained until the death of the chief partner dissolved the firm. Subsequently, when the English house of Dennistoun & Co. opened a branch in New York, Mr. Dawson was made one of the partners, and remained in that position until the troubles of 1857, soon after which he retired from business, and through his almost single handed exertions the present firm almost owes its existence. * * * * New York has lost a good and true man."

Mr. Dawson is said to have had three brothers lost at sea; also one who d. of cholera in New Orleans about 1832. He was related to Pudsey Dawson, Esq., of Hornby castle, England,¹ where he spent some months with a son, while on a visit to his native country a few years before his decease.² He had, besides several daughters, two sons, one of whom d. when 18 years of age. The other son is:

FAMILY OF ABRAHAM DAWSON,

OF NEW YORK CITY AND ITHACA, N. Y., 1834-1872.

1. ABRAHAM DAWSON was b. July 10, 1795, at Wisbech, Cambridgeshire, England. His father was a Lincolnshire man, who had emigrated to Wisbech in early life, and m. there Miss Hephzibah Culy, of the locally celebrated Huguenotic family of that name then living on a farm called Guybirn, near Wisbech, which property they still occupy. The father d. in 1799, and at the age of twelve years Abraham Dawson was sent to Gosberton, in the vicinity of Spalding and Boston, Lincolnshire, to learn a trade. He m., May 15, 1820, Miss Mary Barton, b. Nov. 5, 1794, second daughter of John Barton, a respectable farmer of Bicker, of that shire, and settled at Gosberton, where he had born one son and four daughters. Two of the latter d. young, and with the other three children and their mother, he emigrated to the United States, landing in New York city, June 9, 1834. It is said that the chief reason which induced him to emigrate was his dissatisfaction with the government in his native land. Soon after his arrival in this country he removed to Manhattanville, on the upper end of New York island, and commenced the life of a gardener, which business became his permanent occupation. In 1836-37 he was gardener at the Bloomingdale Lunatic Asylum. He removed in the fall of 1837, with his family, to Ithaca, N. Y.,¹ where he resided until his death, which occurred Jan. 13, 1872, in the 77th year of his age. "No more sturdy champion of the truth, as he understood it, ever lived, and no one died more generally lamented by those who knew him. He was a faithful husband, affectionate father and honest man."² His wife d. in Danby, Tompkins Co., N. Y., Dec. 4, 1856. They had seven children :

2-1. HENRY BARTON DAWSON, eldest child and only son of Abraham and Mary Barton Dawson, was b. in Gosberton, Lincolnshire, England, June 8, 1821, and emigrated thence with his parents in 1834 to New York city. He enjoyed good educational advantages in his native place, and after his arrival in New York attended the public schools of that city for some time. In March, 1836, he left school in order to assist his father in his business of gardening, and continued to work with him until the removal of the family to Ithaca, N. Y., in the fall of 1837. In Ithaca, after a short term in the service of Mr. Isaac Bower, wheelwright, he became a clerk in the bookselling and publishing house of Messrs Mack, Andrus and Woodruff. This engagement was succeeded by a clerkship to a resident of Ithaca, engaged in the lumber business, in whose service he returned to New York in April, 1839. In this business he remained under successive employers until May, 1844, after which, until the summer of 1847, he was bookkeeper and cashier to firms engaged in the sale of drugs and patent medicines.

Having loaned some money, in 1845, to the proprietor of The Crystal Fount, a temperance and literary newspaper, he was obliged to take the printing office and paper in payment of his claim. For more than a year, besides attending to his duties as bookkeeper for his employers, he edited and published this paper, being obliged to devote his evenings to the latter employment. Finding this double duty too burdensome, owing partly to failing health, he resigned his situation in 1847, and devoted his whole time to his newspaper. The literary enterprise thus undertaken finally failed, but no doubt had great influence in shaping his future career. While subsequently engaged as agent of the International Art Union and of the American Art Union, and as an officer of the Wall street Ferry Company, the Emigrant Aid

Henry B. Dawson

Company, and of three different insurance companies, his pen was not idle. He early developed a taste for historical studies, particularly those connected with the annals of the city of his adoption. The failure, in 1855, of an insurance company with which he was connected, left him without regular employment, and he accepted an offer from Messrs Johnson, Fry & Co., publishers, to write a work for them on the military and naval history of this country. This was his first book, although he had before become known by The Park and its Vicinity, written for and published in the Manual of the common council of New York city, for 1855; the Life and Times of Anne Hutchinson, written for the Baptist Historical Society; and The Retreats through Westchester, in 1776, written for the New York Historical Society. In accordance with his arrangement with Messrs Johnson, Fry & Co., The Battles of the United States by Sea and Land was published as a serial in forty elegantly printed and illustrated numbers, beginning in the autumn of 1858, and proved very successful. In the progress of this work he was led into a controversy concerning the merits of Major General Israel Putnam, with two literary gentlemen of Hartford. The letters on both sides were afterwards collected in a sumptuous volume which has commanded prices as high as fifty dollars per copy. In 1863-4 he published an edition of The Fœderalist, with much original illustrative matter from his own pen, being the first of a projected series of historical works relating to the constitution of the United States. This enterprise also elicited a heated controversy, in which he was assailed by Hon. John Jay, grandson of one of the authors of the original work, and by James A. Hamilton, son of another of its authors. Mr. Dawson replied to each successively in a manner that showed a ready command of facts which satisfied his friends if not his opponents. Since this time his historical papers have been so numerous as to render impracticable even a mention of their titles in this connection. Several of them, having been printed in limited editions, now command extremely high prices from collectors of works relating to American history and for public libraries.

For every literary undertaking he has prepared himself by the most laborious, conscientious and exhaustive study. He has no sympathy for the current fictions of history, no respect for paper-made heroes and statesmen. The extent, minuteness and variety of his information in regard to the history of our country, and the enthusiasm and perseverance which he carries into new fields of historical research, render him formidable both as a controversialist and critic. For this kind of literature his talents admirably fit him. He wields a vigorous pen, is ingenious and skillful in the use of arguments, and shows himself a remorseless iconoclast, dealing his blows with reckless directness, not heeding the consequences to himself or others.

In 1866 he bought The Historical Magazine, of which he became the editor and publisher. Ten volumes of this magazine having already been completed, he commenced with the first number issued by him, a new and enlarged series, to which he has since contributed many valuable papers. Under his management, which is still (1873) continued, it has attained a very high reputation.

He has been employed by the state authorities of New York to examine and report on the boundaries of that state on the lines of New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and the Vestry of Trinity Church, New York, has manifested its sense of his ability by inviting him to become the historian of that venerable and celebrated parish.

Mr. Dawson's correspondents include most of the historians, and many of the prominent public men — military and civil — in the country. He has been elected a member of numerous historical and statistical societies, and he is the fortunate possessor of one of the largest and best working libraries on American history to be found in the state in private hands.

He was brought up a Baptist of the old school, and is a resolute and uncompromising Calvinist in his religious views. In politics he was originally a Democrat, as he is still according to his own declaration, but he has by no means uniformly adhered to the party claiming to represent Democratic principles in the United States. He is a rigid opponent of a centralized power either at Albany or Washington.

In 1869, having sought to apprentice one of his sons, William M. Dawson, to the bricklayers' trade in Morrisania, he took a bold stand in resisting the unreasonable terms prescribed by the Bricklayers' Union of that place. The son's discharge having been effected through the compulsory action of that association, Mr. Dawson brought civil and criminal suits against certain members of the Union, and succeeded, not only in obtaining judgment against them for the loss of his son's services, but in convicting them criminally, and having them sentenced as conspirators to interrupt trade. His son was already apprenticed and at work in New York, and in these proceedings he was actuated merely by a desire to sustain what he considered to be his right as a citizen to enter into and fulfill, without mischievous interference, a lawful contract with one of his neighbors.¹

In his private relations Mr. Dawson is eminently happy. His manifold engagements do not prevent a due regard to the social amenities of life, and he is apt to take his friends into the inner sanctuary of his affections.

The compiler is indebted to him for many kindnesses during the preparation of this work.

FAMILIES OF JAMES AND THOMAS DAWSON,

OF NEW YORK CITY, 1849-1871.

1. Mr. JAMES DAWSON states that he was b. in Corlea, county Donegal, Ireland, March 17, 1833, and came to America in June, 1849. His father, Michael Dawson, d. in Corlea, Aug. 15, 1842, aged 31 years; his mother was Catharine Dawson, dau. of Daniel Dawson, of Kildoney, county Donegal.¹ He m. in New York, Feb. 19, 1857, Ann Killien, who d. at their ¹ His father's ancestors were originally Dowsons, and were Scotch, but changed the name to Dawson after coming into Ireland. His mother's family claimed to have sprung from the name MacDevitt. "Thus," he says, "I am a double Dawson, or rather a Dowson-MacDevitt-Dawson; but how or why the name of my mother's family became changed from MacDevitt to Dawson I cannot say. This I do know, we are not of English stock. If we were, we might be land owners; but we were all tenants, and haters of English rule." (See remarks on the origin of the name Dowson, page 4, and for explanation of the change of MacDevitt to Dawson—a change in form, merely, for in signification they are the same—see note 1 of same page). His father was son of James Dawson, who d. in Ireland, Aug. 16, 1832, aged 54; son of James Dawson, d. July 10, 1811, aged 56; son of Bernard Dowson or Dawson, b. in town of Athlone, county West Meath, d. in Corlea, May 11, 1768. NEW JERSEY.

For records of several families now of this state see the preceding pages.

Southern New Jersey contained residents of the name at an early day. The following record comprises such information as the compiler has been able to obtain in reference to these families.

FAMILY OF FRANCIS DAWSON,

OF BURLINGTON COUNTY, N. J., 17—.¹

1. FRANCIS DAWSON, a Quaker, was a resident of Northampton township, Burlington county, N. J., 1729, and probably some years earlier. Whence he came is not known, but it is surmised that he may have been of the family of Frances Dawson, who was of Talbot county, Md., 1688; perhaps a son of her son Richard Dawson, who m. Susanna Foster, 1698. (See Maryland records). He m. 9 mo. 19, 1729, Rachel Jess, widow of Zachariah Jess, and dau. of Restore and Rachel Lippincott. Nothing is known as to issue of this marriage, if any; but by a former wife Francis Dawson had children as follows:

- 2-1. Rachel, m. 1737, JAMES SOUTHWICK.
- 2-2. Richard, of whom presently.
- 2-3. Francis, m. 1758, Sarah Southwick.

2-2. RICHARD DAWSON m. Lydia Silver, 1743. They lived at or near Salem, N. J., and had:

- 3-1. Francis, b. 12 mo. 28, 1754, d. April 2, 1824; m.

The following, all of Salem, are supposed to have been also children of Richard and Lydia Dawson, probably b. before Francis. All of them were disowned by the Salem monthly meeting of Friends, at the dates below given, for "outgoing in marriage"—marrying out of the Society. For this reason their further history is not traceable in the records of the Society. They may have been related to the families of our name at Falls meeting, Bucks county, Pa. (See Pennsylvania records). Lydia, one of the supposed daughters of Richard and Lydia Dawson, received a certificate from the Salem meeting, to go to the Falls meeting, 10 mo. 31, 1768, but appears not to have removed, as she was a few years later disowned by the Salem meeting. Richard Dawson and family were granted a certificate by the Salem meeting, 6 mo. 29, 1772, to move to Haddonfield, but it would seem remained in Salem, for the next year (1 mo. 25, 1773) they also were disowned by that meeting, doubtless on account of having been present at the marriage of one of their children where the ceremony was performed by a "priest," as the Friends denominated any minister of the Gospel not of their Society. Disownment was then, among Friends, a common penalty for marrying a non-member, or for being present at any marriage consummated otherwise than by Friends' ceremony. The following are the disownments above referred to of supposed children of Richard and Lydia Dawson :

- 3-2. Ann, disowned as Ann Pedrick, late Dawson, 6 mo. 24, 1767.
- 3-3. Aaron, 4 mo. 27, 1772.
- 3-4. Moses, 4 mo. 4, 1774.
- 3-5. Lydia, as Lydia Cowgill, late Dawson, 7 mo. 25, 1774.
- 3-6. Zedediah, 12 mo. 31, 1787.

3-1. FRANCIS DAWSON, b. 12 mo. 28, 1754, a birth-right member of the Society of Friends, was disowned by the Salem, N. J., meeting, on his twenty-fourth birth-day, 12 mo. 28, 1778, probably on account of his marriage, a few months before (April 12, 1778), to Hannah Beetle. She was his first wife, b. 1757, d. June 21, 1780.¹ They had one child :

- 4-1. Sarah, b. June 14, 1779.

¹ "Hannah Dawson, wife to Francis Dawson, was drowned out of a shallop in the cir of our Lord 1780. It happened the 21st day of Jeun that she was drowned, and was found the 25th day, and was beorred 26 day of Jeun."—Extract from a record, made by Francis Dawson, on the fly leaves of an old volume, published by Joseph

He m. 2d. ("minister North" performing the ceremony), April 2, 1781, Lucy Long, b. Sept. 2, 1761, d. Feb. 20, 1796,¹ dau. of Jonas and Ann Long. They had six children :

In June, 1866, he received the degree of A.M. from the Wabash College, Indiana, and in the same month was ordained and installed pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Lewisburg, Pa. He remained there one year, and accepted a unanimous call to the Seventh Presbyterian church, in New York city. The summer of 1870 he spent in company with his wife in Europe, traveling through England, France, Switzerland and Scotland. After a pastorate of three and a half years in New York city, he removed to Monticello, N. Y., where he remained two years as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that place. In November, 1872, he accepted a unanimous call to the First Presbyterian church, in Brooklyn (now Oakland), near San Francisco, California. In May, 1873, he was a delegate from the Presbytery of San Francisco to the General Assembly in Baltimore, Md. While in New York he was moderator of the Third Presbytery of N. Y., and published a semicentennial discourse on the History of the Seventh Church. Many of his sermons, on various topics, have been published, and he has published several stories, as Ralph Donaldson, Mrs. Thornesdale, etc., also a History of the Ancient Aztecs, and uncounted newspaper articles. PENNSYLVANIA.

For an account of one of the principal families of the name in this state, originally established in Maryland, reference must be had to the Maryland records ; while one of the records which are here inserted concerns families now almost wholly of Maryland, emigration having, in these cases, reversed the relationship to the original (American) ancestors.

A record of the descendants of John and Dorothy Dawson, of Abington, Pa., which should, by reason of priority of settlement, be the first inserted of the Pennsylvania records, is postponed to the close of this work, time being required for further additions and corrections.

Records of several other families, distinct, so far as known, from each other and from those above mentioned, are here added. Altogether, they constitute but a very imperfect record of the families of our name in Pennsylvania, which have been numerous from an early date.¹

The following are various notices of names, as yet unclassified, preserved by way of memoranda for future reference. It is hoped that others more immediately interested may undertake to supply the deficiencies of this work.

The will of EMANUEL DAWSON, mason, of Philadelphia, dated March 31, 1708, proved May 26, 1708, mentions w. Hannah, and children William, Rebecca, Thomas, Charles and Susannah. The wid. sold part of the estate same year. John Dawson, son of Emanuel, d. 3 mo. 29, 1698.

WILLIAM DAWSON, schoolmaster, of Philadelphia,² died about middle of last century ; the widow, Mary, m. Robert Moore, joiner. William

The following marriages are from the records of the old Swedes church (Gloria Dei) at Philadelphia: JAMES DAWSON and Sarah Engle, Dec. 10, 1751; Elizabeth Dawson and JOHN FENBYE, April 21, 1751; DANIEL DAWSON and Hannab Hurst, Jan. 20, 1771; JOHN DAWSON and Margaret Carroll, Oct. 12, 1773; JAMES DAWSON and Elizabeth Neil, April 3, 1774; Sarah Dawson and JAMES BOWCHER, Oct. 18, 1786; Elizabeth Dawson and GEORGE STREATON, April 24, 1788; Mary Dawson and GEORGE BLINFORD, Feb. 28, 1774. No births or deaths recorded.¹

ISAAC DAWSON and JEREMIAH DAWSON were privates in Capt. Thomas Robinson's Co. of Col. Anthony Wayne's Penn. Battalion, at Ticonderoga, Jan. 5, to Nov. 26, 1776.²

ANTHONY DAWSON, was a private in Co. 4, Capt. Rippey, Col. Jerome's Pa. Regt., at Mt. Independence, Nov. 28, 1776.³

SAMUEL DAWSON was appointed captain in the Eleventh Pa. Regt., by the Council of Safety at Philadelphia, Nov. 13, 1776; ⁴ was allowed £1760 for "recruiting service, 1779"; ⁵ died Sept. 25, 1779.⁶ He served under Col. Brodhead, at Pittsburgh.⁷

The annalist remarks on the title of the work as "a curious inadvertency," because it suggests the idea of combining "entertainment" with "psalmody."

¹ Many marriages at the Swedes church and also at Christ church (Episcopal) were of those belonging to other religious sects, as Quakers, Presbyterians and Baptists; consequently no account of the issue of such marriages appears on the records of these churches. WILLIAM DAWSON, a corporal in the continental army, from Bensalem, Bucks Co., Pa., was among soldiers captured by the British, at Fort Washington, New York, Nov., 1776.²

FAMILY OF ROBERT DAWSON,
OF PHILADELPHIA, 1738-1746.

From letters of the late Mordecai L. Dawson, of Philadelphia, 1872, and other sources, the following:

1. ROBERT DAWSON emigrated to this country from Ireland before 1738. He was a merchant, and m. at Christ Church, in Philadelphia, March 5, 1738, Mary Warner. He afterwards united with the Society of Friends, and d. 6 mo. 2, 1746. They had two sons, both b. in Philadelphia:³

³ Possibly also two daughters, viz.: Sydney, who m. JOHN MORRISON, and Mary, who m. J. L. COATES, and had J. R. Coates. The relationship is suggested by Mr. W. F. Corbit, of Philadelphia, 1873, to whom the compiler is indebted for information respecting this family. In 1746 administration was granted in Philadelphia on the estate of one Robert Dawson (b. probably about 1700). The widow, name not given, declined to administer, and others were appointed. This R. D. appears to have been wealthy, and had apparently just arrived with a ship load of goods, or died on the voyage, as the administrators' accounts show that some goods were still on the vessel at his death. Was this the Robert, above named? M. L. D. stated that his ancestor, of this name, "came early in the last century, bringing little with him, save a good character and the regrets of his honest neighbors."

1763, Elizabeth Sugar, b. 1739, d. June 15, 1821, dau. of Thomas Sugar. They had eight children :

3-10. Josiah, b. 9 mo. 1, 1772, d. 8 mo. 29, 1858, aged nearly 86. He never married. See sketch below.

JOSIAH DAWSON (3-10 of this record) was educated a Friend, and went to Jeremiah Paul's school, quite celebrated in those early days. He served an apprenticeship with John and Elliston Perot, well known tradesmen of Philadelphia, but, being of a very timid and retiring disposition, never went into business. He inherited wealth, which by frugality and judicious management, he largely increased. His maternal grandmother was a descendant of Elves Berendtz,¹ a German who emigrated to this country in 1700. She took 20,000 pounds to her husband, which at that time was considered a great fortune. But the fortune of Josiah Dawson was not derived from this source. It partly arose from the great increase in the value of real estate, some of it having been kept for more than one hundred years, the possession of two long lived generations, combining the simplicity of Quakerism with the thrift and saving of the German character. He encouraged the accumulation of property through frugality, by precept and example, but devoted his life and fortune to works of beneficence and charity. By his will, after various private bequests, he gave about $3,000 to the Friend's Asylum for the Insane, $25,000 to the West-

He was a member of the monthly meeting of Friends, of Philadelphia, and one of the executors of the will of the above named Josiah Dawson (3-10). In 1821 he succeeded his grandfather, William Dawson, in his business of a brewer, in which he continued until 1849. He was conspicuous in many charitable and benevolent objects. He was a manager of the Pennsylvania Hospital nearly twenty-eight years, and president of the board of managers sixteen years. He was a director of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb for thirty years, of which he was also vice-president ; a manager for twenty years and vice-president of the Magdalen Society of Philadelphia, and a director of Girard College for fourteen years, being active also in many other benevolent institutions. He m. 11 mo. 10, 1820, Elizabeth Poultney. They had eleven children. :⁴

¹ This lady, with her two elder children, returning from a visit to her parents in 1814, had taken passage with others by sloop across the Chesapeake, when the vessel was captured by the British, and all on board taken prisoners to the flag ship of the British squadron then lying off Tangier's islands. The passengers, among whom were a newly married couple, were detained about two weeks, and in compliment to the bridal pair had several large parties given to them on board the admiral's ship. Dr. Dawson and other gentlemen chartered another vessel, went with it under a flag of truce, and procured the release of all the party, with their effects — the sloop excepted. The lady who was then an infant prisoner still preserves, as a memento of the occasion, a silver spoon presented to her by the admiral.

FAMILY OF JAMES DAWSON,

OF CUMBERLAND and WASHINGTON COUNTIES, PA., before

From Mr. Robert Dawson, Effingham, Ill., 1872, and others, the following :

1. JAMES DAWSON, and his brother Robert,¹ emigrated to America from the north of Ireland before the Revolution. The future wife of James, named Catharine Morrow, and her father came in the same vessel with him. They were married shortly after landing, and settled in Carlisle, Cumberland county, Pa., whence they removed, after a few years, to Washington county, in the same state, where they spent the remainder of their lives on a farm. He died at the age of about one hundred years. They had daughters named Catharine, Sarah, Margaret, Jane and Elizabeth, besides five sons, namely :

- 2-1. Matthew, lived in 1853, near New Wilmington, Lawrence Co., Pa. ; was known as Capt. Matthew Dawson ; had 18 children.

MARYLAND.

The records which follow, relating to the Dawsons of Maryland and their descendants, have been compiled principally from the letters of several correspondents who have kindly communicated such information as they possessed.

The accounts given by these correspondents of the supposed original families, while affording evidence of the common origin of large numbers of the name now widely scattered, differ very materially in many particulars, and are not, without more investigation, capable of being wholly reconciled. An almost entire reliance upon tradition for a knowledge of their early ancestry in this country has led many into error in regard to their family history. A careful examination of the records of Maryland deeds and wills — especially in the counties of Talbot, Caroline, Queen Anne, Prince George, Alleghany and Montgomery — would doubtless be fruitful of most valuable information for the genealogist, and supply many links now wanting in the chain of family history herewith imperfectly presented. It is to be hoped that some competent hand will ere long attempt the task.

The question, Who was the first of the name in Maryland? has not been satisfactorily determined. It appears to be pretty certainly established that there were two families of Dawsons in the then province of Maryland at a very early date — one on the east shore of the Chesapeake, in Talbot county — and one on the western side, probably in Prince George county — both probably some time before 1700.

JOHN DAWSON, of Talbot county, is said by one of his descendants (probably on the authority of tradition, which is always open to question, but entitled to consideration until disproved by better evidence) to have emigrated from England to America about the year 1685. He made a will in 1710, being then “very sick and weak in body,” wherein he refers to his wife, their family of five minor children, to his brothers

James, Richard and Robert, their sister Rachel, and his "loving father, Ralph Dawson, deceased." It would seem almost certain that his father died in this country. If his family were nearly related to the one which settled on the opposite side of the Chesapeake, the relationship does not as yet appear.

According to the best information as yet obtained the founder of the Prince George county family of Dawsons was also named JOHN DAWSON. He doubtless came from England, but whether from Whitehaven, in Cumberland county (as one says is the traditional story), or from Yorkshire (as says another), is not known. He is reputed to have come with two brothers, named (as one believes, but it is not certain), Nicholas and William, who are said to have gone South — "to Georgia and the Carolinas" — while John, the eldest, remained in Maryland. The two brothers who "went South" are supposed by some to be the ancestors of the Dawsons in that part of the country; but those of the name there, best informed in matters of family history, trace their descent from other originals. Another account names Nicholas and John only as the original emigrants, bringing them into Maryland by way of Philadelphia, supposes them companions of Penn, and retains Nicholas in Maryland, while John is sent South; his descendants being supposed to be "now in nearly all the Southern States." By another account, another John, of another group of brothers, is the ancestor of the southern branch of the family, especially of the Georgia Dawsons, prominent among whom was the late Hon. William C. Dawson, United States senator from that state. But this account also is incorrect,¹ and it is indeed highly improbable that there was in this country of the generation of the original settler — John Dawson, ancestor of the Montgomery county families — any other than himself.

¹ Equally erroneous is another account which supposes the late senator was descended from William Dawson (said to have emigrated to Georgia) son of William, son of John, son of Ralph Dawson of Talbot county. (This account states that William m. Sarah Russell; also that their son William m. a Miss Carribean, of Queen Anne Co., and emigrated to Georgia, and supposes him the senator's ancestor).

FAMILY OF RALPH DAWSON,

OF TALBOT CO., MD. (deceased before 31 July, 1710).

The records of this family are gathered from the two wills below printed, and from letters of Dr. James Dawson, of St. Michaels, Talbot Co., Philip T. Dawson, Esq., of Baltimore, Md., and others.

I. Copy of the will of John Dawson, of Talbot Co., 1710.

“ In the Name of God, Amen. I, John Dawson, of Talbot county, in the Province of Maryland, Gentleman, being very sick and weak in body, but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be to God therefor, calling unto mind the mortality of the body, and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to dye, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament, that is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hands of God who gave it, and for my body I recommend it to the earth, to be buried in a Christianlike and decent manner, at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting but at the general Resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God, and touching such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this Life, I give, devise and dispose the same in the following manner and form :

“ Imprimis : I give and bequeath to my son John and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten the upward or eastward moiety of all the Lands I am now possessed with lying on St. Michaels River, and I will and bequeath to my loving wife Mary Dawson the other moiety of the said Land [with the use of the house to¹] dwell in during her life, and my will is y^t. my said wife shall keep the dwelling house in good order and repair and give such security for so doing as Mr. Matthew Tilghman Ward and Robert Ungle shall think fitt, within twelve months after the date hereof.² And after the decease of my said wife my will is that all the above mentioned Lands and Tenements given to her during her natural life shall go to my said son John and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten forever."

² The date of the probating of this instrument is not known. It was evidently made in the expectation that the testator would not long survive.

[Clause providing that in case John should die without issue the lands and tenements above specified should go to the testator's son William, and in default of issue to him then to the testator's son Ralph, and in case he should die without issue then to the testator's daughter Susannah, and she dying without issue then to his daughter Elizabeth, &c.— nothing however to prejudice the testator's wife in the possession of her moiety during life.]

"Item. If it should so happen that when my son John arrives arrives at the age of twenty-one years he should marry or that my wife and he should not agree,¹ then my desire is that my said wife shall cause to be built finisht for my said son (on his moiety of the above said lands) one dwelling house with two rooms on a floor, which shall be such a house as Mr. Matthew Tilghman Ward and Robert Ungle (who if then living I desire to take the trouble on them) shall appoint.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son William all the Land due to me in Gallaway Neck, part of Gallaway, part of Batchelour's Range, part of Batchelour's Range addition and Halton's Hope, to him the said William and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten," [and in case of death without issue the land to go to Ralph, Susannah, Elizabeth and John, and next heirs, successively.]

"I give to my son Ralph Dawson all the Land on the other side Gallaway where Charles Sinclair now dwells, to him and heirs forever ; but if it should happen that my son Ralph should die before he arrives at twenty-one years of age, then my will is that the aforesaid Land shall go to my daughters Susannah and Elizabeth and their heirs, to be equally divided betwixt them when they come of age, or at the day of their marriage, and if either of them die without heirs, then to the survivor and her heirs forever.

"Item. I give to my loving brother, James Dawson, all the right, title interest and claim which I have or ought to have of in or to a certain tract of land lying on St. Michaels Creek, called by the name of Frith Land, to him and his heirs forever.

“Item. I give to my son John and my daughter Susannah one negro man named Tom, one negro woman called Judith, two negro children called Mingo and Grace, and all the increase of the said negroes, to be equally divided betwixt my said son and daughter when they come at due age, and if my said daughter should be disposed of in marriage before my said son is at age, then a division may be made for her part, and the residue with their increase kept in hands of my executors till my said son arrives at age (provided nevertheless that the first child which shall be born of the above named negro Judith I do hereby give and bequeath to my son Ralph, notwithstanding my general bequest of the whole increase of the said negroes) and further my will and order is, that if my son John should die before he arrives at the age of twenty-one years or my said daughter Susannah before she arrives at due age or marries, then only the four first named negroes shall go to the survivor, and all the increase except the negro given to Ralph (if any such there be) shall be equally divided amongst all my children, the said Ralph coming in for an equal share over and above the said negro (if any such there be).

“Item. I give to my son William and my daughter Elizabeth two negro children called Peter and Ann, with all their increase, to be equally divided betwixt them when my said son shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years, or when my said daughter shall be disposed of in marriage, but if my said son William should die before he arrives at the said age, or my said daughter Elizabeth before she arrives at due age or is married, then my will is that the said negroes and their increase shall go to the survivor and his or her heirs forever.

“Item. All the rest of my estate whether real or personal or of what nature soever, I do hereby give and bequeath to my loving wife Mary Dawson, under such restrictions and limitations as is hereafter mentioned. First, I order that my said wife pay to each of my children before named, when the boys arrive at twenty-one years of age and the girls at due age or be married (which shall first happen), forty pounds in current money of this province or in such commodities as this country affords, and I do further order my said wife to give to my son John and daughter Susannah each a bed and furniture of about six pounds price. Secondly, I do further order my said wife and my other executors hereafter named to pay to my two brothers Richard and Robert Dawson five thousand five hundred pounds of tobacco, in such manner as to my said executors shall seem meet, provided the said payment be made within twelve months after the date of this my last will and testament, the said tobacco being to be equally divided betwixt my said two brothers, as was desired by my loving father Ralph Dawson deceased.

“Item. And whereas the Land called Batchelour’s Range addition is supposed to be foul of some elder surveys, whenever the bounds of the said land shall be ascertained, so that the said tract of land shall have its due meets and bounds, according to Patent, then I do hereby empower and authorize my executors hereafter named to make over and convey to Rachel the daughter of my father Ralph and her heirs or assigns, about one hundred acres of the said tract of land, so to be laid out as may least prejudice the land given to my children William and Ralph.

“Item. I do moreover desire and request my executors hereafter named that if any difficulty should arise in the executing any part of this my last Will and Testament, that they will apply themselves to my loving friends Mr. Mathew Tilghman Ward and Robert Ungle, who I doubt not will aid assist and advise them to the best advantage of my loving wife and children, and I do hereby request my said two friends to give all the help and assistance to my said executors that they are capable of.

“Lastly. I do hereby appoint my loving wife Mary Dawson and my loving brother James Dawson, to be my executors of this my last Will and Testament, and I do hereby utterly disallow, revoke and make null and void all and every other former Testament, Will, Legacy or Codicil whatever by me made willed or bequeathed, ratifying and confirming this and no other to be my last Will and Testament.

“In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal the Thirty-first day of July in the ninth [year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Anne, by the Grace] of God of Great Britain France [and Ireland] Queen, Defender of the Faith, Anno Domini, 1710.

(signed) JOHN DAWSON. [L.S.]

“Signed, sealed, delivered, published, pronounced and declared per John Dawson to be his last Will and Testament in presence of us :

ABIGAIL WISE,
JAIRUS WRIGHT.”

II. Copy of the will of William Dawson, of Queen Anne's Co., Md., 1759.

“In the Name of God, Amen. I, William Dawson, of Queen Anne's county, Planter, doth give dispose of and in the following manner and form.

“Imprimis. I give and bequeath to my son William Dawson all the land called Huntington that I hold, and seventy-eight $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of the Neglect and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten forever.

“Queen Ann’s County, }
The first day of February, 1760. }

“Thomas Clayland, Edmund Thomas, jr., Arthur Emory, and Sarah Young, the subscribing witnesses to the foregoing Will, being duly and ‘solomly’ sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, do depose and say That they saw the Testator, William Dawson, sign the foregoing Will, and heard him publish and declare the same to be his last Will and Testament, that at the time of his so doing he was, to the best of their apprehension, of sound and disposing Mind and Memory, and that they subscribed their respective names as witnesses to the said Will in the Presence of the Testator and at his Request. Which oath was taken by the said witnesses in the presence of William Dawson, heir at law of the Testator, which same William Dawson did not object to the Probate of said Will.

of Queen Ann’s County.”

Letters of Administration, as to the Estate of the deceased not disposed of by will, were issued to Sarah Dawson and William Dawson, March 9, 1760.

III. Record.

1. RALPH DAWSON, deceased before 31 July, 1710, mentioned in the will of his son John of that date (see foregoing copy.) He had children :

2-1. John, the testator in the will of 1710.

2-2. James, executor, with the wife of John, of the latter’s will.

2-3. Richard, }

2-4. Robert, } legatees, named in their brother’s will.

2-5. Rachel. }

2-1. JOHN DAWSON, of Talbot county, son of Ralph, made will 1710, probably then under 50 years of age, his five children being then all minors. He is said to have emigrated from England to America about 1685. If so, probably came with or was accompanied by his father. His lands, situated on the eastern shore of the Chesapeake, are said to have been a grant, taken up under the proprietary government of Lord Calvert. He was of the class termed Gentlemen in England — being of those holding a middle rank between the nobility and yeomanry — and was of considerable estate. He m. Mary —, and had five children, all of whom were minors at the date of their father’s will, in 1710 :

3-1. John.

3-2. William.

3-3. Ralph.

3-4. Susannah.

3-5. Elizabeth.

3-2. WILLIAM DAWSON, of Queen Anne’s county, son of John, was under age 1710, made will December, 1759, and died before Feb. 1, 1760, at which date the will was probated. He was probably 60 years of age, or more, at his death. It is probable that his children were all then of age. One of his daughters was married, and he appointed his son William one of his executors. A portion of the estate left by him was inherited from his father. He m. Sarah ———, and had nine children :

- 4-5. ¹ William, executor, with his mother, of his father's will.
- 4-6. John.
- 4-7. Thomas.
- 4-8. James.
- 4-9. Parry.
- 4-10. Robert.
- 4-11. Mary THOMAS.
- 4-12. Rebecca.
- 4-13. Sarah.

[Note. Dr. James Dawson, of Talbot county, writing under date of March 8, 1871, refers to John Dawson (2-1) son of Ralph (1) as his great grandfather, and says: "I am the son of John, who was the son of John, who was the son of John, who was the son of Ralph." He also says that his father "had uncles named William, George and Robert [Dawson] of Queen Anne county." In another letter he states that his father, John Dawson, died in 1854, aged 84; he consequently was born in 1770. Now, the children of John Dawson, the son of Ralph, were all born before 1710, and of these the eldest was named John, and was probably 15 years of age or more at that date. This could hardly have been the grandfather of Dr. Dawson, as he supposes, as it is not probable he would have had a child born as late as 1770 (he being then, if indeed living, about 85 years of age). A link therefore seems to be lacking, which being supplied would make Dr. D one generation further removed from the original emigrant. The record of the family of his grandfather, John Dawson, will be given presently. The great grandfather's children were, of course, John (the Dr.'s grandfather), and William, George and Robert (the Dr.'s father's uncles). Now, who was the father of these four? It is probable that he was John (3-1 of the foregoing record) the grandson of Ralph: being the son of Ralph's son John, (2-1 of record) and brother to William, of Queen Anne county (3-2 of record). Assuming this to have been the case, the record will proceed as follows 2:]

5-4. THOMAS RUSSELL DAWSON, was b. in Talbot county, Md., July 15, 1780. He conducted for many years a very successful business in Baltimore as a merchant tailor, from which he retired in 1834. The two following years were passed upon a farm in Talbot county, and the remainder of a very peaceful, but useful and most exemplary life, was spent in Baltimore, where he d. Aug. 20, 1862, aged 82.

"Mr. Dawson was small in stature, with a well knit frame, capable of enduring fatigue. He was a great walker, having been known to go on foot seventeen miles in one day, after he attained his sixtieth year. His features were rather prominent, and the expression was one of firmness and benevolence. He delighted in the company of friends, and was unusually talkative. In his earlier life he was an ardent whig, and a great admirer of Henry Clay. Although he never sought office he was devotedly attached to his political party, and made strenuous efforts, as an individual, to promote its success. Just and upright in all his dealings, he passed a long life without a stain. Litigation was abhorrent to his feelings, and he was always ready to compromise, or suffer loss, rather than resort to law. 'Seek peace and pursue it' was the law of his life. Pure in his principles, simple in his tastes, quiet in his manners, and a great lover of truthfulness, he enjoyed the confidence of those who knew him. In his younger days he was strongly inclined to the tenets of the Society of Friends, but after his children grew up and most of them attached themselves to the Methodist church, he generally worshipped with them, uniting with the church, however, only quite late in life."¹ He m. in Baltimore, 1861, Catharine Sumwalt, who was b. in Baltimore, Feb. 23, 1787, ¹ "Among my earliest recollections is that of seeing him bowed daily in prayer. He was doubtless a servant of God, but always timid, and fearful of making a profession of godliness. He never thought himself good enough to belong to the church. Toward the end of his pilgrimage, however, he became more trustful, and finally, when near eighty, united with the M E church, and enjoyed the ordinances of the sanctuary. His last days were his best, and his end was peace. For some years before his death the powers of nature gradually failed, and without any special form of disease, he quietly passed from earth, we trust to a better home, a few weeks after he entered on his eighty-third year. His wife, Catharine, was a meet partner for such a husband. Her days were spent in faithful attention to home duties. 'A good wife, and a good mother' might well be her epitaph. She was an humble Christian for many years, and like her dear husband gradually faded out of life in a good old age. Their tombstones, side by side in the cemetery, proclaim the remarkable coincidence that they were both of one age at the time of their decease, each being eighty-two years, one month and five days old." ² Dr. Dawson believes that the family to which he belongs was "the earliest of the name in the state, perhaps in the country"; and with just pride in an honorable ancestry, whose descendants, coming of a strong and vigorous stock, have increased and flourished through many generations and under all political conditions, he remarks: "We are a very numerous family throughout the country, in the western as well as in the middle and southern states. My family have lived under a monarchical, colonial, and thank God, now, after a bloody struggle, a republican government,

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF PRINCE GEORGE COUNTY, MD., about 1700.

From Geo. W. Dawson, Esq., of Dawsonville, Md.; Hon. John Dawson, of Uniontown, Pa.; Mrs. Louisa Dawson Patterson, of Pittsburg, Pa.; Mr. John B. Dawson, of Calcutta, Ohio, and others, the following:

1. JOHN DAWSON is said to have emigrated from the north of England sometime before 1700. Whether he came from Whitehaven, in Cumberland,¹ or from Yorkshire,² is uncertain. By some he is said to have gone into Maryland by way of Philadelphia, where he tarried for a while; others understand that he emigrated directly to Maryland. It is a tradition, not, however, sustained by any facts which have come to the knowledge of the compiler hereof, that he was accompanied by two brothers named Nicholas and William.³ Possibly two sons thus named were the traditional brothers. He is said to have emigrated when a young man, and to have been quite advanced in years when he died. His death is supposed to have occurred before 1720, from the fact that his son Thomas, who died in 1800, aged 92, and was, consequently, born in 1708, barely remembered the event as one which happened in his childhood.

He married Rebecca Doyne, daughter of John Doyne, an Irish gentleman, who had a grant of land on Chickamoxon creek, in Charles county, about thirty miles below the place where the city of Washington now is. They settled on Broad creek, near the Potomac river, about twelve miles below the site of Washington, in Prince George county, where he died. Mr. G. W.

³ Mr. G. W. D. says, 1854, these "went south, to Virginia and the Carolinas, and from them the Dawsons of those states, Georgia, and the other southern states, are descended. One of the brothers, Nicholas, I suppose, left a son named Nicholas, in Maryland, whose descendants still live near the Point of Rocks (Loudon Co., Va.)." The supposition in regard to the Georgia and Carolina families, is, as has been already stated, erroneous. The Nicholas Dawson referred to was probably son, not brother, of John Dawson, the emigrant.

D. says there were, of the issue of this marriage, besides a daughter named Eleanor, four sons named John, George, William, and Thomas; and he adds: "There may have been, and I think it likely there were, other children of John and Rebecca Doyne Dawson, but of this I am not certain." Hon. J. D. mentions, of this family, John, George, Thomas and Nicholas, thus omitting William, named in the list first quoted, and adding Nicholas. Probably both names should be retained, and thus we have issue of John and Rebecca Doyne Dawson as follows:

- 2-1. John, who, according to Mr. G. W. D.'s information, "died in early life, unmarried."¹
- 2-2. George, resided in Montgomery Co., ancestor of Pennsylvania families.
- 2-3. William, d. in early life, unmarried.²
- 2-4. Thomas, b. in Prince George Co., 1708, d. Aug., 1800, aged 92, ancestor of Montgomery Co. families.
- 2-5. Nicholas, ancestor of Loudon Co., Va., families.
- 2-6. Eleanor, who m. a gentleman named BAYNE.³

2-2. GEORGE DAWSON resided in Montgomery county, near where the city of Washington now stands. He m. Ann Lowe, sister of the w. of his brother Thomas.

¹ Hon. J. D. erroneously supposed that the above named John Dawson "emigrated to Georgia, and was grandfather of Senator Dawson."

² This from G. W. D., who supposed one of this name went South. Did he not move, with his brother George, into Pennsylvania? William Dawson is named in a list of settlers in Fayette county, then called Springhill township, forming a part of Bedford county, 1772.—Veech's The Monongahela of Old, p. 200.

Since this record was arranged a different account of the original of the family has reached the compiler, communicated by Mr. Augustine M. Dawson, Calcutta, Ohio, 1873. He states that the founder of the family in Maryland was THOMAS DAWSON, who, between 1630 and 1640, "came to Maryland clothed with the second office in the state," Lord Baltimore being governor. Dawson "had a grant of two manors of land, to be selected in any place where the land was unoccupied, and he located one near Port Tobacco, on the Potomac, below Washington, and the other in Montgomery county, each manor consisting of some thousands of acres. Title to the first described tract long since passed out of the family, but of the second a portion yet remains in the Dawson name. Thomas Dawson, 2d, laid out a town on this tract called Dawsonville; he lived to be 103 years old; and his son Thomas" (presumed to be 2-4 of the above record) "died there, being 93 years old."—But the Thomas last named appears to have given a different account of the family, and that his father's name was John, not Thomas, was clearly a fact derived from him. It may be noted that the second Lord Baltimore received his grant from King Charles in 1682, but never resided in Maryland. His brother Leonard was his lieutenant, and arrived in 1634.

Mr. G. W. D. wrote, 1854, as follows: "George had a large family. He lived in this county [Montgomery] not far from the present city of Washington, and died there. One of his sons, named Benjamin, married and died in early manhood, leaving an only son named Abraham, now quite an old man, widower and childless, living in this county. A daughter of George also married in Maryland, and some of her descendants, of almost every name, still reside in this state. After his death, his widow, with the rest of his children, removed to western Pennsylvania, and settled at what was then called Red Stone, now Brownsville. If I am correctly informed, the Hon. John L. Dawson, now member of Congress from that district of Pennsylvania, is a descendant of the Dawsons then so emigrating from Maryland. This emigration took place, as near as I can learn, some time about the date of the Revolution — say 1775 — a few years earlier or later." In the same year (1854) Hon. J. D., uncle to Hon. J. L. D., above named, wrote as follows: "My father was a native of the state of Maryland, but died while I was an infant. He migrated with his father, George Dawson, to the southwestern part of Pennsylvania, then supposed to be within the limits of Virginia. This was about 1770. My father's name was Nicholas Dawson, and his mother's maiden name was Lowe. He was born in Montgomery county, near Washington." No doubt the latter account is correct. George Dawson was named as a resident of Tyrone township in 1772, which then embraced a part of what is now Fayette county, Pa.¹ When he accompanied his family on their migration westward he must have been upward of sixty years of age. His life was therefore mainly spent in Maryland, where his children probably all grew to maturity. He may have had others besides the following :

- 3-1. Benjamin, father of Abraham, both above named.
- 3-2. Nicholas, removed with his father to Pa., d. in Va. ; m.
- 3-3. Henry, said to have "emigrated to the west." (Western Pa. or Ohio).
- 3-4. John, removed with his father to Pa. ; m.
- 3-5. Verlinda, d. in Washington Co., Pa. MOORE.
- 3-6. Eleanor, m. JOHN SWEARINGEN.
- 3-7. Rebecca, m. DANIEL SWEARINGEN.
- 3-8. Elizabeth, m. WM. SWEARINGEN, lived in Fayette Co., Pa.¹
- 3-9. Nancy, m. THOMAS DAWSON, son of Benoni (3-11).
- 3-10. A daughter remained in Maryland and "intermarried with a Mr. GARRETT ; some of her descendants live in Frederick county." (J. D., 1854). "One son and two daughters remained in Maryland." (G. W. D., 1871).

2-4. THOMAS DAWSON, b. at Broad Creek, in Prince George county, Md., 1708, m. Elizabeth Lowe, dau. of John Lowe, of that county, ancestor of the late Governor Lowe, of Maryland. He d. in Montgomery county, Md., August, 1800, aged 92. They had ten children, named in the order of birth, as follows :

- 3-11. Benoni, b. 1742, d. in Beaver Co., Pa., May 6, 1806 ; m.
- 3-12. Mary, m. BENJAMIN MACKALL, whose sisters m. Benoni and Nicholas L.
- 3-13. Sarah, m. WILLIAM BLACKMORE.
- 3-14. Eleanor, m. LAWRENCE ALLNUTT.
- 3-15. Nicholas L., b. 1751, d. in Montgomery Co., Md., 1831 ; m.
- 3-16. Verlinda H., m. JAMES ALLNUTT, brother to Lawrence.
- 3-17. Robert Doyne, b. 1758, d. in Montgomery Co., Aug., 1824 ; m.
- 3-18. Elizabeth, d. unm.
- 3-19. Rebecca, m. BENJAMIN MACKALL, nephew to the above named. (See forward).
- 3-20. Jane, m. WEAVER JOHNS.

2-5. NICHOLAS DAWSON, of Prince George county, brother of George and Thomas, above named, appears to have been the ancestor of the Dawsons of Loudon county, Va., and other families. His w. was Martha Ann —, who d. Jan. 28, 1795, in her 80th year. They had :

- 3-21. Nicholas, b. in Prince George county, June 14, 1750, d. in Frederick Co., Md., March 18, 1806 ; m.
- 3-22. Charles, d. in Dearborn Co., Indiana ; *m.*²

² Nicholas Dawson had, it is supposed, several children. There is some doubt as to whether Charles (3-22) was his son, but he was of Loudon county, Va., b. in Maryland, and probably of this connection.

3-1. BENJAMIN DAWSON, lived in Montgomery Co., Md., m. and d. in early manhood, leaving an only son :

4-1. Abraham, who was living in same county, 1854, at an advanced age, a widower, and childless.

3-2. NICHOLAS DAWSON (son of George, 2-2), b. in Montgomery county, Md., near the city of Washington, removed with his father's family to the southwestern part of Pennsylvania, then supposed to be within the limits of Virginia, about the year 1770. He must have been then of age or nearly so, and he was in 1772 the owner of 300 acres of "uncultivated lands" in Tyrone township, forming a part of what is now Fayette county, Pa.¹ A few years later he was a volunteer in Crawford's expedition against Sandusky.² He m. Violet Littleton, dau. of John and Violet Littleton, of Westmoreland, England, and had in 1783 taken up his residence on what was acknowledged Virginia soil — now known as the "pan-handle"³—where he d. about 1800. They had two sons :

4-3. John, b. July 13, 1788, res. 1873, at Uniontown, Pa.; m.

3-4. JOHN DAWSON, (son of George, 2-2) m.— and removed west. He settled in Champaign county, O., some time before the war of 1812, and d. at Urbanna, in that county, about 1860, aged nearly 100 years. He had, besides four daus., four sons, named as follows :

4-4. Harry.

4-5. William, b. July 20, 1778, d. in Pa., Sept. 10, 1853; m.

4-6. Thomas, removed to Natchez, Miss., and d. there leaving one child — a dau.

4-7. John, d. in Champaign Co., about 1830; m.

They were stern partisans of Virginia in the boundary controversy, and removed several times to secure a residence within the limits of that commonwealth, although they never relinquished their possessions in Fayette county."—From a Sketch by Chauncey F. Black, Esq., intended to be introductory to a collection of Speeches of Hon. John L. Dawson. (Unless Nicholas Dawson went back to Maryland for his bride, it seems doubtful whether he m. there. Their eldest child was b. in 1783, some 13 years after the date of his emigration to Pa.)

3-5. Verlinda Dawson (eldest dau. of George, 2-2), m. AUGUSTINE MOORE, of Kent Co., Md. They lived at Brice-land's Cross Roads, Washington county, Pa., where both d. at an advanced age. They had nine children:

- 4-8. Rachel, b. Aug. 31, 1777, d. near Calcutta, O., July 19, 1846, aged 68, w. of NICHOLAS DAWSON, son of Benoni (3-11).
 4-9. William, m. Susan Maxwell, lived in Wellsville, Columbiana Co., O., where both d., he aged about 83; they had six sons and four daus., all m. but one dau.
 4-10. John, never m.; was a river man, and d. in La.
 4-11. Elizabeth, m. DANIEL McCONNELL, blacksmith; both d., children live in Tuscarawas Co., O.
 4-12. Asenath, m. JOHN JACKSON, both d. in Knoxville, Knox Co., Ill.; several children.
 4-13. Verlinda, d. at Brice-land's Cross Roads, aged 25; unm.
 4-14. Eleanor, m. JOHN McCONNELL; they res. 1873, near Brice-land's Cross Roads, Washington Co., Pa.; several children.
 4-15. Mary, m. CHARLES HAY, and removed to Ashland Co., O., where he d., and she res. 1873; one son, Joseph J., res. New Orleans, La.
 4-16. Rebecca, m. GILBERT COOL; they res. 1873, near Clinton, Alleghany Co., Pa.

3-11. BENONI DAWSON, b. 1742, m. in Md., Rebecca Mackall, and about the year 1782¹ emigrated to western Pennsylvania (now Fayette county) where he joined the family of his uncle George Dawson (2-2), who had gone before him. After a brief halt in that neighborhood he went further west, (Sept., 1790²) and settled in the lower corner of what is now called Beaver county, Pa., the village of Georgetown being on his land. He took with him from Maryland his family, cattle and slaves,³ and while tarrying in Fayette county sent men on to Beaver county to clear land for a homestead. A cabin was built on Mill creek bottom, near the Ohio river, and about ten acres planted with corn. He moved by water, but his sons and slaves went by land, and drove the stock. He was a member of the Episcopal church, "a good man to the poor," and one of those strong, wise, just men whose influence is widely felt for good, especially in a new community, as a counselor

GEORGE W. DAWSON, Esq. (4-42 of this record), was educated to the legal profession, and in early life was somewhat engaged in the practice ; but having no fondness for it he soon relinquished it, keeping up, however, a nominal connection with the bar, and sometimes, though not often, taking part in the trial of causes in which his personal friends were interested. He has devoted no small part of his life to public matters, having been frequently honored by his neighbors with public trusts. He has repeatedly represented his county of Montgomery in the state legislature, has been presiding justice of the court of Probate, trustee of public schools, trustee of the poor, poormaster, justice of the peace, etc. ; also a collector of Internal Revenue of the United States for the Fifth District of Maryland, and state assessor of Montgomery county.

Writing under date of Feb. 13, 1871, Mr. Dawson says : " For the last two years I have held no public trust — shall never, I hope, hold another. For nearly forty years before the death of my brother Joseph we lived together, jointly engaged in farming and milling. His death terminated our partnership, and unwilling at three score years and ten to commence, as it were, the world anew, I sold my farm to my nephew, and make my home with him. I have never married. I live at the family homestead, and am less than four miles from the Virginia line." (Dawsonville, Md.). To this gentleman the compiler hereof

5-2. Hon. JOHN LITTLETON DAWSON² (son of George 4-2), was b. at Uniontown, Fayette county, Pa., Feb. 7, 1813. His father removed to Brownsville during his infancy. He received a liberal education, pursuing his studies successively at Jefferson College, Pa., Kenyon College, Ohio, and Washington College, Pa., receiving his degree at the latter. While at these institutions he applied himself with special care to the studies and arts which have relation to public speaking. At Kenyon he was the contemporary of Judge David Davis, now of the Supreme Court of the United States, and of the late Edwin M. Stanton, with both of whom, though divided from them in political sentiment, he ever maintained relations of personal friendship. Endowed by nature with abilities of a high order, with wit, humor and geniality in large degree, with an imposing person, graceful and dignified manners, a voice of great power and melody, an energy of character which never flagged, and a flow of spirits which never ebbed, Mr. Dawson seemed born for public life, and destined to a distinguished career.

He read law in Uniontown, under the direction of his uncle, the Hon. John Dawson, and was admitted to the bar in 1836. In 1838 he was appointed by Governor Porter, Deputy Attorney

John A. Wilson

John L. Dawson

General for Fayette county, and in 1845, by appointment of President Polk, he became United States Attorney for the Western District of Pennsylvania. This position he filled with marked ability until 1849. In 1848 he was the candidate of the democratic party for Congress in the district then composed of Fayette, Green and Somerset counties, but was defeated. He was renominated in 1850, and after a spirited canvass, elected on the same ticket a representative from this district to the thirty-second Congress. He was instantly recognized as a powerful accession to the democratic side of the house, and took a high place among the leaders of that party. In 1852 he was again nominated and elected by a district composed of Fayette, Washington and Greene counties. During the latter term he served as chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, which then had charge of a variety of business now divided between the committees on Agriculture, Public Lands, and Pacific Railroads. After a few years of voluntary retirement from public life, he was elected to Congress for a third term, from Fayette, Westmoreland and Indiana counties, in 1862, and reelected from the same district in 1864. At the expiration of this term he declined another nomination. He was a frequent member of the state and national conventions of his party; a delegate to the conventions which nominated Mr. Polk for the presidency in 1844, Mr. Cass in 1848, Mr. Pierce in 1852, and of the Cincinnati convention of 1856, at which latter he made the speech, acknowledging, on behalf of Pennsylvania, the nomination of Mr. Buchanan for the presidency. He was also a member of the Charleston convention of 1860, and the New York convention of 1868. He was appointed governor of Kansas, by President Pierce, in 1855, but his strong local and home attachments induced him to decline the office, though it was urgently pressed upon him in the belief that he might be instrumental of great good in tranquilizing that disturbed territory. In 1868 his name was sent to the senate by President Johnson for confirmation as minister to Russia, and although it was well known that he had not sought the place and did not desire it, with such general respect and favor was he regarded that he failed of confirmation by only two votes in a senate composed almost entirely of political opponents.

During the administration of President Pierce, and soon after his entrance into Congress, Mr. Dawson was distinguished for bringing forward the Homestead bill, which had been previously defeated; and with the addition of a number of important provisions prepared by himself, pressing it, with rare force, eloquence and parliamentary tact, almost to a successful result. Though it failed for the time, he had the gratification of seeing it subsequently revived and enacted into a law. By this law it was sought to preserve the public domain for the use of actual settlers, and to furnish homes for all who desired them in the fertile plains and valleys of the Great West. Its wisdom is daily exemplified in the growing wealth and influence of the populous trans-Mississippi states that contribute so lavishly to the material wealth and prosperity of the country.¹

Mr. Dawson was equally conspicuous for his faithful and persistent opposition to every scheme whereby it was sought to give the control of large bodies of the public lands to monopolists and speculators. He was, indeed, the stern and unyielding opponent of every form and grade of corruption and legislative extravagance, and to his efforts the country is indebted for many of the best laws that mark the national legislation of his time.

As a public man he left an unsullied record, which will always stand as a memorial of his unbending fidelity and incorruptible integrity, and as a private citizen his character was without a blemish.² In the family circle it shone especially bright. He ¹ "To the original Homestead bill Mr. Dawson drafted some important amendments, and by his intense zeal and unwearied efforts it was twice passed through the House of Representatives in the form in which it came from his committee. It was at length returned by the Senate with amendments which practically defeated the whole object of the bill, and left Mr. Dawson no alternative but to report his original bill to the House as the only one he could ever approve. He did so, and finding his term of public service drawing to a close, left this great measure to the care of his friends and associates, with a vindication of its goodness and wisdom which no man ventured to answer, and which time has converted into prophecy. But his interest in the success of his policy did not terminate with his official trust. On the contrary, his influence in its favor, although exerted from a private station, was sensibly felt throughout the whole struggle which preceded its final establishment. The revolution of a few years brought him that sort of triumph which statesmen prize above all others. He saw his favorite measure grow steadily in public esteem until, substantially as drafted by his own hand, it was enacted by a Congress controlled by his political opponent, signed by a President for whom he had not voted, and incorporated among the laws of his country almost as sacred and as highly cherished as the Constitution itself." From Life & Speeches by Chauncey F. Black, Esq., intended to be introductory to a collection of Mr. Dawson's Speeches.

² "The sagacity of his judgment upon men, and his own social fidelity, were proved by the surest of all tests. With him time and trials deepened every attachment of his was devotedly attached to his home, and beloved by his family. He was familiar with all the history and traditions of the Monongahela valley, and felt a pleasure in recounting the local incidents of by-gone years. He was also warmly attached to his personal and political friends, and nothing gave him more gratification than seeing them at his own house. His hospitality was unbounded, and it was dispensed in a manner so entirely void of ostentation as to render all in his presence as free from restraint as if they were sitting down around their own firesides.

own heart, and intensified the admiration of those who possessed his confidence. If any man ever lived a life of scrupulous integrity, it was he. No temptation could move him one hair's breadth from his steadfast purpose to do justice and execute faithfully the trusts confided to him. He was not without that 'last infirmity of noble minds,' the ambition which seeks to deserve the confidence of his fellow men, and to do them all the good in his power. But he never sought place for his own sake, nor used office for his personal pleasure or profit. He served the people of his district for eight years in Congress, because he believed it his duty to do so; but he declined to be Secretary of the Commonwealth when the office was pressed upon him by the Governor, and refused the Governorship of Kansas when the President solicited him to take it. His character, as a public man, was formed upon the models which he found in the history of other times than these. We do not liken him to Cato, for he was a far better man than Cato, without one particle of his pretentious austerity. Indeed it was not the doubtful morality of Plutarch's heroes which excited his admiration: he drew the inspiration of his public life from the great statesmen of the Virginia school, who led the councils of the nation in the golden age of this republic. In the general cast of his mind, in his ardent love for the pure pleasures of country life and agricultural employment, in his keen sense of justice, his lofty scorn of wrong and his unmitigated contempt of whatever was base or false or hypocritical, in his profuse hospitality, in his devoted attachment to his friends, of the humblest as well as the highest classes, in his constant fidelity to his political convictions, in the immovable steadfastness of his honesty which made him set his face like a flint against all schemes of corruption in Congress, in all these respects, he bore a striking resemblance to Alexander Macon and John Taylor of Carolina.

"This is not the place to dilate upon Mr. Dawson's public services. The ardor, energy, and ability with which he pressed and carried the measures which he believed to be necessary for the general good, are seen in his speeches, and the other memorials of his work. But it is due to his memory that we should mention one or two facts which are not yet on any record. When Mr. Dawson was a private citizen (in 1857 or 1858) a matter in which he was largely interested, involving, indeed, a considerable part of his fortune, was referred to a cabinet officer who was his devoted personal as well as political friend, and with whom he was in habits of daily intercourse. He never once alluded to the subject, or made known the fact of his interest, for the reason, that, as it was a question of justice and law, the decision ought not to be influenced by personal considerations of any kind. Afterwards, when a measure in which he was very remotely and indirectly interested came before the Congress of which he was a member, he neither spoke nor voted for it, but quietly absented himself without making the slightest demonstration, or giving any reason for his conduct, or claiming any merit whatever. These incidents show his scrupulous and delicate sense of official propriety, and are given, because they illustrate the principles upon which he habitually acted, and because they happen to be within the special knowledge of the writer." * * * *

Hon. Jeremiah S. Black, in the Pittsburg Daily Gazette, Sept. 27, 1870.

He was a man of liberal public spirit, and was among the foremost in the promotion of measures for the development of the material resources of the country. He held the position of director of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Rail Road, and was actively engaged in the development of the mineral interests of the Lake Superior region. In business affairs he was equally remarkable as in public life for careful preparation and far seeing wisdom, and his efforts were crowned with abundant success. And in business, as in politics, his honor and integrity were never called in question, in the hottest controversies, with the bitterest foes.¹

¹ At the risk of occupying undue space (for a work of this character), the compiler cannot refrain from quoting the following admirable description, by Chauncey F. Black, Esq., of one Mr. Dawson's political speeches. It is from a Sketch (before noticed) prepared to accompany a volume of Mr. Dawson's speeches, about to be published. The compiler's acknowledgments are due to Mr. Black for his courtesy in permitting such use to be made of his MS. :

"It was shortly after the close of the civil war, and toward the termination of Mr. Dawson's life, that the writer saw him stand in the midst of a little assemblage of his country neighbors, and deliver an address of most singular and fascinating eloquence. The times were full of peril to the free institutions of the country; the evil passions excited by war had not yet subsided, and the various limits of Federal power were still in debate. Under these circumstances the people of Mr. Dawson's neighborhood had assembled to the number of a hundred and fifty or two hundred, in the open street of a little village on the banks of the Monongahela. The chairman of this rustic gathering had taken his seat on a porch elevated a foot or two above the roadway, deposited his hat, with a red handkerchief visible above the rim, conspicuously near his feet, and was proceeding with the business of the day much as if he was presiding at his own fireside. Opposite him, and at the farther side of the road, lay a log sheltered from the meridian sun by the ample foliage of an apple tree. On this log, amidst a group of the elder farmers, sat Mr. Dawson, in a posture of courteous attention, but seeing little, for he was then almost blind, and in the following year was obliged to suffer an operation for cataract. He had not come to speak, and, refusing to be persuaded, had taken this retired position, by way of intimation that impertinencies would be of no avail. The several addresses were — with one exception — excellent after their kind — indeed, far above the average of political harangues — but at each concluding sentence an agitating murmur ran through the little assembly, accompanied by earnest but respectful appeals to Mr. Dawson to break his unaccustomed silence. At length he arose, slowly, but with a kind of grace in singular harmony with the occasion, and leaning heavily with one hand upon a rude cane, uttered a few simple but impressive words, which seemed less like the exordium of a regular address, than the solemn admonition of one neighbor to another upon a subject of deep and mutual concern.

"Then came a momentary and appropriate pause, while the more aged and sedate secured places beneath the tree, and all drawing as near as possible leaned forward in attitudes of fixed attention. It was then that, to the eye of at least one of his auditors, he presented a figure inexpressibly majestic and venerable.

"The simplicity and dignity of his manner; the stateliness of his form, erect and firm as one of the oaks that grew in his own forest; his serene and noble countenance; his superb head, covered with an abundance of iron-grey locks; his dark eye, imperial even in its infirmity, but betraying its weakness by a slight wandering as if in search of the familiar light; made the whole spectacle at once affecting and sublime. The tones of his voice, which at first had been low and sweet, became gradually high and

He was one of the sufferers from the mysterious sickness which followed the public dinner at the National Hotel in Washington at the time of the inauguration of President Buchanan. Mr. Dawson's life was for a long time despaired of, but his powerful physical organization finally triumphed, although it is probable he never wholly recovered from the effects of the subtle poison to which was attributed the death of so many well known men, or the melancholy impairment of their powers which left them only a "lingering life."

He died at his elegant estate called Friendship Hill (the former home of Albert Gallatin), on the Monongahela river, near Geneva, on the 18th September, 1870, and on the 21st his remains were buried, as he had requested, in the grounds of the Episcopal church at Brownsville, a few miles distant.

"At the dawn of light a concourse of friends and neighbors gathered in the halls of the old mansion to participate in the simple but impressive ceremonies that attended the removal of the body from the home of the family to the steamer which lay sonorous. He passed rapidly over some of the features of the late war, the melancholy strife of brethren in which victory was only less disastrous than defeat, the waste of treasure, the flow of blood, the desolation of homes, the torn bosoms and broken hearts, which marked the passage of that sad and needless carnage. With a few rapid touches he displayed in bold outlines the natural bonds of union between the states, the mutual dependence of interests, and the matchless power and glory which might be anticipated from their harmonious development.

"These were material considerations which reasonable men might not overlook. But it was when he spoke of the divine origin of mercy, and depicted the broken fortunes, the stricken hearts, the humbled pride, and the pure anguish of the vanquished, that he produced the strongest and most sensible effects.

"Then, availing himself of the better feelings of men awakened by this pathetic appeal, he told them how, in all times, the Almighty had punished the diabolical passion of revenge when indulged by one community against another. Those states which armed against the liberties of another, were in danger of losing their own: that people, which, tempted by the love of conquest or power, sought to trample down constitutional freedom in one section of the country, must be content to see it sacrificed in all. With startling force and precision, he traced this retributive process in the recent history of the United States, whereby a government which but lately was popular had now become imperial, and rights which had ever been held sacred were surrendered in rapid and fatal succession, the freedom of elections, the writ of habeas corpus, trial by jury, the sanctity of home and correspondence, with many others essential to the existence of a free state. And here, the tones of his voice, while even more distinct and penetrating than before, were low and solemn, as of one who delivers a message of strange and awful import. Concluding with an animated, but kindly appeal to the generation before him to preserve unimpaired the heritage which their fathers had kept for them, Mr. Dawson, in silence profound and almost oppressive, resumed his seat on the log near which he had stood. And if in all that stream of marvellous elocution there had been nothing else to be remembered, every listener would have carried away in his heart the lingering echoes of that voice, of which the compass and melody were surpassing among men."

in waiting to carry it to its last resting place. Between Geneva and Brownsville the funeral steamer was met by another which transferred to it sympathizing friends from many distant parts. At Brownsville, after a brief interval, during which many that knew and honored him in life looked for the last time on the features of the dead, the remains were carried to the church, and there, in presence of a numerous and deeply affected throng, were committed to the earth, according to the awful and beautiful solemnities appointed by the Church. Mr. Dawson sleeps among the nearest of his kindred, close to his mother, and closer to his child."¹

FAMILY OF JAMES DAWSON,

ALLEGHANY CO., MD., 1754.

From the Rev. John K. Dawson, of Martinsburg, Keokuk Co., Iowa, and others, the following :

1. JAMES DAWSON was b. in Maryland, about 1754. His son, the Rev. John K. Dawson, above named, says that he was probably a native of Alleghany Co.³ He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, also in the war of 1812-14; being, during his last term of service, a private in the Tenth Regiment of Infantry, from which he was honorably discharged, May 27, 1814. He was at this time sixty years of age.² He died in Knox Co., Tenn., aged 83, hence about the year 1837. He was a farmer, and a member of the Methodist church. He married, some time after the close of the Revolutionary war, Jane Kitchen, of New Jersey, who died in Wilkes county, North Carolina, August, 1807, to which state they removed before 1789, and where they resided until the time of her death. Their children were :

- 2-1. Ailsaba, b. in Caswell Co., N. C., 1789, now deceased.
2-2. Edmond, b. in Caswell Co., N. C., 1792. }
2-3. David, b. in Caswell Co., N. C., 1795. } 3

¹ Rev. J. K. D. writes as follows: "James Dawson, my father, was b. in the state of Maryland, probably Alleghany county, about 1754. His father d. when he was young. I never saw him, and have forgotten his name. I remember seeing, when I was a small boy, a brother of my father, whose name was Thomas."

* The following is a copy of a certificate in the possession of his son :

"District Pay-Master's Office, Washington, June 1, 1814.

"I certify that JAMES DAWSON, born in Maryland, aged sixty years, five feet 7½ inches high, fair complexion, blue eyes, light hair, and by profession a farmer, late a soldier in the 10th Regiment of Infantry was discharged on the 27th day of May, 1814, by Lieut. Col. D. L. Clinch, and that his discharge is on file in my office.

"SAT. CLARK, D. P. M."

The above endorsed as follows :

"M. LATIMER, Clerk."

³ These were both soldiers in the war of 1812; discharged 1814, but re-enlisted, and d. the same year from sickness, at Fort Strather, in the Creek Indian Nation. Both unmarried.

- 2-4. John Kitchen, b. in Caswell Co., N. C., Oct. 12, 1797, res. 1873, Martinsburg, Iowa; m.

 2-7. Esther, b. in Wilkes Co., N. C., Aug., 1805, d. in Tenn.

By a second marriage James Dawson had other children, whose names have not been communicated.

2-4. Rev. JOHN KITCHEN DAWSON was b. in Caswell Co., N. C., Oct. 12, 1797. His early educational advantages were small. In 1812, his father and two elder brothers being in the army, he lived in Wilkes county, N. C., where he joined the Baptist church in that year. In 1813 he went to Wythe Co., Va., and worked in the lead mines there. He returned to North Carolina in 1814, and removed from that state to Greene county, Tenn., in 1818, where, after a short time spent at school, he apprenticed himself to the cabinet making business, which, as well as the trade of a carpenter and joiner, farming, and other branches of business, he has since followed. In 1826 he became a licensed preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church, but on account of objections to the Episcopal form of government, left that connection, and united with the Methodist Protestant church in 1842, in the ministry of which he has since labored. He m. in Sevier Co., Tenn., Sept. 1, 1822, Sarah Bitner, who was b. in Greene Co., Tenn., May 3, 1802. They removed to Indiana in 1829, and thence to Iowa, in 1848. FAMILY OF WILLIAM DAWSON,

OF CAROLINE CO., MD., 1760.

From Dr. Ezekiel Dawson, of Woodside Mills, Del., Dr. Thomas G. Dawson, of Cambridge, Md., Mr. William Meredith, Maryland, Md., Mr. John Beitler Dawson, Washington, D. C., Mrs. Rhoda A. Morris, of Milton, Ind., and others, the following :

1. WILLIAM DAWSON, according to a tradition in the family, was a Friend or Quaker, in England (county not certainly known), and with his wife, Isabella, fled thence to America, in order to escape the persecutions to which such as were of his faith were subjected at home. They settled in Caroline county, Maryland, about the year 1760,¹ and, being isolated from Friends, united themselves to a new religious society called Nicholites, a sect which originated in Kent county, Del., and spread into Eastern Maryland about the middle of the last century, taking the name of its founder and projector, Joseph Nichols, a native of Kent county.² This sect became merged into the Society of Friends about the year 1800. The Nicholites practiced extreme plainness of dress and manner of life, wearing only home-made materials in their natural shades, using no dyes whatever, and even abstaining from the cultivation of natural objects of beauty, as of flowers, which, considered in a spirit of severe self-denial, they did not regard as strictly necessary or useful. They

² "Joseph Nichols died young, even before the society was fully organized..... The Nicholites reached about eight hundred in number, and owing to the want of extended organization, and to their close similarity and unity with the Friends, who had the advantage in extent of numbers, etc., they united almost in a body, and almost without a jar, with the Third Haven quarterly meeting of Friends, of the eastern shore of Maryland. Most of them were acceptable and honored members."—Dr. E. Dawson.

bore a strict and conscientious testimony against oaths, war and slavery, and were proverbial for their honesty and unostentatious piety. The legislature of Maryland, in an act passed for their benefit, styled them New Quakers. William Dawson was prominent among these people, and it appears from the archives of the society (still preserved in MS.), that he presided over the assemblage of delegates that perfected their organization and adopted rules and regulations for their government and discipline, Dec. 5, 1774. His name was first signed to the minutes of this meeting, and is followed by the names of sixteen others, "many of them of precious memory," the ancestors of some of the most solid and honored families of that section of the country. William Dawson and William Harris (whose children intermarried), and James Harris, were the first among the Nicholites who liberated their slaves, though all finally did so. Believing that any support, direct or indirect, given to war, would "defile his hands with blood," he went so far, in obedience to what he felt to be right, as to refuse to accept or make use of the paper currency that was issued for war purposes; and although censured and reproached for this singularity of conduct, it is said that "he maintained the ground of his testimony with dignity and consistency." Such, indeed, was the confidence reposed in his honesty, sincerity and integrity, that in his trade of making carts and spinning wheels, his custom extended to a great distance. For his "testimony" against a "hireling ministry," which must have led him in some way to contravene the laws of the province, he suffered imprisonment, being confined in jail for some time at Cambridge, near thirty miles from his place of residence. He also suffered the loss of property by distraint, for conscience' sake. His situation in prison becoming known, great crowds of people were attracted, to whom he explained his principles and delivered his exhortations, "insomuch that on account of his influence with the people his persecutors thought best to set him at liberty."¹

It is not known whether or not William and Isabella Dawson lived to unite with the Society of Friends. They were both dead at the date of their son Elisha's second marriage (1821) and had probably been dead many years. They had eleven chn. :

² This account of William Dawson (2-3), and what follows in relation to his descendants, was communicated by his grandson, Andrew H. H. Dawson, Esq., formerly of Georgia, now (1873), of New York city. Mr. Dawson wrote the compiler in 1854, that his grand father was "a brother of the great Quaker preacher, Elisha Dawson, though not himself a Quaker."

2-8. ELISHA DAWSON, b. in Caroline Co., Md., 1 mo. 20, 1766, was originally, like his father, in Christian faith a Nicholite, but about 1798, he, with many others of similar faith, united with the Society of Friends. It is said of him that about this time he was "brought into a close exercise" and "became very low in body and mind": and that he "became concerned that others might come to understand and enjoy the blessing pronounced by the Divine Master on the 'pure in heart.' Under this concern he first appeared as a minister among Friends about the year 1800." He gradually rose to eminence in the Society, and was much respected, as well for his abilities as a preacher, as for his personal piety, sincerity, and faithfulness in the discharge of whatever he conceived to be his duty. When the Society of Friends divided, in 1828, into what have since been known as the Orthodox and Hicksite parties, he went with the latter, and a few years later (1835), being provided with certificates of the unity and concurrence of his brethren, he went on a religious visit to Great Britain. "He traveled through many parts of England and Ireland, and visited the Island of Guernsey, discharging his duty as an Ambassador of Peace and Salvation as way opened for religious labor."² Besides, he made many extended religious journeys through and into various states, and d. while on a visit of this character, near Camden, in New Jersey, after a brief illness, on the first of 5

¹ Sister to the wife of Joseph Dawson (2-11). Robert Broadaway was a man of influence, and highly esteemed in the church and by his fellow citizens generally. His widow m. Rev. Edward Callahan, a man of prominence and education, at one time state surveyor of Delaware. Their daughter Ann m. Shadrach H. Dawson (2-9).

² "He deserves the name of an Evangelist. His life was given up, 'to labor' (using his language), 'in the love of the Gospel' wherever the Spirit seemed to direct him. He went forth preaching the Gospel almost daily over the breadth of his own country, and found time to cross the ocean, bearing the message and spirit of the Gospel to England, Ireland and the Island of Guernsey. Some idea of his labors may be obtained by accounts in his journal of his visiting tours, occupying most of the time in the years mentioned. A portion of his journal is lost. From 1800 until his death his life was one of activity and labor. In 1827-28, at the time of the Separmo., 1837, being then upwards of 71 years of age.¹ He belonged to Philadelphia yearly meeting. Voluminous journals of his travels and religious experiences are now in the possession of a relative, Dr. E. Dawson, of Woodside Mills, near Camden, Delaware, and it is hoped will ultimately be published. He m. 1st, 11 mo. 5, 1785, Lydia Harris, b. He went home with Joseph Kaigh, of Kaigh's Point, Gloucester Co., N. J., was taken suddenly ill, and d. May 1, 1837, in the faith of the Gospel." "His writings abound in the spirit of toleration."—Dr. E. Dawson.

² These names and dates from the Nicholite MS. records. In the Memorial of Camden meeting concerning Elisha Dawson, the names of his wife's parents are erroneously stated to have been James and Mary Harris. At the date of their marriage, Elisha and Lydia Dawson were respectively less than 20 and 15 years of age. Early marriages were very common in those days.

¹ During his religious labors in the west in 1828, Elisha Dawson took occasion to visit some of his relatives who had emigrated to that country. He mentions in his journal, among others, Isaac and Deborah Frampton (3-15), and his brother William's son Joseph. His journal, being an account of his religious labors mainly, whatever else may be gleaned from it is merely incidental. On the 27th of 9 mo., 1828, he was at Richmond, Wayne county, Indiana. The following is his record of his next journeyings: "We went down to Milton, sixteen miles, and from thence seventy-five miles or near to it to my eldest son's, also to my brother William's son Joseph Dawson's, into a settlement of professing people of those four different societies called Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Covenanters." The compiler is indebted to Dr. E. Dawson for the above extract, and for a careful, but unavailing, perusal of the journal, in the hope of adding to the information so obtained. Joseph Dawson's residence at that time was in Pleasant township, Switzerland county, Indiana, one of the southern counties of that state, bordering on the Ohio. He had m. a second wife, but never had any children by her. He was engaged in merchandising in Indiana, but after a residence of two or three years only in that state, he returned to Ky., in 1830. His son, Andrew H. H. Dawson, Esq., of New York city, well remembers Elisha Dawson's visit, and the fact that he was sent about the country on horse back to inform people of the neighborhood that Elisha Dawson would hold an "appointed meeting" at that place. The venerable preacher was listened to with great interest, a large audience of the country people having gathered to hear him. "The cordiality with which he was received," says Mr. D., "the affection with which he was treated, impressed my mind at the time as much as did the statement of the fact that he was a kinsman."

4-1. ANDREW HUNTER HOLMES DAWSON (son of Joseph, 3-4), commenced the study of law at Versailles, Ky., in 1838, under Thomas F. Marshall, and continued the study under Judge Stephen C. Stevens, at Madison, Indiana. He was admitted to the bar in Louisville, Ky., in April, 1841, and after practicing his profession a few months in that city, removed to St. Louis, Mo., in January, 1842. Considerations of health induced him to abandon a profitable practice there, in Feb., 1846, when he removed to Warrenton, Ga. Thence he removed in 1848 to Augusta, Ga., and thence in 1854 to Savannah, where he remained until 1860, having been, during his entire term of residence in Georgia, chiefly engaged in his professional business, wherein he had gained not only fame, but fortune. As a criminal lawyer, Mr. Dawson is said to have had few, if any, equals in the South. He is a brilliant and forcible, though an impetuous and somewhat erratic, speaker and writer. His oratory flashes with wit and humor, melts with pathos, and scathes and burns with satire and denunciation, by turns, as suits the subject, or the purpose he may have to accomplish. He possesses a remarkably retentive memory, and his facility of illustration, by apt quotations from a wide range of classical literature, and by the most varied and original anecdotes, is one of his most striking characteristics.

In 1860 he removed to Mobile, Ala., and having been appointed, shortly after, chairman of the state executive committee of the Constitutional Union party, and nominated a candidate for presidential elector on the Bell & Everett ticket, he stumped the state in its behalf, using all his influence to stay the tide which had already set in for secession, and which finally proved irresistible and overwhelming. Abandoning hope of a "constitutional union," he allied himself, on the outbreak of the civil war, to the fortunes of the South, and became an ardent supporter of the southern cause, although not in arms. During the first two years of the war he resided chiefly at Richmond, in order to be near his son who was in the Confederate army; after that, until the close of the struggle, he sojourned as a refugee in various southern towns and states. He was elected colonel of a Ky. Reg't. in the Confederate service, but was not commissioned. At the close of the war, the National Government having triumphed, he acquiesced, as a matter of principle, in the new order of things, and has since labored effectively, with tongue and pen, to promote harmony between the North and South, and for the best welfare, as judged from his stand point, of the whole country. He has been for many years the political and intimate personal friend of Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, with whom he maintains a frequent and confidential correspondence.¹

In July, 1865, Mr. Dawson removed to New York city, where, in the midst of active and successful practice, he finds time for occasional addresses and lectures on literary, social and political topics.²

² Mr. Dawson has taken an active interest in measures looking to the introduction and general use of steam power for canal navigation. He was largely instrumental in procuring the passage of an act by the New York state legislature in 1871, providing for a competitive trial of all inventions by which steam or any motor, other than animal power, could be practically and profitably applied to the propulsion of University of Pennsylvania, 1853. He first engaged in practice at Vernon, in Kent county, at which place, while hunting with a party of friends, he was accidentally shot by one of them, thus losing the sight of his left eye. Being disabled for some time by this accident, he relinquished his practice at Vernon, and while convalescing removed to Camden, in the same county, where he has since devoted many years to his profession, achieving a good reputation in medicine and surgery, and being especially successful in the treatment of the diseases of children. He became a licensed preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church in 1857. He entered the United States service in March, 1862, as assistant surgeon in the 3d Regt. of Delaware Infantry; was soon after commissioned as surgeon of the 2d Regt., and detailed for Post duty, being appointed medical director of the Post at Harper's Ferry. Failing health compelled him to resign his commission, but soon after, his health improving, he reentered the service as volunteer surgeon, and served in Tilton Hospital, Wilmington, and afterwards at Annapolis Junction. ¹ Mrs. Dawson was more than usually respected and beloved, being so careful for the good and comfort of others she practiced much self denial. She was a Christian of the strongest faith. Dying fully conscious, she gave up, without a murmur, children, husband and mortal life, for that she esteemed far better, Jesus and eternal life. She was a grand niece of Rev. Solomon Sharp, one of the old pioneer Methodist preachers of the county, and a man of great eloquence and strong character." — Dr. E. Dawson.

² Mr. Coursey was nominated on the republican ticket for governor of Delaware in 1870, and although leading his ticket, was defeated. He is a writer of good ability, contributing regularly to local journals and magazines articles on temperance, agriculture, and sometimes purely literary subjects.

* Under a recent date, Dr. Dawson wrote as follows : " This I can say with deep gratitude : I know of no case of intemperance very closely allied to the family, nor have I any knowledge of any great scandal tarnishing its character. It has preserved the religious integrity of its parent stock. Nearly all the Dawsons have been and are professing Christians. They have been practical working people, but few of them ever attained wealth. Their connections by marriage have always been with families of equal or superior standing, save one or two exceptions. A mechanical genius is hereditary in the family ; yet few of them have pursued trades, but have used the gift in a general practical way. A friendly feeling strengthening the relational tie has always seemed to pervade the family."

FAMILY OF FRANCES DAWSON,

OF TALBOT COUNTY, MD., 1688.

The following are extracts from the records of the Third Haven Monthly Meeting of Friends, of Talbot county, Md., for which the compiler is indebted to Mr. Wm. F. Corbit, of Philadelphia. From this family of Friends may have sprung one or more of the families of Eastern Maryland mentioned in the foregoing pages, but the compiler is unable to state what connection, if any such, existed. The Third Haven Monthly Meeting was composed of a number of English emigrants and their families, and is said to have been the first Monthly Meeting of Friends established in America.

“FRANCES WILLIS’ children by her first husband:”

1. Obadyar Dawson, b. 13th of 4th mo., 1672.

5. John Dawson, b. 7th of 6th mo., 1681.
6. Anthony Dawson, b. 13th of 4th mo., 1683.”

¹ The name of the first husband is not given. Her children by her second husband, Richard Willis, were Richard, 1684, John, 1686, Francis, 1688. She was probably a widow, after the death of her second husband, when the above record of births was made. She married, 3d, Edward Fisher, 1699. Her former husbands may not have been Friends. Was she from Berkshire, in Old England? Frances Dawson, with other Quakers, was committed to prison in Berkshire, July 27, 1662.—Besse's Sufferings of the People called Quakers. Other victims of the spirit of persecution which prevailed in those days may be noted here for want of a better opportunity. The accounts are taken from Besse.

“July 31, 1670. Charles Dawson, of Lancashire, was, with other Quakers, arrested, and next day sent to House of Correction.

“Feb. 10, 1660. Edward Dawson, of Lancashire, taken out of a religious meeting, and for refusing to swear, sent to Lancaster jail.

“June 16, 1661. Edward Dawson, arrested on coming out of meeting, and refusing an oath, was sent to Lancaster jail.

“Jan. 20, 1660. Robert Dawson, of Hartfordshire, taken out of a meeting at Ware, and committed to prison for refusing an oath.

“1683. William Dawson, glover, of Bristol, was fined £60 for absence from the National Worship.

“1660. William Dawson, of Monmouth, haberdasher, for refusal to swear committed to prison at Usk (Wales) and put into the dungeon.

“1668. William Dawson, of Monmouth, for contempt of magistrates, again committed to prison.

1. "Obadyar Dawson died 21st of 10th mo., 1694."

2. "Richard Dawson, planter, and Susannah Foster, spinster, both of Dorchester county, in y^e province of Maryland, were married 23d 8 mo., 1698, in y^e meeting house near the head of Transquaking river, in y^e county of Dorchester." See p. 182.

Richard Dawson was a subscribing witness to the marriage of Joseph Adkinson and Naomi Wright, 1699, to the marriage of Nehemiah Beckwith and Frances Taylor, 1712; and to the

"1675. Matthew Dawson, of Hilton, Westmoreland, distressed for absence from National Worship.

"1660. Elizabeth Dawson, of Yorkshire, sent to Beverly jail for attending religious meeting at house of Thomas Hutchinson.

"1663. Elizabeth Dawson committed to prison, by the mayor of York, for attending religious meeting.

"1660. John Dawson, of the West Riding of Yorkshire, sent to prison for refusing an oath.

MEMORANDA. For an important family of Maryland, the descendants of Elias Dawson, an early emigrant to Philadelphia, but now mostly found in Talbot and Baltimore counties, Md., See Pennsylvania Records, "Family of Elias Dawson."

Frederick Dawson, a merchant of great respectability in Baltimore, 1854, was the son of William Dawson, an Englishman, who established himself as a merchant in that city about 1820 or 1825, perhaps earlier, using the business name of William Dawson & Sons. The father d. several years prior to 1854, probably as early as 1838 or before.

In 1838, Frederick Dawson, of Baltimore, contracted to furnish the Texan Government, then an independent power, with several armed vessels.—Yoakum's History of Texas.

W. Dawson was British Consul at Baltimore about the time of the Revolution.—See General Index of Dodsley's Annual English Register, vol. 58, p. 207.

Joseph Dawson, probably of Md. or Va., was a comptroller at Washington, 1791. See copy of a letter from him, dated "Register's Office, Nov. 16, 1791."—Saffel's Records of the Rev. War, p. 138.

William Dawson, an Englishman, came to America about the time of the Rev. War, and m. in Delaware; had two children, a son and dau. The son, also named William, had two sons, one of whom is James B. Dawson, b. 1819, now, 1873, of 825 Orange St., Wilmington, a machinist, whose only child, Washington H. Dawson, baker, also res. in Wilmington. Mr. J. B. D.'s brother res. in Linwood, Delaware Co., Pa.; has a family.

Asa Dawson, farmer, lived in southern part of Kent county, Delaware. He had brothers, Thomas and Zebulon or Zebdiel, who lived near him. He m. Sarah Meredith, who survived him, and now lives, at quite an advanced age, in Kent county. (1873) They had, besides a dau who d. young: I. Rhoda Ann, m. Henry M. Hill, res. Wyoming, children: Anna, Elma, Cooper. II. Asa, wheelwright, m. Miriam Walton Sharp, widow of Eccleson Sharp. They lived at Bridgeville, Sussex Co., Del., where she still res. He was accidentally killed in the summer of 1873, being thrown from a wagon. Two children: 1. William, unn. 2. Anna, m. Richard W. Cannon, druggist, nephew of the late Gov. Wm. Cannon, of Delaware, res. Bridgeville, children: Elizabeth, Estella, Walton.

marriage of his half brother, John Willis, and Margaret Cox, 1712. His wife, Susannah Dawson, was a subscribing witness to the marriage of William Foulks, of Accomac and Mary Foster (probably her sister) of Dorchester, 1704.

5. John Dawson was a subscribing witness to the marriage of William Parratt and Susannah Silvester, 1704 ; of Nehemiah Beckwith and Frances Taylor, 1712 ; of his half brother, John Willis, and Margaret Cox, 1712 ; and of Peter Harwood and Susannah Stewart, both of Talbot county, 1744.

FAMILY OF GEORGE FRANCIS DAWSON,

OF WASHINGTON, D.C., 1873.

I. FRANCIS DAWSON, Esq., grandfather of the above named, was b. in Yorkshire, England, about 1760, where he inherited a large estate, and had a famous racing stable. His devotion to the turf induced him to reside principally at Fordham Abbey, a newly purchased estate near New Market, where he d. in middle life. He m. a sister of Col. Thomas Thoroton, of "The Guards," and of Sir John Thoroton, a chaplain to the Duke of Rutland.¹ They had nine chn., of whom the sons were :

- 2-1. Francis, chaplain to the House of Commons, and subsequently canon and sub-dean of Canterbury.
- 2-2. William Francis, captain R. E., and military secretary to the late Sir Edward Barnes, governor of Ceylon.²
- 2-3. John Francis, commander R. N., killed in command of the heavy division of the British flotilla during the Burmese war, Dec. 2, 1825.³
- 2-4. Thomas Francis, d. on board the San Josef.
- 2-5. George Francis, d. Oct. 11, 1850, vicar of Orpington, and incumbent of St. Mary's Cray, Kent.⁴
- 2-6. Gilbert Francis, commander R. N., retired 1832; lieutenants' reserved list, 1864; res. 1873, England. See forward.

¹ Another sister m. Rev. Dr. Manners Sutton, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, a younger son of the Duke of Rutland, who acquired large estates on the demise of the Earl of Lexington, by adding "Sutton" to his family name. The issue of this union was the Rt. Hon. Manners Sutton, who for seventeen years was speaker of the House of Commons, and who was afterwards elected to the peerage, with the titles of Viscount Canterbury and Baron Bokkesford.

2-6. GILBERT FRANCIS DAWSON, ninth child and youngest son of Francis Dawson, Esq., is, in 1873, the only surviving child of this family. He was b. April 14, 1800, and entered the R. N. March 18, 1813, as first class volunteer on board the 74 gun ship Waspite. He distinguished himself by gallant service in several engagements, and received high encomiums for qualities of personal courage, enterprise and endurance displayed in difficult and perilous undertakings.¹ He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in June, 1824, and after service on several vessels, the last of which was the Hyacinth, of 18 guns, he was invalided in 1832, since which time he has not been officially that earnest and devout sense which was unfortunately not then common in the army, and which exposed him, with others similarly conscientious and guarded in conduct, to ridicule as infected with what was sneeringly nicknamed Methodism. At Malta it had been the custom of the army (by firing salutes, etc.), to take part in the religious ceremonies of the people, held in honor of their tutelar saints, etc., but Lt. Dawson, regarding such an act as idolatrous, refused the customary homage, and was with a brother officer, similarly conscientious, placed under arrest by Sir Thomas Maitland, tried by court martial, and dismissed the service. His influential relatives and his patrons at home joined for the time with his military superiors in condemning him; and finding himself shut out from his intended career, he accepted the aid of friends, through whose liberality he was enabled to go to Trinity College, Dublin, where he took his degree in due time. In 1828 he was ordained deacon, and shortly after admitted to priest's orders and licensed as incumbent of a chapel at Guernsey, where he served five years. After several transfers, he, in 1848, accepted at the hands of his brother, as canon of Canterbury, the living of Orpington, and the curacy of St. Mary's Cray. Here he labored with great zeal, ability, and fidelity until his death, which occurred suddenly, from disease of the heart, Oct. 11, 1850. "He was a man of clear and penetrating intellect, marked originality and humor, indomitable perseverance, unflinching courage, and unbending integrity. Nothing revolted him more than any approach to cant or insincerity." A biography of this remarkable man was published shortly after his death in the Church Record, and has since had a wide circulation in Great Britain, India, etc., having passed through several editions in book or pamphlet form.

¹ As a passed midshipman, "On 31 March, 1823," says O'Byrne's Naval Biography, "he commanded one of the boats of the Thracian, 18 guns, when, in conjunction with those of the Tyne, 26 guns, — the whole carrying 42 men, under command of the present Admiral Walcott — they boarded and captured, after an engagement of 45 minutes, the Zaragoza, a notorious piratical schooner of 13 guns, and upwards of 70 men. On this occasion, Mr. Dawson with his own hands took prisoner the pirate-chief, the celebrated Marquis Cayotano Arogoner, as the latter, having with others jumped overboard, was wading through the water to the shore. For his conduct he received the thanks of the commander-in-chief." Subsequently, in command of Vice-Admiral Halstead's own barge, he joined an expedition, headed by Lieutenant Commander Cawley, to hunt out and destroy the pirates in the Ile of Pines and other places. "In the execution of this service, Mr. Dawson, who piloted, and who sketched and drew plans of the enemy's lurking places, displayed zeal which was gratefully acknowledged" by the commander of the expedition and by the admiral. "As an instance of the hard service Mr. Dawson went through," says O'Byrne, "we may mention that on one occasion he was for a fortnight absent in a five oared gig in pursuit of pirates, on short allowance, and exposed to a scorching sun in the day, and to heavy dews at night. At another time he nearly lost his life from yellow fever."

afloat. He was placed on the retired list of lieutenants in 1851, and was promoted to the rank of commander July, 1, 1864. After he left the Hyacinth Capt. Dawson commanded various merchant ships and steamships. He was for over three years chief police magistrate at Manganui, New Zealand; has been superintending civil engineer of an important railway in England; and has also had charge of the new coal docks at Llanelly, in South Wales. ¹ Lt. Llewellyn Styles Dawson entered the royal navy, 1861, and has since become distinguished as a scientific officer, conducting scientific surveys in China, South America, etc. For explorations on the Upper Yangtse river in 1870 he received the thanks of the Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai and of Admiral Keppel, and was promoted to his present rank of lieutenant. In 1872 he was selected by the Royal Geographical Society, out of one hundred competitors, to command the expedition equipped by the society for the search for and relief of Dr. Livingstone, and in February of that year sailed on the Ahydus from London for Zanzibar. The circumstances which partially defeated the objects of this expedition are well known. Lt. Dawson is now engaged in a survey of the Island of New Guinea.

School, Mr. Dawson spent a few years at sea in the merchant service, and has been, in the course of his life, three times around the world. He came to the United States from China in March, 1852, landing at San Francisco, California, a youth of 17, eager for adventure, whereof he had a large experience in the few years following, during which he engaged in a great variety of occupations, including mining. In 1856, while in Nevada City, California, he entered the office of Hon. A. A. Sargent, now United States Senator from California, as a student of law, and in the following year became connected with the press of San Francisco, first as law reporter for the Evening Argus, and afterwards, editorially and otherwise, with the Bulletin, Call and Alta Californian. He has also been connected with the Sacramento Union and Record, of which latter he is now the regular Washington correspondent.¹ About 1864, Mr. Dawson was engaged as superintendent of some American mining operations in Sinaloa, Mexico, in which he was employed about eighteen months, suffering finally the loss of his property there through the spoils of the French army. Shortly after returning from Mexico he went to the state of Nevada, where, as conductor of the Virginia City Enterprise, then and now its leading paper, he was successfully engaged in the great struggle for the admission, under the enabling act, of that state into the Union. He went to New York city in January, 1865, and March 3, 1866, established there the Journal of Mining, and while editor of that paper was, in 1869, elected a member and manager of the American Institute. The unprecedented financial success of the Industrial Exhibition of 1867, was largely due to Mr. Dawson's management. After this, beginning with the first inauguration of President Grant, Mr. D. held a clerkship in the House of Representatives at Washington, until Nov. 1870, when he resigned the position to accept an appointment as superintendent of the American Institute National Industrial Ex-

¹ Mr. Dawson possesses a remarkably fertile pen and retentive memory, gifts which have enabled him to perform, as a newspaper man, tasks which are rarely equalled: as, in the conduct of one of the San Francisco daily papers for some weeks at one time with no assistance from any other pen, yet producing the usual variety and amount of literary work in each issue, and in the reporting, entirely from memory, at the length of two columns of solid minion, of a lecture to which he had listened, the report being afterwards complimented by the lecturer as one of singular fidelity.

Mr. Dawson's scheme, projected by him, but fully endorsed by the managers of the institute, of a vast permanent exhibition of the world's industries and industrial processes in New York, foimed, as MR. WALT WHITMAN stated, "the spinal part" of the poem, After All not to Create Only, read by him at the opening of the exhibition of 1871.

VIRGINIA.

Besides the Dawsons emigrating into Virginia from Maryland, of whom some account has been given in the foregoing records, other families of the name were very early planted in that state. Bishop Meade mentions the name among those prominent in the records of some of the oldest districts in the state in "the times long since gone by."¹

Three clergymen of the name — all of the church of England, are known to have been in the colony more than one hundred years ago. Two of these, the Reverends WILLIAM and THOMAS DAWSON, were brothers; the third, the Rev. MUSGRAVE DAWSON, was cotemporary with them, and may have been of the same family.

The Rev. WILLIAM DAWSON, one of the brothers above named, was the second president of William and Mary College,² succeeding the Rev. William Blair, who had held the office from the foundation of the institution until his death, April 18, 1743, a period of fifty years. The second president was sent over from England. He was graduated at Oxford, and was accounted an able scholar.³ His predecessor in the presidency had also held, by appointment from the bishop of London, the office of commissary in the colonies of Virginia and Maryland, by virtue of which he had a seat in the Council of State, and received £100 per annum as councillor. To this office President Dawson also succeeded. His brother Thomas, who had been chiefly educated at Williamsburg, under his direction, and had been master of the Indian school, was called to the rectorship of the church of Breeton parish, in 1750.⁴ The latter succeeded the Rev. William Dawson as commissary, in 1752, while the presidency passed at the same time to William Stith, the historian of Virginia, who held the office until 1755, when the Rev. THOMAS DAWSON became president, being thus the fourth incumbent of the office, which, with the commissaryship, he retained until his death in 1761. Commissary Dawson married a sister of Stith, the historian and president.¹ Bishop Meade intimates that the usefulness of the second Dawson was somewhat impaired by indulgence in drink, a fault at that time not uncommon with the clergy who came over from England, and that his unfortunate habit led at one time to his arraignment by the visitors of the College. The offence was, however, passed over, on the plea that the excesses complained of had been occasioned by his poor health, and the burdens and vexations of his official duties.² The third clergyman of this name was the Rev. Musgrave Dawson, who was minister of Raleigh parish, Amelia county, Va., in 1754,³ and of the parish of St. Mary's, in Essex county, in 1758.⁴ Whether either of these left issue is not known, though Bishop Meade mentions "the Dawsons" in a list of the early clergy of Virginia, ancestors, as he thinks, of large bodies of Virginians.⁵ The widow of one of the presidents was probably living in Williamsburg, in 1777,⁶ and it is surmised that JOHN DAWSON, who was a Representative in Congress from Virginia, 1797, was a descendant of one of the clergymen above named. He graduated at Harvard University in 1782; was chosen presidential elector from the seventh district of Virginia, 1793, Washington's second term; was a member of Congress, 1797 to 1814; served in one of the State Conventions of Virginia, and in the General Assembly; was a member of the Executive Council of Virginia; rendered service in the war with Great Britain, in 1813, as aid to the commanding general on the lakes; and was appointed bearer of dispatches to France, in 1801, by President Adams. He died in Washington city, March 30, 1814, aged 52 years.¹ The frequent notices of his speeches and other acts in Congress contained in Benton's Abridgement of Debates of Congress, prove that he was an active and influential member and a successful legislator.

Other early representatives of the name, supposed to be Virginians, were as follows:

JAMES DAWSON, a private in Co. No. 4 (Captain Thomas Tibbs), in Col. Morgan's Riflemen, as they stood April 30, 1777; ROBERT DAWSON, a sergeant, and BENJAMIN DAWSON, a private, in Co. No. 8 (Captain Francis Taylor), in Col. Morgan's Riflemen, as they stood April 1, 1777; BENJAMIN DAWSON, a private in Co. No. 6 (Captain Alexander Breckenridge), Col. Nathan Gibbs' Virginia regiment, 1777, and another BENJAMIN DAWSON, a private in the 8th or major's company of same regiment, 1777; WILLIAM DAWSON, an ensign, commissioned Feb. 26, 1776.²

The Rev. MARTIN DAWSON was extensively known towards the close of the last century as a Baptist minister in the Albemarle District, Virginia, where he commenced preaching about the year 1774, being then in his thirtieth year. He was not ordained in the ministry until some years later, his first pastoral charge being the church at Ballinger's Creek. It is said of him that for many years he presided over the Albemarle Association with much dignity. "Besides the church called Ballenger's Creek, he served at different times several other churches. His talents, though not showy, were of the useful kind. He did much good. . . . He married early in life, and was the father of a numerous offspring, for whose support, by his industry, he made ample provision."³ The date and place of his death, and the names of his children, are not known. work from which the above account is extracted is provokingly deficient in the facts which would especially interest the genealogist, and they have not been learned elsewhere; but from coincidences of names, locality (central Virginia) and religious profession, it is supposed that he was of, or nearly related to, the family whose records herewith follow:

From Rev. John Dabney Dawson, Superintendent of the Kentucky Female Orphan School, Midway, Wadford Co., Ky. (quoting letters of his uncle Elisha Dawson, of Lincoln Co., Ky.), 1855, and from Rev. Wm. C. Dawson, New York City, 1873, the following:

1. Rev. J. D. DAWSON states that the parents of his grandfather Dawson emigrated to Virginia, the father from England, the mother from Wales. Their names are not known. Their sons were:

- 2-1. Martin, of whom presently.
- 2-2 Robert, perhaps the sergeant above mentioned; no information concerning his family, if any.
- 2-3. Joseph, of whom presently.
- 2-4. John, of whom presently.

And perhaps others. These are named in the order given by Mr. Elijah Dawson, son of the last named, on whose authority it is also stated that Martin and Joseph, who lived and died, as he states, in Amherst county, Virginia, within a mile of each other, each lived to the extraordinary age of 115 years.¹

2-1. MARTIN DAWSON was described by Mr. Elijah Dawson, as follows: "He was a spare, thin visaged man, and had black hair and eyes. It was said of him that he had been a great hunter, but he was a farmer when I knew him. He had married the second time. The name of his last wife was Carter. He had a good many children by each wife. The names of some of his children were" as follows:

- 3-1. Martin, a Baptist preacher.
- 3-2. William, a Methodist preacher.
- 3-3 Nelson, a farmer.
- 3-4. Jesse, a farmer.
- 3-5. Zechariah, a farmer.

¹ The longevity of an English namesake appears to have far exceeded anything mentioned in these records: "Nov. 28, 1818. Ann Dawson d. at Harrowgate, England, aged 161."—Munsell's Every Day Book of History and Chronology, p. 452.

Of these Mr. E. D. says: "I knew all but William and Martin. They were preachers, and had left the neighborhood before my recollection. One was a Baptist, the other a Methodist preacher. Martin was a Baptist preacher, if I recollect aright. Zechariah was high sheriff, and at an early day emigrated to North Carolina.

2-3. JOSEPH DAWSON, a "large and fleshy man," was a farmer. He had two sons:

3-6. Lewis, a Methodist preacher, said to be very able.

3-7. Pleasant.

2-4. JOHN DAWSON died in Virginia before 1796, when his widow emigrated with her sons John and Elijah—the latter then only twelve years old—to Lincoln county, Kentucky, whither her daughter Mary had preceded her in 1795. He was "a large man, with blue eyes and fair complexion." His wife's family, resided in Prince Edward county, Virginia. Her maiden name was Watkins. Their children were:

3-8. Mary, b. Feb. 27, 1774, d. before 1855. STEELE.

3-9. Susan, d. before 1855. CALLISON.

3-10. John, b. 1779, went to Ky. 1796, returned to Va. 1797, and was drowned the same year in James river.

3-8. Mary Dawson, b. in Va., Feb. 27, 1774 (d. before 1855), m. WILLIAM STEELE, and emigrated to Lincoln Co., Ky., 1795. Their children were:

4-1. John D., "a man extensively known as a preacher of the gospel, and as extensively loved and admired."

4-2. Betsey.

He was one of seven members of the Baptist church at that place who were tried for alleged heresy and excommunicated, they having embraced the doctrines of the church of the Disciples or Christian church, of which church, when organized at Danville, they became the original members. As to stature, etc., the same description applies to Mr. Dawson as to his father (2-4). He m. Pbebe Walker, dau. of David Walker, a native of Buckingham county, Va., and an early emigrant to Ky. - 4-26. Susan.
- 4-27. James Franklin.
- 4-28. Robert Beatty.
- 4-29. Elijah Wade.
- 4-30. Matthew Evermont.

4-15. Rev. JOHN DABNEY DAWSON, b. at Danville, Ky., about 1813, a contributor to these records, was educated at Center College, in Danville, and at Transylvania University, Lexington, Ky. At the latter institution, where he graduated, he was a room mate of the Hon. Montgomery Blair. At about the time of his graduation he was ordained to the ministry in the church of the Disciples, and he has been a teacher and local preacher all his life. He was the first superintendent of the Kentucky Female Orphan School, at Midway, filling that office from 1849 until 1857, a period of eight years. In 1858 he became a professor in the Christian College, at Columbia, Mo. (a denominational school of a high order, for young ladies), but resigned the position in 1861. He now (1873) resides on his farm near Louisiana, Mo. He m. in Ky., Mrs. Mary Jane Bell. Their children, besides some who d. young, were :

5-2. Rev. WILLIAM CHIPLEY DAWSON, b. in Scott Co., Ky., 1841, was educated at the University of Missouri, and at Bethany College, Virginia, graduating at the latter institution in 1865, in the last class graduated by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Campbell, the eminent founder of the college, and its president for twenty-five years. While a student, Mr. Dawson served as adjunct professor of languages in the University of Missouri, and has since received the degree of Master of Arts from that institution. Soon after leaving college he entered the ministry of the Christian church, and has been in pastoral charge of churches of that denomination at Decatur, Ill., Lexington, Mo., Louisville, Ky., and New York city. His removal to New York took place in the fall of 1872, since which time he has been pastor of the Christian church, in Twenty-eighth street.

He m. at Bethany, W. Va., 1866, Jane C. Campbell, niece of Dr. Alex. Campbell. They have three children :

6-1. Campbell, b. in Lexington, Mo., 1868.

6-2. William Chipley, b. in Louisville, Ky., 1871.

6-3. Theodore Bell, b. in New York city, 1873.

[Note. An abstract of the records immediately preceding having been sent, in 1871, to the Rev. Samuel G. Dawson, Toledo, O., he wrote, referring to the family described, as follows : "I have no doubt of their being of my father's family stock, but have no means of ascertaining the fact." He stated, however, that according to the tradition in his family, the original emigrant in Virginia came from Scotland. This was Mr. D.'s great grandfather. He was named MARTIN DAWSON, and settled in Amherst county. His wife's maiden name was Gaines. They had, besides several daughters, an only son named Nelson. May not this have been the Martin Dawson, of Amherst county, numbered 2-1 of the foregoing record, according to which account he was twice married, and had, besides other sons, one named Nelson? As to the place of his nativity the accounts disagree, but these being in each case merely traditional, the discrepancy is not important. The compiler inclines to the belief that the above suggests the true explanation of this somewhat puzzling genealogical enigma, but deems it unsafe to assume the truth of the explanation suggested without further investigation. If it should prove to be correct, the record of Martin Dawson's family, as given above (2-1) and as given below (1) should be consolidated, as follows : "MARTIN DAWSON, of Amherst county, Virginia, married, 1st,— Gaines. They had, besides several daughters, one son named Nelson. He married 2d,— Carter. They had sons named Martin, William, Jesse and Zechariah."]

From Rev. Samuel Gaines Dawson, Toledo, Ohio, the following :

1. MARTIN DAWSON came from Scotland, and settled in Amherst county, Virginia. His wife's maiden name was Gaines. They had, besides several daughters, one only son named :

2-1. NELSON C. DAWSON,¹ whose first wife was Lucy Goode, of Charlotte Co., Va. They lived in Amherst county, and had one son and four daughters, as follows :

¹ Nelson C. Dawson was a corporal, and Benjamin R. and Martin N. Dawson (brothers') were privates in Capt. Cornelius Sales' company, 8th Regt., 4th Brigade, Va. Militia, under Gen. John H. Cooke, 1814-15, each serving 5 mos. and 20 days.

- 3-4. Nancy, m.—LAMBKIN.
- 3-5. Matilda, m. in Lynchburg.

Name of Nelson C. Dawson's second w., and whether any issue of that marriage, not stated.

3-1. SAMUEL GAINES DAWSON, b. in Amherst county, Va., about 1796, went from his native county as surgeon's assistant under Dr. Austin, in Leftwich's Brigade, which went from Bedford county, Va., in the war of 1812. On the death of Dr. Austin he was promoted surgeon, served till the end of the war, and was discharged on its close, at Ellicott's Mills, in Maryland. After the war he settled in Salem, Roanoke county, Va., as a practicing physician, and was there married, in 1816, to Maria Burwell, dau. of Major Lewis Burwell, and w. — Digges, daughter of Dudley Digges, Esq. After a residence of two years in Salem, he removed to Lynchburg, Va., where, in partnership with Jacob Haas, he published the Lynchburg Press. He remained in Lynchburg about four years. Having sold his shares in his Press to Pleasants (who afterwards fell in a duel) he returned to Salem, and resumed the practice of medicine. Thence he removed, in 1831, to Putnam, one of the suburbs of Zanesville, Ohio, where he died in 1835, aged 39. His widow still survives, and resides, 1873, in Davenport, Iowa. Their children were:

- 4-1. Fanny, d. in infancy.

4-9. Rev. SAMUEL GAINES DAWSON, was b. in Salem, Roanoke county, Va., March 17th, 1831. In his twenty-seventh year, he left the mercantile life in which he had been engaged from his fifteenth year, and after a brief course of study, was ordained a minister of the Baptist denomination, beginning his ministerial life near Marietta, Ohio. He preached in Virginia and Ohio until 1861, when he became pastor of the Baptist church at Lancaster, Ohio. In 1863, he assumed the charge of a Mission church in East Toledo, Ohio, where he is still located as pastor of the Second Baptist church of that city.¹ He m. in McConnellsville, O., Sept. 4, 1854,

"It will be remembered that this evening, at 7½ o'clock, Rev. S. G. Dawson will deliver a discourse concerning his ten years' pastorate in East Toledo, in the Baptist church, East Side, at 7½ o'clock. After the service in the church, the friends will gather at his house, on Fourth and Oak streets, for a social reunion and entertainment.

"The experience of any man who stands by a great city, and watches its development for a period of ten years, is replete with interest. How much more so must be the experience and recollections of a clergyman, who for an unbroken decade has marked not only the physical and material, but the spiritual growth of such a field as that which the returning years have ripened under his ministrations. We trust the Rev. gentleman will pardon us if on the eve of his anniversary service we take occasion to allude somewhat personally to the labors whose history the Baptist church of East Toledo can regard only with pleasure and satisfaction. His ministry, like his field, was comparatively a new one. Three years in the building of a church and the organizing of a congregation on the Ohio river, near Marietta, and two years at Lancaster, in this state, had filled the short interval between an active business life in Davenport, Iowa, and his undertaking what was then the mission work of East Toledo. One of the most influential of those through whose counsel Mr. Dawson entered this field was the late HORACE L. SARGENT, the fruit of whose labors is still abundant, notwithstanding his earthly work is ended. We may well imagine, though we cannot fully comprehend, with what anxiety and solicitude this field was entered. The possibilities were great, but the obstacles, from a human stand point, were even greater, and after all his toil another might come to gather in his harvest. And so we say, that standing in the present with the vague possibilities of those by-gone years crystallized into clear cut facts, the past seems but a story of some other and well nigh forgotten generation.

MR. DAWSON came into East Toledo on the 26th day of November, 1863, the day before Thanksgiving. At that time Toledo's boastful friends claimed 16,000 people. In the bounds of his parish on the east side, there were supposed to be about 800. But that parish extended from Grassy creek to the bay, and from the east bank of the Maumee to Clay Junction, about seven miles by ten. In these boundaries he has labored just ten years. * * * *

* * * The Baptist church was formed with nine members, aside from the pastor and his wife. The church has had in all, 154 members, and to-day numbers 114. There are two Sunday schools, enrolling over one hundred each.

The reader may gather a faint idea of the work of these ten years when we give the following figures:

MR. DAWSON has preached 1,750 sermons; attended over 1,000 prayer meetings; has superintended two Sunday schools most of these ten years, while teaching a class in each school; and has been Sunday school chorister all of this time. He has made visits innumerable, has attended over 200 funerals, and more than 50 weddings. He has seen the city grow from fifteen to forty thousand; his own parish from eight

Anna Maria Barker, dau. of Luther D. and Maria Devol Barker. They have had three children, all of whom d. young :

- 5-1. Frank Henry.
- 5-2. Maria B.
- 5-3. Mary B.

The compiler is indebted to Mr. Dawson for valued assistance in the compilation of these records.

The records of what is supposed to be another branch of this family were contributed by the Rev. James Madison Dawson, of Owensboro, Ky., 1872, as follows :

1. JOHN DAWSON lived in Stafford county, Va. He was an officer in the Revolutionary service, and was six feet six inches in height. He m. in Va., and, taking with him his family (except a son who had previously emigrated to Louisiana, and perhaps a married daughter), he removed, in 1817, to Shelby county, Ky. Thence he removed to Jacksonville, Ill., where he d. at the age of 89, and was buried with the honors of war. He had nine children :

He d. at his son Jackson's, in Ohio Co., 1844. By his first wife, above named, he had nine children, all of whom settled in Ky., and are named in the order of their ages, as follows :

hundred to twenty-five hundred ; church members on the east side increased from a dozen to three hundred ; one church building to six ; and Sunday school scholars from thirty to four hundred.

But while figures will not lie, they cannot tell all of the truth. This is simply the skeleton of ten years of toil and anxieties in the Black swamp of Ohio. It may be good as a skeleton, but this is all ; for the hopes and fears, the burdens and joys of such a life cannot be measured or expressed." — Toledo Blade, Nov. 26, 1873.

From William D. Dawson, Esq., Elizabethtown, Colfax Co., New Mexico, 1871, the following :

1. WILLIAM R. DAWSON (son of a Baptist minister, name not stated, whose ancestors came to Virginia in the colonial times) emigrated from Richmond in 1830, and settled in St. Louis Co., Mo., as a practicing lawyer, where he m. Ann Eliza Paynter, dau. of Julius Paynter, a cabinet maker, who had emigrated from Lynchburg, Va., a year or two previously. From St. Louis, W. R. D. moved to Franklin and Washington counties, Mo., where he engaged in school-teaching, farming, and the law, until about 1839. In this year he again moved to St. Louis, where he occupied himself in the newspaper business until 1847, when he again left the city. He shortly after settled in Cape Girardeau, Mo., and purchased there the South Missourian printing office and newspaper, which latter he converted into the Western Eagle, and continued to publish the same until his death in 1853. (His wid. m. Mr. John J. Sterne, of Jefferson city, Mo., and res. 1871, at Monticello, in that state). Two children:

2-2. Clay D., b. 1842.

Mr. WILLIAM D. DAWSON, the elder son, continued the publication of the Eagle, at Cape Girardeau, until 1856, when he sold out, and removed to Jefferson city, Mo., where he was also engaged in the printing business, and continued in the same until 1859. In this year, he emigrated to Colorado, where he engaged in printing, mining, farming and milling, until 1865, when he again went to Missouri. From this state, after a residence of two years, he removed to Colfax county, New Mexico (1867), where he has since been engaged in mining and publishing. He is now editor and publisher of the Railway, Press and Telegraph, at Elizabethtown, in that county.

Mr. CLAY D. DAWSON has also followed the business of his father, and is now (1871) one of the publishers and proprietors of the Maysville Daily and Weekly Appeal, one of the leading newspaper publications in California.

The following from Gen. James A. Dawson, Louisville, Ky., 1873:

1. JOHN DAWSON, b. either in Md. or Va., probably abt. 1720 to 1730, lived in Bedford county, Va. He m. Susan Wood, who was of English descent. They had four sons and several daughters:

- 2-1. Jeremiah, b. in Bedford Co., May 30, 1763, d. in Hart Co., Ky., Feb. 10, 1846; m.
- 2-2. John, removed to the Kanawha valley, W. Va.; had a family.

4-13. Gen. JAMES A. DAWSON was b. in Hart county, Ky., April 2, 1834. At abt. the age of 18 he began to write for the press. He studied law before his majority, was elected clerk of Hart county in 1858, and reelected in 1862. He was a democrat, but opposed to secession, voting for Mr. Douglass in 1860, and entering the Federal army in 1862, but resigning the next year, on receiving the nomination of the "Union Democracy" for register of the state land office. He was elected in August, and in the following month removed to Frankfort, the state capital. In 1867 he was reelected register, and before the second term expired, he organized and took editorial charge of the Louisville Daily Ledger, the first number of which was issued Feb. 16, 1871. On the inauguration of Gov. Leslie, in Sept., 1871, Mr. Dawson was tendered by him, and accepted, the position of adjutant-general of the state, which office he still holds. He has for the past two years resided in Louisville. ¹ He m. Aug. 23, 1859, Margaret H. Connelly, b. in Columbiana Co., O., Aug. 18, 1840, dau. of Dr. P. J. After his marriage he was sent as a soldier in the United States service to Detroit, Michigan, where he died shortly after, of a fever. His wife was with him at the time of his decease, and about one

¹ The Daily Ledger, which Mr. Dawson still edits, is now a well-established, prosperous and influential journal. "Gen. Dawson is a terse, clear writer; a marked political economist, and a man of severe moral courage. As an orator he has few equals, being ever ready in debate, strong in argument, and sure in all details of facts. He has several times canvassed the state of Ky., and has attained great popularity as a speaker. The Daily Ledger was established under great pecuniary difficulties, and its present firm existence is due to the untiring energy and perseverance of Gen. Dawson. It is now regarded as the official organ of the Democratic party in Kentucky." — Maj. H. T. Stanton, Frankfort, Ky., 1873.

NORTH CAROLINA.

The name of DAWSON is an old and honored one in North Carolina. Its earliest representative in the colony, so far as known, was JOHN DAWSON, who was one of the governor's council during the administration of Arthur Dobbs, chief-magistrate of the colony from 1754 to 1765. The governor was from Ireland. Whether or not the members of his council were of the same nativity is not stated.¹

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

1. It is not certainly known that the above named JOHN DAWSON had a family; but there is little reason to doubt, and strong reason to believe, that he had three sons, all of whom became prominent in the country, and were members, nearly at the same time, of the North Carolina House of Commons, as follows:

2-1. Levi, member from Craven county, 1790-1791; m.

2-3. William J., member from Bertie county, 1791. See forward.

2-1. Major LEVI DAWSON early espoused the cause of the country against Great Britain, and was appointed major of the Fifth North Carolina Regiment, by the Provincial Congress, which met at Halifax, in that state, April 4, 1776. He represented Craven county in the state legislature, then styled the House of Commons, during the years 1790 and 1791. It is understood to have been his son who was afterwards a member of the House from the same county, namely:

2-2. JOHN DAWSON was a member of the North Carolina House of Commons from Northumberland county during the years 1780, 1781 and 1782, and from Halifax county in 1787 and 1790. He settled on the Roanoke river in that county, and m. a Miss Atherton.¹ They d. leaving four young children, all sons, as follows:

3-2. Jesse Atherton, several years a member of the House of Commons from Halifax Co.; m.

3-3. Henry, m. a Miss Alston, and d. without issue.

3-4. John, d. in Maury Co., Tenn., 1843; m.

3-5. William, m. but d. without issue.

2-3. WILLIAM JOHNSON DAWSON was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina from Bertie county, 1791, and a representative in the United States Congress from that state from 1793 to 1795. He resided at Edenton, now in Chowan county. Very little more is known concerning him.²

2-1. JOHN B. DAWSON, a member of the House of Commons from Craven county, in 1833, afterwards removed to Louisiana, and represented that state in Congress from 1841 up to the time of his death, which occurred at St Francisville, La., June 26, 1845. It is said that he was born at Nashville, Tenn., in 1800.³ His parents were probably among the early emigrants to that state, but seem to have retained an interest in their former home, as the son is found there in 1833. At all events, there is no doubt of the connection of the congressman of La., with this family.⁴

3-2. JESSE ATHERTON DAWSON, a wealthy planter of Halifax county, N. C., represented that county in the House of

4-4. WILLIAM LEON DAWSON was b. in Warren county, N. C., Oct., 1840. His parents removed to Shelby county, Tenn., about 1822, and in 1824 to Maury county, in the same state. He was educated at La Grange College, Franklin county, Ala., and m. Jan., 1841, Ala F. Winter, b. at Tuscumbia, Ala., 1825.² They removed to Madison county, Miss., in 1843, where he engaged in business as a cotton planter. ² Youngest daughter of William Hooe Winter and Catharine Starke Washington ; the former from Charles county, Md., the latter dau. of Col. Harry Washington, Prince William Co., Va.

JOHN DAWSON (5-1 of this record) was b. in Maury Co., Tenn., Dec., 1841. He entered the state University of Miss., at 14, and after a year spent there, went to the Jesuit College at Georgetown, D. C., where he also remained a year. In Sept., 1859, he entered the Junior class at Princeton, N. J., where he was graduated in June, 1861, but left to join the Confederate army before his diploma was awarded. He entered what was called the Army of Tennessee as a private, and gradually rose in position to a captaincy, and, though in many battles, passed unhurt through the war, until near its close. In August, 1864, while sitting in the trenches near Atlanta, he was struck by a fragment of shell, and received injuries which were supposed to be mortal, the lower part of his face being torn away, and the chin and chest bones fractured. He, however, recovered sufficiently to return to Miss., in 1865, and for a time he edited a county newspaper, until elected clerk of the Circuit court. After serving one term in this office, he was reëlected without an opposing vote. He was afterwards displaced, to make room for an appointee of the military authority, and became associated with Oliver S. Luckett, Esq., in the practice of law. Failing health, however, constrained a cessation of all labor, and after an unavailing visit to the medicinal springs of northern Alabama he returned to Canton, where he d. in Oct., 1872, unn. He was talented and highly accomplished, brave, modest and refined in character. He d. in the faith of the Protestant Episcopal church, to which he belonged.¹

¹ "He was truly a gallant soldier, and bore his honors with the modesty of a maiden. Always present where danger led, in the front rank he received the fatal shell which so mangled and disfigured him. I saw him daily in his sufferings, and no one can truly appreciate John Dawson that did not see him then. To be brave in the fight was his nature; but stricken down, mangled, disfigured, his future and bright hopes gone, to witness in his sufferings his patience, gentleness and filial affection to his dear and devoted mother, was to see John Dawson in his greatness of heart and loving nature. The honors of the battle field he wore meekly, the sufferings of wounds he bore patiently. Of more than ordinary culture, he delighted in the classics, and amidst the beauties of poesy his nature revelled. He was gentle but firm, and I believe that no circumstances could be arranged, however difficult or trying, but what John Dawson would be the gentleman. As a son he was loving, kind and tenderly affectionate; as a soldier he was the bravest among the brave."—Memorial Address, by Major B. J. ceive private lessons and be near his brother, then a student at the University. After the commencement of the civil war he returned to Miss., and after the passage of the Confederate conscript law, compelling all youths of his age to enlist in the army, he chose the cavalry service, and during the siege of Vicksburg acted as the private secretary of Gen. Pemberton, for whom he entertained great affection. After the surrender of that city, and his exchange, he was attached to the Brigade of Gen. Wirt Adams. In consequence of exposure during the war he contracted rheumatism, from which, after a lingering illness, he d. in Yazoo Co., Miss., in June, 1871, unn.

Mr. JAMES T. DAWSON, a planter, residing at Enfield, Halifax Co., N. C., stated (1870) that his father, JAMES DAWSON, was b. in that county in 1792, and was son of JOHN DAWSON, said to have emigrated from England in 1769. The latter is reputed to have had brothers in this country, but the history of them and their descendants, if any, is not known.

Mr. JOHN DAWSON, merchant, and Mr. JAMES DAWSON, banker, wealthy and influential citizens of Wilmington, N. C., are brothers, b. near Castle Dawson, county Derry, Ireland, the former about 1802, the latter about 1817.

Mr. JOHN DAWSON emigrated to this country about 1818, and some five years later settled in Wilmington. He was for several years mayor of that city. He has been twice m. His children, issue of the first marriage, were a son, Richard, who d. young; and a dau., Mrs. Hall, also now deceased, leaving children.

Mr. JAMES DAWSON emigrated to Wilmington about 1838, entering the service of his brother as a clerk. He has been for many years engaged in banking, and is the founder and president of The Dawson Bank, of Wilmington, an institution chartered by the state. He has several children.

GEORGE DAWSON, an Englishman, father of the late senator, Wm. C. Dawson, of Georgia, lived for a short time in this state and m. here widow Ruth Skidmore. See Georgia records.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The oldest family of Dawsons in South Carolina appears to have been that of JOHN DAWSON, a native of Rowell, Westmoreland, England. A portion of the information which follows in regard to him and his descendants, was communicated in 1854-55, by his then only surviving son Charles Postell Dawson, Esq., of Charleston; by Arnoldus V. Dawson, Esq., of Charleston, a grandson; and by N. H. R. Dawson, Esq., then of Cahaba, now of Selma, Alabama, a great-grandson of the founder of the family in Charleston. For more recent information (1871-73) the compiler is indebted to Mrs. Caroline H. Dawson, of Aiken, S. C., to N. H. R. Dawson, Esq., above named, and to others, whose kindness is hereby gratefully acknowledged.

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF CHARLESTON, 1759-1812.

This family has been and is distinguished at the South for its wealth and culture, numbering among its members and connected by intermarriage with many of the leading merchants, planters and professional men of the country, and retaining much of the old-time spirit which esteems with just pride the memory of a virtuous and honorable ancestry. Its founder,

1. JOHN DAWSON, b. April 14, 1735 (N. S.), emigrated to the colony of South Carolina previous to 1759, and settled in Charleston, where he was an enterprising and successful merchant.¹ He was also the proprietor of extensive plantations. He was a member of the South Carolina convention of May,

1788, which adopted the Federal constitution of the United States.¹ He m. in South Carolina, Oct. 9, 1760, Joanna Broughton Monck, dau. of Col. Thomas Monck, and gr. dau. of Col. Thomas Broughton, of South Carolina.² She was b. at Milton plantation, in the parish of St. John, Berkeley, S. C., Oct. 7, 1743 (N. S.). They lived together fifty-two years, and d. in Charleston, he on the 7th May, 1812, and she July 5, 1859. He left a large estate. They had eleven children, as follows :

- 2-1. Mabel, b. at Dorchester, S. C., Aug. 5, 1761, d. June 14, 1762.
- 2-2. Joanna Monck, b. in Charleston, Oct. 29, 1762, m. Col. JOHN GLAZE, March 8, 1781, d. at "The Ponds," S. C., July 19, 1781.
- 2-3. John, b. in Charleston, July 8, 1765, d. in Charleston, June 3, 1823; m.

- 2-11. Charles Postell, b. in Charleston, Nov. 7, 1785, d. in Charleston, about 1864; m.

2-3. JOHN DAWSON, b. in Charleston, July 8, 1765, became a large merchant, and filled several public offices in his native city with honor. He was elected intendant of Charleston for three years successively, filling the office from Sept., 1806, until Sept., 1809. He was also one of the trustees of the Orphan Asylum, and was called, from his benevolence to the poor, "the Howard of Charleston." In 1811 he became cashier of the Bank of Charleston, which position he held until his death, June 3, 1823.¹ He m. Mary Huger, who was of Huguenot descent, a daughter of Col. John Huger,² of Charleston, where she d. Nov. 11, 1823. They had twelve children, as follows :

3-5. JOHN HUGER DAWSON, formerly a prominent merchant in Charleston, afterwards a planter at St. John's parish, Berkeley, which parish he represented a number of years in the senate of South Carolina, was b. in Charleston, Dec. 9, 1798, where he m. 1st, Feb. 26, 1824, Frances Lavinia Ford, who d. without issue, March 27, 1829, fourth dau. of Jacob Ford, Esq., of Charleston. He m. 2d, April 7, 1830, Ann Cornelia Ford, who also d. without issue, Jan. 10, 1831, second dau. of Jacob Ford, Esq. In 1843, Mr. Dawson removed to Texas, and now res. (1873) near Brenham, Washington county, in that state. He m. there, 3d, Feb. 11, 1852, Mrs. Mary Ann Armstrong, widow, dau. of the late Mr. William Mann. She was b. in Montgomery county, Tenn., Sept. 19, 1826, and d. in Washington county, Texas, Oct. 3, 1865. They had two children :

4-1. Mary Huger, b. Nov. 16, 1853, d. Sept. 21, 1857.

4-2. Mabel, b. Dec. 5, 1861, res. 1873, with her father, near Brenham.

3-6. LAWRENCE EDWIN DAWSON, b. in Charleston, Dec. 9, 1799, d. at Carlowville, Dallas county, Ala., Feb. 8, 1848, in his 49th year. He m. 1826, Mary Wilkinson Rhoades, of Beaufort, S. C., eldest dau. of Dr. Nathaniel H. Rhodes, and gr. dau. of Paul Hamilton, governor of South Carolina, and secretary of the U. S. navy, under President Madison. He studied law with his relative, Col. William Drayton, of Charleston, and was admitted to the bar, Jan. 12, 1821. He was a graduate of Judge Gould's Law School, of Litchfield, Conn. He practiced in Charleston until 1829, when he removed to Beaufort District, near Coosawhatchie, and practiced there until he was forced from ill health to abandon a very heavy and lucrative professional business in the year 1834. He then removed to the parish of St John's, Berkeley, where he occupied himself in planting and in literary pursuits, until 1842, when he emigrated to the state of Alabama, and settled near Carlowville, in the county of Dallas. He resumed the law in Alabama, and at the time of his death was getting into a large and very litigated practice. He was several times a member of the South Carolina legislature, but, preferring the profession in which he had been reared, and the ease and happiness of domestic life, he declined the nomination of his party for Congress in that state, in the year 1833-34, and was thereafter little in political life. He was a states' rights man, and in the exciting contests which resulted in nullification, gave the weight of his influence and talents to what he conscientiously believed to be the true doctrine of the constitution.¹

He was a communicant of the Episcopal church, from his 17th year, and died as he had lived, a devoted member of that communion. His w. was b. in South Carolina, Jan. 8, 1808, and d. at Carlowville, Ala., June 6, 1851. They had six children :

- 4-3. John, b. in Charleston, 1828, d. 1829.

3-8. OCTAVIUS HUGER DAWSON was b. in Charleston, Oct. 2, 1802. He entered his father's counting room while a mere lad, intending in time to become a partner, but his father dying while he was yet too young to conduct the business, he sought other occupation, and became connected with the State Bank of Charleston, as discounting clerk. He held this office until 1846, when, his health failing, he was induced to remove to Aiken, in the neighborhood of which place he purchased a farm, where he was gradually restored to health, and where he remained until his death, July 2, 1856. He was a man of the strictest integrity in all the relations of life. He m. Caroline H. Deas, dau. of Thomas H. Deas, Esq., of Charleston, where she now resides (1873). They had seven children :

and Greenville, S. C., and at the Virginia University. After leaving the university he read law, was admitted to the bar of S. C., and commenced practice at Abbeville. While at Abbeville he edited a newspaper devoted to the cause of nullification, which exercised a controlling influence on the politics of that county. He removed to Perry county, Ala., where he practiced law and edited a newspaper, and after residing there some years returned to his native state, and was elected by the Legislature, Commissioner in Equity for the Greenville district. This office he filled for several years, and he also edited for some years the Greenville Mountaineer. While in Alabama he became the author of a biographical history of the prominent men of Perry county, and he essayed a similar work relating to the distinguished men of South Carolina, but never completed it. 4-4. NATHANIEL HENRY RHODES DAWSON, b. in Charleston, Feb. 14, 1829, was educated at St. Joseph's College, Mobile, read law under his father and the Hon. George R. Evans, was admitted to the bar in 1850, and began the practice of his profession in Cahaba, Ala., in 1851. In 1855 he was nominated for the legislature, but, although he ran ahead of his ticket, he was defeated, his party being at that time largely in a minority in the county. He was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention of 1860, at Charleston and Baltimore, and the next year, after the outbreak of the civil war, he entered the service of his state, as captain of a volunteer company, the Selma cadets, forming part of the Fourth Alabama Infantry, whose fortunes and dangers he shared during twelve months in Virginia. In 1863 and 1864 he represented his county of Dallas in the state legislature. Towards the close of the war he commanded a battalion of mounted men which operated on the coast. Since 1858 he has resided in Selma, where he is now in the midst of an extensive practice, associated with Gen. E. W. Pettus, a distinguished officer of the Confederate service, and one of the ablest lawyers of the state. Col. Dawson is also a large and successful planter. "He has an imposing personal appearance, polished and agreeable manners, and stainless moral character. He has talents of a substantial order, combined with a cultivated mind and varied information."¹ He has a strong hereditary, as well as personal attachment to the Episcopal church, and in its parish and diocesan councils has taken an active part. He has also served as a lay deputy from Alabama in two successive General Conventions. In the fall of 1872, he was a candidate for presidential elector on the democratic state ticket. He had not been consulted as to the choice of his name, but he accepted the nomination, and participated actively in the canvass. His talents as a writer, and his ability, fluency and eloquence as a speaker, are well attested. In fortune, dignity, culture, the strength of his convictions and the courage and fidelity with which they are maintained, and his unflinching courtesy and politeness, he appears a truly representative man of the highest type of American character. He is yet in the prime of life, and though, out of aversion to that indescribable mixture of things called politics in Alabama, standing rather aloof from public life, seems peculiarly fitted for public trusts, and destined to a career of the highest honor and usefulness.

FAMILY OF REV. THOMAS DAWSON,

OF PENDLETON, S. C., 1872-3.

1. ISAAC DAWSON, grandfather of the above named Rev. Thomas Dawson,¹ was born at Maidstone, in Kent, England, 1719, and d. at Maidstone about 1817, being then in his 99th year. He, with his father, suffered persecution on account of belonging to the then despised sect of Baptists. He left but few descendants, several of his children, among whom were Samuel, Thomas, and one or two daughters, having d. without issue. His wife, Jane Dawson, d. at Maidstone about 1814, aged 90. Their only children who had families were :

- 2-1. Joseph, b. at Maidstone, abt. 1760, a Baptist minister at Lyme Regis, Dorsetshire, England, d. at London, abt. 1822 or 1823; and
- 2-2. Mary, who m. JOHN BEECHING, of Maidstone, and left three children, (John and two daughters), still living in Kent, England (1871).

2-1. JOSEPH DAWSON, b. at Maidstone about 1760, d. in London, about 1822 or 1823, was, as above stated, a Baptist minister at Lyme Regis, Dorsetshire, England, and m. Miss Eliza Clark, of that place. They had nine children, only four of whom lived to be of age :

- 3-1. Thomas, b. at Lyme Regis, March 4, 1790, res. 1872, at Pendleton, S. C.; m.
- 3-2. Samuel, was controller of customs on Prince Edward's Island, N. S., and d. there unm.
- 3-3. Joseph, b. at Lyme Regis, April, 1797, d. near Atlanta, Geo., March, 1871; m.
- 3-4. John Clark, was captain of an English East India ship, and d. at Sumatra or Java, of yellow fever, about 1821; unm.

NOTES. I. A clergyman of the church of England, named Dawson, was in South Carolina in the colonial times. He arrived in the colony in 1766.—Ramsay's History of South Carolina, vol. 2, p. 7, note.

II. JOSEPH DAWSON, a native of the south of Ireland (county Kerry or Cork), emigrated to Charleston in 1832, with family of four sons and four daughters. The sons were: 1. John, who d. in California. His sons, Francis J., accountant, and Richard, clerk, res. 1873, in Charleston. 2. Job, grocer, res. 1873, in Charleston, has son, Job, jun., stencil cutter, also of Charleston. 3. Francis, res. 1873, New York. 4. Joseph, druggist, res. 1873, Charleston; has family.

III. "FRANCIS W DAWSON, of The News (Riordon, Dawson & Co., 1867), was born in London, England, in 1840. At the time of the breaking out of the war between the Confederate States and the Federal Union, he was engaged on the editorial staff of a London newspaper. In December, 1861, he enlisted at Southampton, England, as a sailor on the Confederate steamship Nashville. On the arrival of the steamer at Beaufort, North Carolina, early in 1862, he was appointed a master's mate in the navy of the new Confederacy. This position he resigned in June, 1862, and joined the "Purcell Battery," Hill's division, army of Northern Virginia, as a private. In August, 1862, he was commissioned first lieutenant of artillery, and assigned to duty as ordnance officer on the staff of General Longstreet. In the spring of 1864 he was promoted to a captaincy of artillery, and in the fall of the same year was transferred to the staff of Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, where he served until the end of the war. When the Richmond Examiner was revived, in 1865, Mr. DAWSON became one of its local reporters. After the Examiner had been suppressed by the United States' military authorities, Mr. DAWSON accepted a position among the corps of editors of the Richmond Dispatch, and held it until the fall of 1866, when he became assistant editor of the Charleston Mercury, Nov. 19, 1866. This position he held until October, 1867, when he became one of the proprietors and editors of the Charleston Daily News."—From The Newspaper Press of Charleston, p. 181. Mr. D. is still, in 1873, a resident of Charleston, and editor of the News.

GEORGIA.

In regard to the family history of the late U. S. Senator, William C. Dawson, of Georgia, there has been much misapprehension. It has been generally supposed by the Maryland Dawsons, and those of Maryland descent, that he was descended from a family originally settled in that state. As will be seen below, his father came from England, and planted in Georgia a distinct and original family. As to the traditional southern offshoot of the Maryland stock, see some curious information accompanying the records of the families of that state.

FAMILY OF GEORGE DAWSON,

OF GREENE CO., GEORGIA, 1784.

Under date of March 3, 1871, the late Dr. Thomas H. Dawson, of Glenville, Ala., nephew of Senator Dawson, wrote as follows: ¹

“My grandfather’s name was GEORGE DAWSON. He came to the United States a British soldier during the war between England and the colonies, and believing England wrong in her course towards our people, he deserted as soon as he came in reach of Washington’s lines, and remained a soldier under him to the end of the war. After peace was declared he stopped a year or two in North Carolina,² and there married a young widow, Mrs. Ruth Skidmore, then the mother of one child,

¹ The letter was addressed to A. H. H. Dawson, Esq., of New York city, to whose kindness the compiler is indebted for the use of it.

² Peace was not formally “declared” until after the signing of the definitive treaty of peace in Paris, 3d Sept., 1783; but the war was considered as practically ended by the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, 19 Oct., 1781. In consequence of a general persuasion that peace was at hand, large numbers of soldiers were immediately paroled, went home, and were never recalled. Probably it was while paroled, pending the conclusion of the treaty, that George Dawson “stopped a year or two in North Carolina.” Otherwise the term of his residence in that state must have been brief, as he was living in Georgia in January, 1784, in which month the eldest child was born.

Samuel Skidmore. Shortly after their marriage they moved to Georgia, and settled on the head waters of the Ogeechee river, in Greene county,¹ the Indians having but recently left that part of the state to occupy the lands on the west of the river Oconee. Here my father, Gen. THOMAS DAWSON, was born, under a shelter covered with bark, on the 25th of January, 1784. He was the first white child born in the county of Greene. Here he grew to manhood, and filled most of the offices of trust and honor in the gift of the people. He died 26 Feb., 1846, near Greensboro, the county seat. My grandfather had five sons, Thomas, Reuben, John, George and William C. Dawson. The character and services of the latter are doubtless well known to you.

“My father, Thomas Dawson, had six sons, George Ashley, Thomas Henry, John Rogers, James Crosby, Reuben Josiah and William Curran, all of whom are dead, except Reuben, William and myself. Add to these Edgar G. Dawson, the only surviving son of my uncle, William C. Dawson, and you have all the living male representatives of my grandfather, except our sons, of whom there are some eight or ten.

“Our great grandfather's name was JOHN DAWSON, of Sutterby, in the county of Lincoln, England. His arms were granted in 1640. George, our grandfather, was born in Lincoln county, England. This is the best account we have been able to get of the early history of the family. Our grandfather never corresponded with any of his relatives after the Revolutionary war, but a letter received as late as 1866 from Richard Dawson, of Hertfordshire, England, furnishes these statements in regard to John Dawson, from whom, doubtless, we have descended. He states that all the men of the family were tall, with ruddy complexions, and blue or hazel eyes, were great sportsmen, keeping first rate horses of every class, and the best stock of all kinds.”²

From the foregoing, and letters of Reuben J. Dawson, Esq., of Greensboro, Ga., Edgar E. Dawson, Esq., of Baltimore, Md., and others, with the use of sketches of Senator Dawson and family in various published works, the following record has been compiled.

I. GEORGE DAWSON, said to have been a native of Lincoln county, England, came to America a British soldier during the revolutionary war, and deserted the British service to espouse the American cause. He m. in North Carolina, widow Ruth Skidmore, and with her removed to Greene county, Georgia, where they, in common with others, encountered the hardships and perils incident to all early settlements in our western and south western states. The Indians had not yet been removed from their neighborhood, and privations, self-denial, self reliance are said to have been granted in 1640. Perhaps Dr. Dawson may have followed up the clue given in the letter, and obtained satisfactory evidence as to the ancestry of his grandfather, George Dawson, founder of the family in Georgia. If an ancestor, John Dawson of Sutterby, 1640, must have been some generations removed from the Georgia settler of 1784. The letter is as follows :

"Albany Hall, Ware, Hertfordshire, May 7, 1866.

"Sir,

Your letter has been forwarded to me from Withcall, where my father resided, and after his death I remained there ten years, when I bought my present property. I will tell you what I can of my family. If you belong to us you are descended from my ancestor, Jno. Dawson, Esq., of Sutterby, in the county of Lincoln, whose arms were granted in 1640.* The Dawson family were all tall, fine men, ruddy complexions, with blue or hazel eyes, have always been great sportsmen, keeping first rate horses of every class, and the best stock of all kinds. It strikes me very forcibly that I have heard my father mention that one of the family belonging either to his uncle or great uncle was lost. The whole of my father's family are dead. Several of the names you state are our family names, John, Thomas, William and Sarah. I recollect a cousin of my father's, William, who had only one child, a son, George, who married the only child of Captain Stephens. They both died without issue, so that branch is extinct. I am the only son of Richard Dawson, and have two sisters; am married, and have one child; am a magistrate for the county of Hertford. I will seal this with our arms. We have few relations.

"If Jno. Wood, whom you mention, be the son of Wm. Wood, the cattle dealer, I have bought beasts of him, and fancy he and his brother, who were partners, were Yorkshire men. They were large jobbers. I have not seen either of them for 16 or 18 years.

"Several of our family are buried in St. Botolph's, Lincoln, and the monuments of the earlier branches are in the church at Sutterby, near Spilsby. It strikes me very forcibly that your grandfather was the brother of Wm. Dawson, who would now be about 110 years old, were he living. William had only one brother, and he himself standing about six feet high, a fine man, he is buried in St. Botolph's.

"Sincerely yours,

"Mr. Reuben J. Dawson."

* According to Burke, the arms of the Dawsons of Sutterby were granted to James Dawson in 1664.— See p. 5 of this work.

¹ "I may be prolix and prosaic, but I love to remember the mothers of fifty years ago, those who gave birth to Lucius Q. C. and Mirabeau B. Lamar, to WILLIAM C. DAWSON, Bishop George Pierce, Alexander Stuart and Joseph Lumpkin. I knew them all, and, with affectionate delight, remember their virtues, and recall the social hours we have enjoyed together, when they were matrons, and I the companion of their sons. And now, when all are gone, and time is crowding me to the grave, the nobleness of their characters, the simplicity of their bearing in the discharge of their household duties, and the ingenuousness of their manners in social intercourse, is a cherished, venerated memory. . . . They were sensible, modest and moral women, and their virtues live after them in the exalted character of their illustrious sons."—Sparks' The Memories of Fifty Years, p. 100.

2-7. Col. GEORGE DAWSON, b. in Greene county, Ga., March 28, 1795, m. June 17, 1818, Sarah Branch, of North Carolina; was many years sheriff of Greene county; d. leaving one son:

3-25. George Malcomb, d.

2-8. Hon. WILLIAM CROSBY DAWSON was b. in Greene county, Ga., Jan. 4, 1798. After an academic course, taken under the direction, first, of the Rev. Dr. Cumming, a Scotch-Irish divine of great learning and piety, and afterwards at the county academy in Greensboro, he entered the Franklin College, of Athens, at an early age, and was graduated from that Institution in 1816. He devoted the following year to the study of the law in the office of the Hon. Thomas W. Cobb, at Lexington, and then entered the famous law school of Judges Reeve and Gould, at Litchfield, Conn., where he took a full course of lectures. On his return to Greensboro, in 1818, he was admitted to the bar, and at once entered upon the labors of his profession in his native county. He had a buoyant temperament, a vigorous constitution, and studious, industrious habits, and he soon acquired a large practice, which was also a lucrative one for those times. Although in the course of his life often in public service, he was, up to the time of his death, except when on the bench, a laborious practitioner, and even when a member of the United States Senate the recesses of Congress were occupied with professional labors.

In 1821 he was elected clerk of the House of Representatives of the state legislature, which office he continued to fill through frequent changes of party supremacy, for ten or twelve consecutive years. In 1828 he compiled and published, by legislative appointment, the statutes of Georgia, and in 1834-5, he represented his native county in the state senate. He was captain of a volunteer company in the Creek and Seminole war of 1836, and was entrusted by General Scott with a separate command, and detailed for a special service, in the performance of which he distinguished himself for his gallantry and courage. From that year until 1841 he was a representative in the National Congress. In 1840 he was nominated by the Whig party for governor, but was defeated. His defeat was attributed to a vote he had given in Congress in favor of including tea and coffee in the tariff for revenue ; and construing his defeat into a disapproval of his congressional course, he resigned his office of representative, and gave himself up to his profession. He was a very effective advocate, and where important interests had to be litigated he was generally retained as leading counsel.

In 1845 he was appointed, by Governor Crawford, a judge of the Supreme Court of the Ocmulgee district, to fill a vacancy. He accepted the office until an election could be had by the legislature, but declined being a candidate for the bench, although assured of an election had he been willing to continue in the office.¹ Two years later he was elected to the senate of the United States, in which body he held an honored place and commanded a wide influence until the expiration of his term of office in 1855. His failure of a reelection was no doubt a serious disappointment to him, but he declared that he should leave the senate without any personal regrets. Probably no one of the many offices of trust and honor which he held through the partiality of his fellow citizens was more esteemed by him than that of grand master of the Grand Lodge (masonic) of Georgia, which high position he held from 1843 until his death.² This event occurred suddenly, with only a few hours' warning, at his home in Greensboro, May 6, 1856. The announcement took the country by surprise, and the press everywhere noticed it in terms of the highest respect for his character, and sorrow for his death.

² His portrait was published, in a handsome lithograph, by the proprietors of the Masonic Signet and Journal, at Atlanta, about the time of his death ; and masonic bodies throughout the country testified by resolutions and otherwise their deep sense of his loss. The following is a list of masonic lodges supposed to have been named in his honor : Dawson Lodge, No. 16, Washington, D. C. ; ditto, 183, Winchester, Wayne Co., Miss. ; ditto, 129, Scottville, Claiborne Parish, La. ; ditto, 69, Crawfordsville, Taliaferro Co., Ga. ; ditto, 68, Social Circle, Walton Co., Ga. ; ditto, 244, Oakley Street, Butler Co., Ala.— Universal Masonic Record and Directory, 1860.

those of a vigilant, industrious man of business. He was characterized by good sense and a manly independence. In Congress his capacity for affairs secured for him the chairmanship of two important committees, one of which, that on claims, is considered one of the most laborious and useful positions appertaining to the national legislature. He spoke rarely, and when he did take the floor it was upon a question requiring action. His constituents were served with the utmost fidelity, and, if not a great statesman, he was a conscientious, intelligent, liberal minded legislator, whose public acts were never influenced by a corrupt or unworthy motive.¹

The testimony of those who knew him well is that he was ever, in his private life, one of the purest and most blameless of men. He delighted in the sports of the turf and the field, always keeping a fine pack of fox-hounds, the fleetest in the country, which he spared no expense in procuring.² Though highly refined and courtly in his manners, he was eminently social in his nature and habits. He had a keen wit, was skillful in repartee,

¹ "Will you, who yet live, and were children when I was a child, turn back with me in memory to those days, and to those who were your school fellows and play-mates then? Do you remember who were the brave and generous, kind and truthful among them? and do you recall their after lives? Answer me; were not these the true men in that day? Do you remember William C. Dawson, Joseph H. Lumpkin, Lucius Q. C. Lamar, and his brother Mirabeau B. Lamar, Eugenius Nesbit, Walter T. Colquitt and Eli S. Shorter? How varied in temperament, in character, in talents, and yet how like in the great leading features of the soul! Love for their country, love for their kind, love for the good was common to them all; unselfish beyond what was necessary to the wants of their families, generous in the outpourings of the soul, philanthropic and full of charity. They hoarded no wealth, nor sought it as a means of power or promotion. Intent upon the general good, and content with an approving conscience and the general approbation, their lives were correct and their services useful, and they live in the memory of a grateful people as public benefactors."—Sparks' The Memories of Fifty Years, p. 168, see also pp. 174, 180, 485.

and for harmless fun and innocent frolic he had a peculiar relish. The recollection of his anecdotes, his pleasantries, and his practical jokes, is still fondly cherished by his former associates.¹

“In the courts and in tavern-halls, on the wayside and in grave assemblies, his sympathies with the people found means of expression. Without effort on his part, he was always the centre of a listening crowd, eager to know his opinions, and to catch the playful humor of his conversation. He knew more men personally than any man of his day; and those he did not know he seemed to know. A cordial grasp of the hand, a word of recognition, a bow, a pleasant inquiry, or a bantering salutation, as well as good offices, were the price which he was wont to pay for golden opinions. But let it not be understood that for selfish ends he thus bought the favor of the people. That a man of his sagacity should not know that such means would result in available popularity is not a possible conclusion; yet those who knew him well are convinced that, irrespective of availability to such an end, his mode of intercourse would have been the same. As a proof of his attractiveness as a man, and in memory of the kindness of his nature, let it be recorded that many of his clients, whilst opposed to him in opinion, sustained him as a politician. Rarely, indeed, do party ties yield to the claims of private friendship. The former are usually stronger than even those of nature. The personal qualities referred to, with his firm mind, and strong, pure character, made him for many years the most popular man in Georgia.

“His knowledge of men was very remarkable, as well as his tact in their management. If required to name the quality of mind which, more than any other, contributed to a career as a lawyer and statesman which cannot be designated otherwise than as brilliant, I should point to his power of insight into character. No man knew better how to control the conduct of others by touching those springs of action which are hid from the ordinary observer. This faculty was native; yet it derived efficiency from a large experience. He studied men as some people study books, and made a better use of them than philosophers often make of the facts of science. In the extracting of testimony from an unwilling witness, in its elucidation before the jury, in the selection of jurymen, in fencing and foining with an adversary, in detecting the idiosyncrasies of the judge, and more especially in exposing fraud lurking in the details of complicated transactions, it availed him as an instrument of tremendous power. Shrewd and quick of eye, he was prompt to seize a vantage-ground, to recover from a false move, or to discover and storm the weak points in a cause. He knew when to beat a retreat, or how to capitulate with the honors of war, to break the force of an argument by a timely jest, or to overwhelm his antagonist with the clear, outstanding equity of his case. And if, perchance, there was anything ludicrous in the claims or conduct of the adverse litigant, he was wont to ignore gravity, and 'laugh the case out of court.' Without disparaging his learning, it must be conceded that he was most powerful in the management of a cause and as an advocate.

"In legal decisions he relied more upon elementary principles than adjudicated cases, and was greatly indebted to the native suggestions of a vigorous mind. His was not the error of crushing a case under accumulated authority, or the folly of stifling it in a cloud of remote analogies. It was not his habit (like his great contemporary, John Macpherson Berrien) to reduce an argument to mathematical exactness whilst he clothed it in the drapery of the most exquisite rhetoric, yet it was his good fortune to see the strong points of a cause, and to present them with a sturdy logic.

"Judge Dawson was noted among his brethren for his skill in settling cases out of court, more especially such as he foresaw would scarcely be settled favorably in the court-house. He knew the value of compromising. Nor is it otherwise than true that his out-door settlements were characterized by liberality and forbearance. At all events, the loser not unfrequently came out of his hands believing that he was, after all, the favored party.

"It was his thorough knowledge of human nature that enabled him to adapt himself with such peculiar facility to the company he might chance to be in. He was not a learned man, yet he was at home more than most men in a circle of savans. And he was equally at his ease on the streets of Greensboro and at the dinings of Count Bodisco at Washington. He was all things to all men, not in the sense of hypocritical adaptation, but of amiable accommodation.

“The person is to be considered in acquiring correct views of a man. Especially is it an element of strength or of weakness in oratory. In this regard he was favored. He was above medium height, but well knit, combining strength with activity. His face would attract the observation of a stranger, not because of its intellectuality, but through its benevolent and various expression. His voice was strong, his walk elastic, and his attitude erect. And pleasant, indeed, it was to observe the movements of his small, quick, vigilant and hilarious gray eyes. He was a free and ready speaker, rather vehement in manner, handling facts with adroitness and arguments with force. He owed little to the schools or the classics. He was not wanting in sensibility (the soul of true eloquence) nor in a just appreciation of great themes or great occasions. Hence his most successful efforts were made when some great question of popular right had stirred the masses, or the life or estate of a client hung upon the verdict of a jury. At such times he was eloquent. Sensible himself to every generous or noble or compassionate emotion, and detesting every form of meanness, I have seen the listening jury melt beneath his appeals or glow beneath the fire of his denunciations.”¹

Mr. Dawson m. 1st, in 1819, Henrietta M. Wingfield, dau. of Dr. Thomas and Sidney Wingfield, of Greensboro. Her father was an eminent physician, whose family had emigrated to Georgia from the state of Virginia. She was b. 1802, and d. in Washington city, D. C., April 7, 1850. To use her husband's own language, she was “the chief source of his happiness and success;” and in the language of another, “She was a lady of great beauty, of refined tastes, easy yet dignified manners, remarkable for good sense, and distinguished for her intense yet unostentatious piety. She possessed in a remarkable degree the almost indescribable quality which is indicated by the word ‘sensible,’ a word which, in its application to women, means an almost intuitive perception of what is proper under all circumstances. Without bringing down upon herself the unpleasant observation of the world, or violating the delicacies peculiar to her sex and station, she, with consummate address, became his strongest auxiliary in every honorable aspiration of his life. With him she ascended gracefully to the highest level of social life at Washington. She adapted herself to his circumstances, gave to practical things the aid of her sound judgment, to the hospitalities of his house the elegancies of a cultivated taste, to her children the unwearied assiduities of a mother, to the poor profuse charity, and to God the devotion of a meek and quiet spirit. Judge Dawson appreciated the character of his wife, and repaid her love with the most marked respect and most unremitting tenderness."¹ They had eight children :

3-3. DR. THOMAS HENRY DAWSON was b. in Greensboro, Greene county, Georgia, April 8, 1809. After the usual academic course, he studied medicine, and practiced extensively, becoming eminent in his profession. He united, while very young, with the Methodist Episcopal church, and was remarkable from his earliest years for the purity and probity of his life. He lived in various places in Georgia and Alabama, and every where, by the force of his character, the light of his virtues, and the power of his intellect, he was prominent, influential and useful. He was, for some time, a representative and senator in the state legislature, and was tendered, but declined, a nomination to Congress. In later years he became noted in his part of the state as a preacher, having been licensed in 1833. He always remained, however, what is known in the peculiar economy of the Methodist church as a "local" preacher, not devoting himself exclusively to the ministerial work, but combining with it the labors of a doctor, planter and legislator, thus "serving the church and his fellow men in the use of all his gifts." He was ordained a deacon in 1837, and an elder in 1843. He is described by Bishop Pierce, of Alabama, as having possessed "a striking presence, a glowing countenance, a soft, ringing voice, a quick, fertile, ready intellect, a heart of tender sensibility and powerful enthusiasm, all sanctified by simple, fervent piety." As a minister he was popular, able and effective, and the common opinion of those best fitted to judge of his qualifications for the ministry, his endowments of heart and intellect, is, that if he had given himself entirely to this work he would have ranked foremost among preachers. A great part of his life was spent in labor among the poor and obscure in works of simple, unostentatious charity, wherein, as minister and physician, and as freely in one character as the other, he devoted himself to the humblest of the numerous very poor of his neighborhood. He had in a rare degree the faculty of adapting himself to any company in which he might be thrown, and hence was a great favorite in social life. Families vied with each other in their efforts to secure his company, and cherished the recollection of his visits as among the most pleasant episodes of their home life. He was truthful, candid, unbiassed, a safe counsellor, and a frequent arbitrator in cases of difficulty between neighbors. Before the outbreak of the civil war Dr. Dawson had become a man of large wealth. The war cost him the loss of the greater part of his estate, and financial misfortunes followed which for a time embarrassed and depressed him. But he speedily rallied, and at the time of his decease had, to a considerable extent, repaired his wasted fortunes. At all times his house was the home of his friends, and it was rarely without a visitor. He d. at Glenville, Ala., from apoplexy, June 19, 1873. On the previous day he had, in apparent health, been about his usual avocations, visiting among others an indigent patient whom he had attended gratuitously for more than a year, and while informing her that she must shortly die, so directing her thoughts and his own that both passed a very happy hour together. That evening he led a prayer meeting, and so closed an exemplary and eminently useful life, for his death occurred suddenly in the night a few hours after, and almost at the same moment, it is said, his patient died also. The language of a resolution passed by the Eufaula District Conference, July 30, 1873, "That in the death of Dr. Thomas H. Dawson the church has lost one of her ablest and most beloved ministers, the state a wise and true Christian patriot, his companion and children an affectionate husband and father, and the community in which he lived its most useful citizen," expresses sentiments which were repeated in substance in numerous newspaper notices of his decease, and by the various societies and associations with which he was connected.¹

FAMILY OF JOHN EDMONDS DAWSON,

From Mrs. A. P. Hill, of Atlanta, Ga., 1873, and others, the following :

1. Major JOHN EDMONDS DAWSON, b. in Virginia, 1775, m. near Petersburg, in that state, Annabella Burwell, a native of Dinwiddie county, daughter of John Burwell. They removed from Virginia to Georgia about 1802, and settled in Washington county, near Oconee river. After a residence of some years in that county, during which he was its representative in the state legislature, they removed to a plantation on Little Indian creek, four miles from Madison, in Morgan county, Georgia, where he d. in 1811, aged 36.¹ He was elected to the legislature in Morgan county two weeks before his death. He was the intimate friend of Governors Milledge and Irwin, a man of great popularity, a successful planter, wealthy and talented. His wife survived him. They had five children :

2-1. Ann Burwell, d. in Wetumpka, Ala. COOK.

2-2. John Edmonds, b. in Washington Co., Ga., March 7, 1805, d. in Tuskegee, Ala., Nov. 18, 1860 ; m.

2-3. Mary Frances, d. in La Grange, Ala. COOK.

2-4. Armistead Burwell, d. in Mississippi, 1855 ; m.

2-5. Annabella Powell, b. 1810, res. 1873, Atlanta, Ga. HILL.

2-1. Anna Burwell Dawson (dau. of Major John E.), m. SIDNEY COOK. She d. in Wetumpka, Ala., leaving six children :

3-2. Anna S., m.— ELLSWORTH.²

3-3. Mary F., m. B. F. NOBLE, res. 1873, Montgomery, Ala.³

¹ It is said that he was the eldest child and only son of his parents, and it is a tradition, for the fact is not stated positively, that his father was Henry Dawson son of an English emigrant. Major John E. Dawson had sisters, Mary and Rebecca. Mary m. Col. Richard Blount, of Va., and d. in Milledgeville, Ga., leaving one child, Mary Ann, who res. 1873, at Milledgeville, widow of the late Gen. John W. A. Sandford. Rebecca m. a Mr. Turner of Northampton county, Va., and d. there, leaving several children.

² A daughter m.— RANDLE. There were also two sons young and unm. 1873.

³ A daughter m. Col. TATE, of London, England. There were also two daughters and two sons, unm. 1873.

- 3-4. [COOK.] Monimia, d.—, m. Dr. J. T. TICHENOR.¹
3-5. Barclay, m. Patty Blivins, of Selma, Ala., d. soon after marriage.
3-6. John, killed in battle of Chancellorsville, Va., May, 1863; unn.

2-2. Rev. JOHN EDMONDS DAWSON was b. in Washington county, Ga., March 7, 1805, and spent several years of school life at the academy at Madison, in that state. He m. before attaining his majority, and shortly after, in 1827, himself and wife united "by experience" with the Indian Creek Baptist church, of the Ocmulgee district, Georgia. In his whole subsequent life he was active and earnest in whatever he deemed calculated "to promote the glory of God and the interests of the church." Following the business of a planter for some years after his union with the church, he was yet early engaged as its trusted and honored agent in various capacities, and was largely influential in shaping the affairs of the denomination in that new country. In 1834 he was licensed by a unanimous vote of his church "to exercise his gifts in preaching and exhortation," and in 1835 was formally "ordained and set apart to the work of the gospel ministry." He preached that year at Eatonton, and in the following January became pastor of the Baptist church at Columbus. The next year, 1837, he spent near his former residence in middle Georgia, as pastor of the churches at Indian Creek and Eatonton, with occasional service at Monroe, Monticello and Forsyth. He resided at Eatonton from 1838 until 1841, and had, in addition to the pastoral care of the church at that place, charge, during most of the time, of the church at Forsyth. In 1841 he removed to Madison, and opened a female school, the management of which he resigned the year following, upon his removal to La Grange, where he became principal of the Female Academy and pastor of the Baptist church. The work of teaching was irksome to him, "his whole heart being in the ministry," and after a short time arrangements were made that enabled him to devote his time entirely to his favorite work. In 1847 he resigned the ministry of the church at La Grange, and commenced his second pastorate in Columbus, in November of that year. In 1853, while still pastor of the Columbus church, he went on a mission to New Orleans, under an appointment from the Domestic Board of Missions, and during a residence of some months there organized the First Baptist church of New Orleans, and secured funds and matured plans for the erection of a fine house of worship. In 1856 want of health compelled his resignation of his pastoral care at Columbus, and thereafter, except by an occasional sermon, he did not engage in the work of the ministry. When, subsequently, health seemed partially restored, he accepted an agency to raise money for the endowment of a professorship in Mercer University, an institution in whose welfare he always felt a deep interest. In 1858 the degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the University, and in 1859 he was tendered and accepted the editorial chair of the South Western Baptist, and, though then in confirmed consumption, he conducted that periodical with marked ability, writing "with great vigor, and versatility, showing a logical acumen above his ordinary pulpit efforts, and a power of analysis and discrimination quite remarkable, with a style luminous, tasteful and spirited." His brave and hopeful, but unavailing struggle with disease terminated in his death, which occurred at the house of his friend, Dr. Cullen Battle, in Tuskegee, Ala., Nov. 18, 1860. His remains were removed to Columbus, for interment, where the church erected an elegant monument to his memory.

"Dr. Dawson was long one of the most influential of the Baptists of Georgia. He was possessed of talents of uncommon order, of an eloquence that carried all before it, of a zeal that consumed his own life, of a piety that was undoubted." "He had a delicate sense of honor, keen sensibilities, and quick, impetuous temper, combined with generous impulses, and a warm, sympathetic nature. He was a very fearless man, and was the embodiment of courage, both mental and physical. Grace subdued him, and modified all his character. . . . He never studied oratory, he never tried to be an orator, he was an orator because he could not help it; his eloquence was inborn; he had only to rise in an assembly, and every eye was fixed on him; he had only to speak, and that in the most artless and effortless manner, and every ear was attentive."¹ to La Grange, where he was twice reëlected to the same office, which he filled with signal ability until the autumn of 1853, when he voluntarily retired from the bench, and resumed the practice of his profession. He was candidate of the Whig party for governor of Georgia in 1869, and, although defeated, bore himself gallantly in the contest and received all the support which the state of politics in Georgia at that time would enable the most popular leader of his party to command. As a judge he was eminently distinguished for a prompt and clear perception of all the points in a case, and for the ease, grace and vigor with which he separated, arranged and combined them. In the moral attributes of a good magistrate he was no less eminent than in the intellectual. Scrupulously honest, he guarded incessantly against the inroads of passion and prejudice, and held the scales of justice with an even hand. To do right was his constant aim. In private life he was noted for his kindness of heart, amiability of temper, urbanity of manner, and generous hospitality. While addressing a meeting of his fellow citizens at La Grange, he was stricken with paralysis, and from that time he declined rapidly until his death, a few days later, Nov. 20, 1860.¹ Mrs. Hill res. 1873, at Atlanta, where she is principal of the Orphan School. She is the author of an admirable "Life" of her brother, the Rev. Dr. John E. Dawson, and of other works. They had eleven children :

3-20. Capt. EDWARD YOUNG HILL, b. in Monticello, Ga., March 31, 1833, at the age of twelve removed with his parents to La Grange, where he received a liberal education, and developed, early in life, fine literary tastes, and a strong inclination towards literary pursuits. He undertook the editorship of the La Grange Reporter, in which capacity he displayed excellent talent. Relinquishing his editorial connection for the purpose of devoting himself to the law, he removed to Marengo county, Ala., and while there contributed to the Reporter in prose and verse.¹ At the outbreak of the civil war he espoused the cause of the South, entered the Confederate army, and was killed in the battle of Gaines' Mills (Coal Harbor), June 27, 1862, at the time being a captain in the 9th Ala. Regt. He lost his life at the head of his company. He m. in Alabama, Maggie Baptist, formerly of Virginia, who survived him but a short time. They had no issue.

3-21. JOHN DAWSON HILL, was b. in Monticello, Ga., in 1839. His parents removed to La Grange in 1845, where he received the ground work of his education. In 1855 he entered the military school at Marietta, where he remained three years, maintaining a very high grade of scholarship. At the inauguration of the civil war he was pursuing his chosen profession, civil engineering, but a short time after, he joined the Evans Guards, just organized in Troup county, and was elected second lieutenant. In the formation of the Regiment he was appointed adjutant of the 13th Georgia, with which he served through the winter of 1861-2 in Western Virginia. In the spring he was

¹ One of his best poems is entitled GEORGIA. It was first published in the Reporter, but has been extensively reproduced by the press of the country. It is a fitting tribute to a noble state:

- I. "Fair Georgia! how my full heart swells
As that proud name salutes mine ears:
What scenes it wakes in memory's cells,
How proud thy destiny appears!
Although no more among thy hills,
Thy wandering son a home may claim,
My lyre in boldest measure thrills,
Whene'er I breathe thy glorious name.
- VIII. "Great Empire of the sunny South,
Thy wanderer greets thee from afar,
Thy praise is ever in my mouth,
Upon our flag thou brightest star!
May thy June rays beam ever bright,
Thus will I pray where'er I roam,
May no fell discord quench thy light,
Land of my birth — my youth's loved home!"

recalled to Georgia (Savannah) for state defense, and in June, 1862, was again ordered to Virginia, where he participated in the battle of Gaines' Mills (in which his brother, captain E. Y. Hill, lost his life), and in the second battle of Manassas. At Sharpsburg (Antietam) the command, by the death of Colonel Douglass, devolved on him, acting as adjutant general of the Brigade. Here he also fell, and was left breathing his last in the hands of the Union soldiery. His life had been a pure and upright one, and his death was that of a Christian. In his last communication to his friends at home, the concluding sentence, after referring to the prospect of hard fighting, was as follows: "I do not know that I shall again escape, but if I fall, I have a good hope of a blessed immortality through the shed blood of our Redeemer." In gentleness, refinement, and social and Christian virtues, there were indeed few to rival him.* He never married.

NOTES. I. THOMAS H. DAWSON, Esq., a lawyer, residing at Vienna, Dooly county, Ga., communicated in Sept., 1854, the following account of his family, since which time no communication has been had from him, nor has other trace of the particular branch of the family which he mentions been found. The material parts of his letter are here quoted:

"Your favor would have been sooner answered, but for professional engagements, and want of time to think over the matter. I fear, however, I shall be able to enlighten you but little on the subject enquired about. I have been away from my family for a long time, and all I know with regard to it I received from my grandfather when I was quite a boy. Such, however, as it is, I cheerfully give it.

"My grandfather, RICHARD DAWSON, was a native of South Carolina. He informed me that his grandfather, Joseph Dawson — I think that was the name — was born in Ireland, married an English lady, and had two sons who emigrated to America. One of them, I think named THOMAS DAWSON [see note II. below], settled in South Carolina, and was my great-grandfather. He is said to have come to this country while quite young, about the year 1750, or later. His brother, whose name I have forgotten, settled in North Carolina or Virginia. The elder Dawson was said to be a near relative of Lord Percy."

II. THOMAS DAWSON was granted a lot of land in Savannah, June 2, 1742, and another, Dec. 28, 1742, by the Court of President and Assist-

Soon after the fall of Charleston, in 1780, and when disaffection to the Whig cause was general, two hundred and ten persons, who styled themselves "principal inhabitants" of the city, signed an address to Sir Henry Clinton in which they stated that they had every inducement to return to their allegiance, and ardently hoped to be re-admitted to the character and condition of British subjects. LOUISIANA.

1. JOHN DAWSON, b. Feb. 14, 1769, son of a merchant of Horncastle, Lincolnshire, Eng., emigrated to America about 1798, living first in New York. He visited New Orleans for purposes of trade and returned to New York in 1799, and in the fall of the same year to England. He had previously shipped goods to America (woolens, calicoes, etc.), sending home the products of the country. While in London (1799), he forwarded small consignments to New York and Charleston, and in the spring of 1800 he sailed to Nassau, W. Indies, taking with him goods to the value of £16,000 sterling, the joint venture of a friend in London and himself. He went thence the same year to New Orleans, where he settled permanently as a merchant, and d. in 1816. He m. abt. 1810, Mary Beaulieu, a native of New Orleans, of French descent. She is still living (1873). They had two children :

OHIO.

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF GREENE COUNTY, O., 1830-1870.

From Dr. W. W. Dawson, and Mrs. John F. Follett, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and others, the following :

1. JOHN DAWSON, was b. in Pittsburg, Pa., in 1782. The names of his parents are not known, but he is believed to have been a descendant of George Dawson, who emigrated from Maryland to Pennsylvania about 1770 — if so, probably a son of his son Henry.¹ He m. at Hagerstown, Md., Nancy Hays, whose father was of Irish birth. They removed early to Virginia, and settled at Darkesville (now in Berkeley county, W. Va.), where he engaged in the tanning business, which was his trade. He is said to have been a man of high moral character, “strong in sense, integrity and determination.” About 1830 he removed with his family to Greene county, Ohio, and settled at Jamestown, where he d. in April, 1870, aged 88.² His wife was born in Maryland, and d. in Ohio, 1866, aged 83. They had eleven children, most of whom were b. in Virginia :

2-3. Salanie, res. a wid. in Boone Co., Iowa. EVANS.

² He had a brother James, a stone cutter by trade, who lived in Pittsburg, Pa., and d. some years ago at an advanced age.

2-4. Dr. JOHN DAWSON was b. in Hagerstown, Md., 1810, but removed early with his parents to Darkesville, Va., (now in Berkeley Co., W. Va.), where he grew to manhood. About 1830 he removed with his father to Greene county, Ohio, and located at Jamestown, where he commenced the study of medicine, having for his preceptor, Dr. M. Winans, one of the leading physicians of the county, a good scholar, of large medical experience, and peculiarly qualified to be the guide and counselor of a young student.

Before entering upon the practice of his profession, Dr. Dawson attended a course of lectures at the Cincinnati Medical College, but his degree of Doctor of Medicine was conferred by the Medical Department of the University of Louisville, Ky., in consequence of contributions from his pen to the Western Journal of Medicine, and Surgery, published in Louisville. He commenced practice as the associate of his former preceptor, Dr. Winans (his father-in-law), at Jamestown, and pursued his profession through life with a devotion which insured success, and was rewarded by public confidence and private attachments. He was peculiarly a self-made man. Though absorbed in a large and laborious country practice he found time to contribute many valuable papers to the medical journals of his day, and was soon recognized as a writer of decided force and ability.

In 1851 he removed with his family to Columbus, Ohio, where he took high rank in his profession. At the solicitation of the trustees of the Starling Medical College (Columbus), he accepted the professorship of Anatomy and Physiology in that institution, which he continued to hold to the time of his death. As a lecturer he was exceedingly instructive and popular. For many years Dr. Dawson was sole editor and proprietor of the Ohio Medical and Surgical Journal, in connection with which he acquired an extended reputation as a perspicuous and able writer on professional topics. As a reviewer he was brought into correspondence with many of the most distinguished medical writers of England and America, by whom, it is said, he was regarded as one of the finest medical critics of his age. He wrote, also, on questions of scientific and political interest, evincing a remarkable fertility of mind and breadth of observation. An article from his pen, entitled "The Commingling of the Races," in which he argued, from a scientific standpoint, that the negro race was incapable of a spontaneous civilization, was essentially inferior to the white race and incapable of equal elevation, attracted much attention and made him favorably known to a large circle of readers outside of his profession. At the time of his death, which occurred Sept. 5, 1866, Dr. Dawson had in contemplation a work on anatomy, which he intended should be the crowning labor of his busy life, but his mind and body had been taxed to the utmost, and he passed away while yet in the strength of manhood, after a brilliant career of professional and literary reputation and personal honor. He m. Adelia Winans, dau. of Dr. M. Winans, above named. They had eight children :

2-11. DR. WILLIAM W. DAWSON, studied medicine in Jamestown, Ohio, and received his degree from the medical college of Ohio, in which he soon after became Professor of Anatomy. Resigning this position, he lectured for a time upon clinical surgery in the Cincinnati Hospital. In 1871 he was elected Professor of Surgery in the Medical College of Ohio, and surgeon to the Good Samaritan Hospital at Cincinnati. In 1869 he was elected President of the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine, and in 1871, President of the Ohio Medical Society. He has been a large contributor to medical journals, and is an industrious collector of medical and surgical statistics, frequently giving to the profession in pamphlet form, or otherwise, the valuable results of his labors. In the midst of an extensive practice he is an unwearied student. As a surgeon, Dr. Dawson is reputed among the most eminent of the profession in this country. He m. in Ohio, Margaret Yates Hand, dau. of Dr. James Hand, of Hillsboro, and grand dau. of Gen. Edward Hand, a distinguished officer of the Revolutionary army.¹ They have no children. Res. 1873, Cincinnati, Ohio.

3-13. Frances Mary Dawson (daughter of John, 2-4), m. Hon. JOHN F. FOLLETT, a distinguished lawyer of Cincinnati, where they reside, 1873. Mr. Follett was in 1868 speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives. They have two children :

FAMILY OF MOSES DAWSON,

OF CINCINNATI, O., 1819-1844.

1. MOSES DAWSON was b. June 9, 1768, in or near the city of Belfast, county Antrim, Ireland. According to one account he was a native of Carrickfergus, a small port on Belfast Lough, which is in the same county. He received his education, which appears to have been liberal, in Belfast, and spent his boyhood in that city. His ancestors were English, or of English descent; his great grandfather, whose name was William Dawson, a native of Lancashire, England, having removed into county Antrim about the close of the seventeenth century.¹ Moses Dawson served an apprenticeship to the business of his father, also named Moses Dawson, who was a linen draper; and he subsequently followed the same trade, in partnership with a brother, until the destruction of their establishment by fire. In his boyhood and youth, an intense feeling of hatred of British domination pervading Ireland, was organized and widely extended the society of United Irishmen, a secret social and political organization, having for its central object the independence of Ireland. Of this society he was an active and zealous member, and for his participation in it he was twice (in 1793 and 1795), arrested on the charge of seditious conduct, and imprisoned, barely escaping the fate of associates who were convicted and hanged as traitors and rebels. After his acquittal Mr. Dawson remained twenty years in Ireland, and resumed in part his old business, but he remained a warm Irish politician. He opposed the measures which resulted in the union of the Irish and British Parliaments, and in his old age strongly avowed his faith in the cause of the United Irishmen, and gloried in having been a "Rebel." When the political currents had become especially unsatisfactory to him, he took up the cause of the rising generation, and during the years 1810, 1811 and 1812, he was active in Belfast in the organization and administration of schools founded upon new methods of teaching, then recently introduced by Joseph Lancaster, a Quaker, and Andrew Bell, an English clergyman. In 1816-17 Mr. Dawson was concerned in the publication of a periodical at Glasgow, Scotland, wherein political subjects were discussed in a manner not at all, in the estimation of the authorities, edifying or agreeable. When his opponents were prepared for summary measures, he eluded an arraignment by crossing to America. The provost marshal of Glasgow offered a reward for his apprehension, but all efforts to get possession of his person failed. His family remained in Ireland up to 1822. They held the property from confiscation, but were not allowed to dispose of it, until 1821. In May, 1817, he arrived in Philadelphia, where he remained some time, but lost all his books and papers by fire. Thence he went to Lexington, Ky., where he remained, however, only a few months, and then removed to Cincinnati, Ohio, about 1818 or 1819, where he settled permanently. Here, soon after his arrival, he opened and taught a school on his favorite system (the Lancasterian), one of whose chief excellencies, in his view, was its freedom from religious proselytism. The school is said to have been conducted with great ability, but it was not well supported, and he abandoned it. He nevertheless remained a teacher, for he became an editor, and continued in Cincinnati, his familiar and congenial habit of writing for the public, begun in Ireland. He became in 1821, an associate editor, and in 1823 sole editor and proprietor of the Cincinnati Advertiser, and thus commenced a career in which he filled a very prominent position in the public eye, and was, for nearly twenty-five years, one of the most influential laborers of his time in disseminating intelligence, and molding public opinion. An extended series of articles, entitled "Reminiscences of Moses Dawson," were written for the Cincinnati Commercial by his friend C. Reemelin, Esq., of Cincinnati, and appeared in that paper, in November and December, 1869, and the early months of 1870. That writer, from whose Reminiscences most of the above facts have been obtained, says: "It is proper to state that the prominent trait of Mr. Dawson's life was his conduct as a partisan editor (using the term in its best sense), during the heated contests preceding General Jackson's election, and the warm discussions during Jackson's and Van Buren's administrations. Mr. Dawson did more to elect Jackson, and to make Van Buren his successor, than any other of their contemporaries, and he did it with the purest motives. His earlier life in Ireland, and his manifold editorials on numerous subjects, as well as his biographies of General Harrison,¹ and Van Buren,² are also interesting mementoes of his labors; but his relation to General Jackson, his defense of Mrs. Jackson,³ and his action as the leader in the cause in which Jackson, Van Buren, Calhoun, Benton, Woodbury, Felix Grundy and Polk, were the great men on one side, and Clay, Clinton, Harrison, Hammond and others, were on the other, constitute altogether, the most important part of Mr. Dawson's life."

¹ He m. at Lisburn, in county Antrim, a lady named Carson, and had sons named Robert, Samuel, William and Moses. Moses m. at Belfast a lady named Taylor, daughter of Andrew Taylor, of Belfast, and sister of Jesse Taylor, who came to America in 1799, and settled in Alexandria, Va. These were the parents of Moses Dawson, the emigrant, who is said to have had three brothers who also came to America. One of these was Washington Dawson, who emigrated to Philadelphia, where he d. and where his daughter, Mrs. Matilda Ward, yet lives. The names of the other two are not known. One is said to have come in 1792 to Philadelphia, and afterwards removed to Va.; the other in 1797 to New York, where he d. in 1816. One of his sons was in the United States service in the war of 1812.

Mr. Dawson was the Democratic editor "out west" in his time.⁴ He d. at Cincinnati, Dec. 4, 1844, a short time after making a trip to the Hermitage, the home of Jackson. The latter survived him but a short time. He wrote a letter, dated "Hermitage, Jan. 2, 1845," saying he was so sick as hardly to be able to hold a pen. Mourning the death of his friend, he said: "Peace to his memory, and consolation to his family."

Mr. Dawson m. at Carrickfergus, Aug. 21, 1796, Mrs. Jane Phillips (maiden name, Jane Blair), who was b. at Carrickfergus, Feb. 28, 1765, and d. in Cincinnati, O., Oct. 27, 1834. They had seven children, all b. in Ireland, as follows:

NOTES. I. NATHANIEL DAWSON, Esq., of Wells, Jefferson county, Ohio, d. May 4, 1857, aged 67.

"Mr. D. was b. in Maryland, Aug. 12, 1789, and moved with his parents, when a boy, to Western Virginia (the Pan-Handle,) near the close of the last century. About 1802, his father and family settled in Jefferson, Ohio, where he resided from that time up to his death. He was a man of punctuality, and upright and honest in all his dealings ; and from small beginnings, by industry and economy, in less than half a century, he accumulated a large estate, left to be distributed among his numerous offspring. He was a man of some talent, which he employed, not only for his own benefit, but also for the benefit of the community in which he lived. For more than twenty years he acted as a justice of the peace in and for Wells township. His judgments, rendered in cases of law suit which came before him, were generally correct, and gave satisfaction, so that but few appeals were taken ; and if at any time he erred in judgment in a law case, it was an error of the head, and not of the heart. In early youth he made a profession of religion, and joined the Methodist Episcopal church, to which his parents belonged." — Crosby's Annual Obituary Notices, 1857.

II. GEORGE DAWSON, a soldier of 1812, d. near New Burlington, Clinton Co., Ohio, abt. Dec. 1, 1872, in the 86th year of his age.

III. BENJAMIN DAWSON, for some years past a resident of Cincinnati, a dealer in tin, copper and sheet iron ware, is a native of Brandon, county Cork, Ireland. He has two sons engaged in business with him (1873), Robert and William.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The following records were postponed, out of their regular order, for insertion at the close of this work, in order that time might be gained for additions and corrections. (See p. 187). The labor expended upon them, during the brief time thus secured, has resulted in largely extending and improving them, and has given opportunities for their revision and correction, to a considerable extent, by correspondents and friends interested. The compiler desires to acknowledge his obligations especially to W. F. CORBIT, Esq., of Philadelphia, for a large part of the information embodied in these records.¹

The following facts, not clearly understood at the time of printing the former portion of "Pennsylvania" records, should be noted.

There were at an early day, in Philadelphia and its immediate vicinity (Bucks and Chester counties, Pa.), no less than five heads of families bearing the name of JOHN DAWSON.² These were :

I. JOHN DAWSON, hatter, of Moreland township, in Bucks county, and Philadelphia, said to have come to this country with his wife Dorothy, from London, in 1710. He joined the Quakers at Abington, 1730, and d. in Philadelphia, 11 mo. 27, 1742.

II. JOHN DAWSON, wheelwright, son of above, d. in Philadelphia, 1740. The father administered on his estate.

III. JOHN DAWSON, farmer, of Solesbury township, Bucks Co., whose will, dated May 31, 1753, was proved May 26, 1759. He was a Quaker of prominence, and a resident of Bucks Co., 1719, and probably earlier.

IV. JOHN DAWSON, of West Nottingham, Chester county, whose will, dated Feb. 24, 1756, was probated in 1757. His will mentions a son

² John Dawson, son of Emanuel, who d. 3 mo. 29, 1698, was probably an infant. Jane Dawson, w. of Emanuel, d. in Philadelphia, 1 mo. 30, 1698. Compare this with p. 187. She was probably first wife of the Emanuel Dawson there mentioned.

Joseph, and his w. Anne ; sons Samuel, Isaac and Nathan, each of whom m. and had children ; also a son John who was m. and had a son William.¹

V. JOHN DAWSON, son of John, of West Nottingham, above named. It is not supposed that John of Nottingham was related to those of his name in Bucks county, nor does it appear that those two were related to each other. One, or perhaps two of these, may have come up from Eastern Maryland, but probably each of them had emigrated from the old country.

Of the descendants of John Dawson, of West Nottingham, nothing more is known than the will reveals.²

But a meagre account has been obtained of the descendants of John Dawson, of Solesbury. Probably a more careful examination of the deeds, wills, etc., of Bucks county than is at present possible, may throw further light on the history of his family. Such information as has been obtained is embodied in the first of the following records.

The records of the descendants of John and Dorothy Dawson, which follows that of the family of John Dawson of Solesbury, embraces nearly two thousand names. But few of all the numerous living descendants of this couple now bear the name of Dawson. It seems, indeed, almost a misnomer to designate this as a Dawson family, when page after page is occupied wholly with other names. The record should be further extended and separately published under a title more expressive of its real character.

² It may have been an unworthy scion of this family, David Dawson, of Chester Co, who was attainted of treason, and executed at Philadelphia, in 1780. James Dawson joined the British at Philadelphia, was captured at sea, and came near suffering a similar fate.—Sabine's American Loyalists ; Pennsylvania Archives, 1783-1786, p. 609.

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF SOLESBURY, BUCKS CO., Pa., 1719-1759.

1. JOHN DAWSON, a member of the Society of Friends, residing in Solesbury township, Bucks Co., Pa., was at Falls meeting as early as 1719,¹ and was elected an assessor in that county in 1725, 1730 and 1734. He was appointed an overseer of Buckingham meeting, 2 mo. 4, 1730, and was released from the office 4 mo. 5, 1733. He seems to have been an active and useful member of the Society. His name appears in the records of the proceedings of nearly every meeting held for several years. His will, dated May 31, 1753, was proved May 26, 1759, and is recorded at Doylestown, in Bucks county. Children :

- 2-1. Thomas, sole executor of his father's will ; his daughter, name not given, a legatee.
- 2-2. Elizabeth, m. 1720, THOMAS BROWNE, had probably d. before date of her father's will, not being named therein. See below.
- 2-3. Ann, m. 1729, JOSEPH BROWNE, received legacy under her father's will. See below.

2-2. Elizabeth Dawson, m. at Falls meeting, Bucks county, Pa., 1 mo. 20, 1720, THOMAS BROWNE. They removed to Abington in 1739. A son :

- 3-1. Moses, b. 10 mo. 26, 1727, d. 2 mo. 26, 1758 ; m.

2-3. Ann Dawson, m. at Falls meeting, Bucks county, Pa., 1 mo. 29, 1729, JOSEPH BROWNE, brother of Thomas (2-2). Four children :

- 3-2. Abraham, b. 4 mo. 23, 1730.
- 3-3. Isaac, b. 6 mo. 18, 1731.
- 3-4. Ann, b. 2 mo. 10, 1733.
- 3-5. Joseph, b. 7 mo. 8, 1737 ; m.

3-1. MOSES BROWNE, b. 10 mo. 26, 1727, m. in Abington, then in Bucks county, now Montgomery, 12 mo. 31, 1753, Sarah Oldsworth. He d. 2 mo. 26, 1758, leaving two children :

4-2. Thomas, b. 7 mo. 16, 1757.

3-5. JOSEPH BROWNE, b. 7 mo. 8, 1737, m. Mary Preston, dau. of Jonas and Jane Preston. She d. 11 mo. 23, 1764, leaving two children :

4-3. Ann, b. 12 mo. 11, 1760.

4-4. Sarah, b. 10 mo. 3, 1762.

NOTE. On the 7th of Feb., 1733-4, "JOHN DAWSON, of Solebury, in the county of Bucks, yeoman," mortgaged 120 acres of land to the Trustees of the General Loan-Office of the Province of Pennsylvania. The land was situated in Solebury, adjoining lands of Thomas Head, Henry Paxton, Randal Spakman and Joseph Pike. The amount of the mortgage debt was £96. in the provincial bills of credit.

FAMILY OF JOHN DAWSON,

OF BUCKS CO., PA., AND PHILADELPHIA, 1710-1742.

1. JOHN DAWSON and w. Dorothy are said to have come from London, England, to America, in 1710. Their dau. Ann was then five years old. It is probable that their sons John and Daniel also came with them. His trade was that of a hatter. They appear to have been connected with the Society of Friends in England, but it is certain that he, at least, did not ask to be received in membership among Friends here for some years after their arrival. The family tradition is that he had been unfortunate in business in London. That he had left behind him debts there, appears from the following extracts from the Abington meeting records :

"1 mo. 3, 1729. Friends of Horsham requested on the account of John Dawson that he might be united to Friends, but being come from Old England without a certificate, by reason of some debts left unpaid, therefore the meeting do appoint John Cadwallader, Sampson Davis, and Thomas Lloyd to draw a letter to some of Dawson's creditors that are Friends in England to see if they are willing to forgive ye debt, and bring the letter to the next monthly meeting."

"2 mo, 28, 1729. A letter was brought, subscribed [addressed] to Friends in London in behalf of John Dawson, which was signed by several Friends."

The result of these friendly offices is seen in the following, extracted from the records of the same meeting :

"4 mo. 29, 1730. John Dawson produced a certificate from Friends of Horsleydown monthly meeting in London, which was read and accepted"

He was a resident of Moreland township (Bucks county, now Montgomery¹), and kept at Hatborough,² in that township, a tavern called the "Crooked Billet," carrying on also the hat-making business. He removed to Philadelphia in 1740,¹ or earlier, and d. in that city 11 mo. 27, 1742.²

² [MORELAND.] "The largest village was Hatborough, better known as the "Crooked Billet," containing about 18 houses (half of which were built of logs), a store, tavern, etc. This place derived its name from one of the first stone houses built here, which not long after became a tavern, and had for its sign, a Crooked Billet, which name was originally derived from a popular inn then in Water St.,

His widow, who is said to have been a member of Abington meeting many years before her husband united with it, seems to have retained her connection with that meeting, and to have returned, soon after her husband's death, to her former home or neighborhood. Later in life she made her home with her daughter, Ann Tomkins, near Phenixville, in Chester Co., and Philadelphia. JOHN DAWSON subsequently kept this house, and in connection followed his occupation of making hats, from which its more recent name of Hatborough. This house, it is reported was built about 1705, and has since been altered into a two story dwelling, now occupied by Jesse Walton, coach maker".—W. J. Buck's History of Moreland, in Collections of Historical Society of Pa., vol. 6, p. 189.

Other accounts are as follows: "John Dawson was the original settler of the 'Crooked Billet,' afterwards called Hatborough, where he carried on the hatting business. He there built a stone house, with the assistance of his daughter Ann, who afterwards married Bartholomew Longstreth. Here he kept a house of private entertainment, and had for a sign a hewn crooked billet of wood; hence the name, the "Crooked Billet." His hatters' tools were brought up to Abington in a lime wagon. Thence he set out into the woods, and for several miles had to open a road with axe and spade for his horse and cart to pass along." — Longstreth MSS.

"The Crooked Billet near Hatboro, was first settled by John Dawson, hatter, who having been unfortunate in trade in London, emigrated with his family to Philadelphia." — Letter of Daniel Longstreth to Watson, the Annalist.

"It would appear from some of my inquiries respecting the early settlement of Hatborough, that our ancestor, John Dawson, had lived in three different houses [there] on as many sites. The first was built of logs, in the rear of a house now standing nearly opposite to the end of the new road at the Upper Tavern on the west side of York road The second house.....was of stone.....its site opposite to Mordecai Thomas' hip-roofed house. It was on the east side of York road, and was the original 'Crooked Billet' tavern. My great grandmother, Ann Dawson, was mason-tender, and carried the mortar on a board, and the stones in her apron, whilst her father executed the masonry.....His last and third residence was in the east end of the old stone house on the west side of York road, between the old tavern and the creek Like the others it was originally but one story high, and now exhibits on the front, on the south side of the door, the initials I. D. D.— 1745." Daniel Longstreth, 1831. (If the initials were intended for John and Dorothy Dawson, as suggested by a correspondent, the date, as given, could not have been a part of the original inscription.— See notes as to his removal and death, below.

²Philadelphia meeting records. "Cousin Susanna Smedley, who resides with her son-in-law, Jonathan Hood, at Radnor, told me that our ancestor, John Dawson, a free mason, and founder of Hatborough (he was a hatter by trade), removed to Philadelphia, and d. at the corner of Church alley and Second St. in the house which John F. Watson, in his "Annals of Phila." says was the first brick house built in the city. The city regulation mark was always on this house." — Daniel Longstreth to Susanna Longstreth, 12 mo. 17, 1831. "The house continued to be occupied by some of his descendants until some time after the Revolution." — D. L. 1832. "John Dawson d. in Philadelphia, corner Second St., and Church alley, in the fifth brick house built in the city." — W. F. C. "No record of administration on his estate in Philadelphia: probably to be found at Doylestown, Bucks Co." (as he owned property in that county). — W. F. C.

her remains are said to have been the first interred in the Friends' burying ground, belonging to Pikeland monthly meeting, near Kimberton, in that county.¹ Their children were :

- 2-1. John, wheelwright, d. in Philadelphia, his father appointed administrator of his estate, 1740.²
- 2-2. Ann, b. in London, 1705, d. 3 mo. 18, 1783. LONGSTRETH; TOMKINS.
- 2-3. Daniel, d. in Philadelphia, 1 mo. 1, 1746; m.
- 2-4. Sarah. HANCOCK.
- 2-5. Isaac, d. in Philadelphia, 9 mo. 12, 1748; m.
- 2-6. Benjamin, b. about 1718, d. at Smyrna, Del., 12 mo. 5, 1793; m.
- 2-7. James.³

2-2. Ann Dawson, b. in London about 1705, came to America with her parents in 1710.⁴ She m. 1st, at Horsham, Pa., 11 mo. 29, 1727, BARTHOLOMEW LONGSTRETH,⁵ who was

² John is named first in the list of children, on the supposition that he was the eldest child, and the names of the other children follow in the order of birth as conjectured. What family John left, if any, is not known. The administration bond was dated Aug. 30, 1740, and the intended signers were, John Dawson, hatter, of Philadelphia city, Bartholomew Longstreth, of Bucks Co., yeoman, and Daniel Dawson, of Philadelphia county. The bond was signed only by the two latter. A blank left for the signature of John Dawson, was not filled, and no inventory of the estate was filed.

⁵ The name was variously written Longstreth, Longstroth, Langstreth, Langsteroth, etc. Longstreth is now the generally accepted orthography, and is therefore used uniformly in these records. For notices of the name and family, see Whitaker's History and Antiquities of the Deanery of Craven; Fuller's Worthies of England (Yorkshire), etc. According to a tradition, the father of Bartholomew was named Christopher. At the christening of the son, it is said that the father and godfather not agreeing as to a name, the officiating priest christened him in honor of the saint (Bartholomew) on whose day he was born. "He was five feet 8½ inches high," and "his person was heavy, thick set;" but his brother Martin, who also emigrated to America, and d. about 1727, "is said to have been seven feet 2½ inches in height. He was by trade a brazier, and occasionally travelled about the country seeking employment. He was familiarly called 'the long tinker.'" He had a daughter Elizabeth, who m. Francis Littlejohn, and d. near Philadelphia, in 1753, leaving eight children; and a son Bartholomew (sometimes called Bartholomew, junior), who in 1769 lived 150 miles west of Philadelphia, and had five children. Some of his descendants are said to have removed to Va. Daniel Longstreth, late of Warminster, Bucks county, Pa., from whose copious family memoranda much has been drawn for these records, noted the fact that he had "often heard that Bartholomew Longstreth had a brother Philip."

b. in Longstroth Dale, Deanery of Craven, Yorkshire, England, 8 mo. 24, 1679, and was therefore at his marriage 48 years of age, while she was only 22. He had emigrated from Yorkshire, England, in 1698, taking with him a letter from the Friends of Settle meeting in that shire, certifying, according to a practice still in use in the Society on the removal of deserving members, to such facts as were calculated to commend him to the confidence and fellowship of the brethren among whom he expected to live.¹ This commendation and confidence his subsequent life fully justified. He was one of the petitioners, among whom were nearly all the leading men of Pennsylvania, who, about the year 1700, when he could scarcely have more than attained his majority, joined in a petition to the king of England praying that William Penn might not be deprived of his government in the province. This early act shows that even then Bartholomew Longstreth was recognized as a man of some substance and character.²

Prior to his emigration he had been for some years in the employ of a grazier or cattle drover, in whose service he had proved discreet and trustworthy. After his arrival in Pennsylvania he worked as a laborer until, by his frugal and industrious

¹ "Whereas, Bartholomew Langsteroth having acquainted us how he doth intend to remove himself into Pennsylvania in America, if the Lord give him ability, there to live among Friends, and we, having taken care to inquire, do certify you, our friends and brethren, whom it may concern, how that he hath obtained and discharged his business and affairs so that he doth thereby give no just occasion to any person to reflect upon him, and further that the said Bartholomew Langsteroth is clear from any engagements or entanglements with any person on the account of marriage, so that so far as we know if he hereafter be concerned in order to marry, this may certifie our friends that may be therein concerned accordingly that as he hath been of a pretty good behavior since the time that he hath frequented our meetings, so his removing is with ours as also with his father's consent and approbation, and if the Lord lengthen out his days that he get to the end of his intended journey, you may receive him as one whom the Lord in his love has visited and reached unto in mercy, and it is our fervent desire and prayer to God for him that he may proceed in faithfulness that those blessings may be continued to him to the end of his days. So, with the salutation of love in Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior, we rest and remain your brethren in the fellowship of the Gospel of Grace.

"From our monthly meeting at Settle, in Yorkshire, in old England, the first day of the first month, 1698-9.

² Penn's second visit to America was made in 1699. Not long after his arrival he learned that there was a measure before the House of Lords for bringing all the proprietary governments under the Crown, and he returned to England, in 1701, probably taking with him the petition above referred to. It was never presented to the king, as, happily, before its arrival all danger of Penn's removal had passed. The original petition is now in possession of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

habits, he had laid up about £400. One half of this he ventured on a trading voyage to Tortola, one of the Virgin group of the West India islands, then as now noted for its exports of sugar, molasses, rum, etc., and for its unhealthy climate. He sailed for the island in another vessel from that to which he intrusted his property, which was supposed to have foundered at sea, as it was never after heard of; and on arriving at the island he was taken sick, and narrowly escaped with his life. Returning to Pennsylvania, he resumed work as a laborer, and after a time bought a tract of 300 acres of land on Edge Hill, in Moreland township, then in Bucks county, now Montgomery.¹ On this he settled and commenced its improvement, but becoming dissatisfied, he sold the land, with the determination of returning to England.² While waiting in Philadelphia for a passage home he met with Thomas Fairman, surveyor to William Penn, who induced him to abandon his intention of leaving the country, and from whom he purchased 500 acres of unimproved land in Warminster township, in the county of Bucks.³ He afterwards purchased other tracts of land in that neighborhood, and at the time of his death left a large and valuable estate, including more than one thousand acres of land and monies at interest.⁴ When he

² At Middletown, Bucks county, meeting, 3 mo. 2, 1706, Bartholomew Longstreth was granted a certificate "to whatever meeting he is likely to belong to." This was probably when he was about returning to England, as traditionally related by the family.—W. F. C.

³ The same tract of 500 acres that was deeded by Wm. Penn, in 1685, to John Dwight, and by John Dwight's heirs, in 1707, to John Talbot, and by John Talbot, in 1709, to Thomas Fairman. The deed from Thomas Fairman to Bartholomew Longstreth is dated Dec. 23, 1710.—S. T. L. "For this tract B. L. paid £175 Pennsylvania currency, or seven shillings per acre. In 1713 he purchased from the proprietary agents [Richard Hill, Isaac Norris and James Logan], twenty-six acres adjoining, for £6.10, or five shillings per acre."—D. L.

⁴ The old homestead he willed to his son Daniel, who d. in 1803, and he bequeathed the same to his son Joseph, who d. in 1840. He left the property to his only son Daniel, who d. in 1846, and under his will the homestead, which then included the dwelling house and out buildings, and fifty-six acres of land, was sold. His eldest son, John Lancaster Longstreth, now of Philadelphia, became the purchaser, and in 1850 Mr. L. sold the premises to Isaac Rush Kirk, who d. in 1859, leaving the property in possession of his widow and children, who now reside there (1873). The old homestead, as it appeared when photographed in 1872, had been built at three separate dates. The central part was built by B. L. in 1713; the east end by D. L. in 1750, and the west end, which was much larger than either of the other parts, was built by D. L. in 1766. At the time of the completion of the final addition (by workmen from Philadelphia), it was considered the finest house in that part of the country. The dates were ascertained from date stones found in different first went into Warminster the country there was a wilderness, without roads, and with only a cattle path through the woods. His first house was of logs. When he was better accommodated he opened a store in a part of his dwelling, which he continued to keep for the accommodation of the neighborhood for some years after his marriage, being assisted in his business by his wife. Indeed, it may be supposed that his habit of frequenting the markets in old England had given him an inclination to trade. It may have prompted him to modest ventures which resulted successfully, helping him in the accumulation of the snug capital which he had at command within a few years after his arrival in America, and a part of which he lost in the unfortunate expedition to Tortola; and it may, also, have had an influence in leading him to engage in this later enterprise in which he undertook the business of a storekeeper.¹

He was held in good esteem by members of the religious Society to which he belonged,² and he was frequently called on to settle estates, and to transact a variety of public affairs. As supervisor of Warminster he opened a portion of what is known as the York road. He was charitable to the poor, who never, it is said, left his door empty-handed; and he was, withal, a man of great firmness of purpose, strength of mind and energy of character. He d. very suddenly in the road, without previous illness, Aug. 8, 1749, and was buried in Horsham grave yard.³ parts of the building. After April, 1872, Mrs. Kirk took down those parts which were built in 1713 and 1750, and erected a new building on their site. While the wall of the east end was being torn down a copper medal was found which was struck in commemoration of the taking of Porto Bella, by Admiral Vernon "with six ships only," Nov. 22, 1739.

¹ It is said, however, that this was rather his wife's enterprise than his own: that she borrowed a small sum of money from her husband, as her original capital, with which to buy goods in Philadelphia, and gradually increased her stock and extended her business, attracting customers from Wrightstown and other distant places; and that the business continued to prosper until the increasing cares of her family obliged her to relinquish it. "On closing her accounts and refunding the original loan with interest, there was a balance of £600. in her favor." — D. L., 1831.

² "B. L. appears to have been an active man among the early Friends in Pennsylvania. On the 30th of 5 mo., 1733, he was appointed by Abington meeting to attend the quarterly meeting as a representative." — W. F. C.

³ "I now think proper to give a short relation of my father's death. The eighth day of August, 1749, he went into the field to set the negroes to plowing, and stay with them till about eight o'clock, and finding himself much out of order he left them and went to a school-house which was built in our field, and sent my sister home for me to take a horse for him to ride on. Accordingly I did, and he went to a stump, got upon it with help, and so upon the horse, and I got on behind him. When we rode about thirty perches he fell back into my arms. There being two

It is a tradition that his marriage with Ann Dawson was the result of "love at first sight," under circumstances which, if not quite romantic, were altogether befitting the times, and the good, substantial men and women who founded Pennsylvania. While her father was building his house at the Billet she acted as mason tender, carrying the mortar on a board, and the stones in an apron of stout cloth, whilst her father executed the masonry. While she was so engaged it is said that Bartholomew passed by, "was smitten with her glowing charms and filial piety, and then and there chose his wife."¹ They were married at Horsham meeting house, to which she rode on a pillion behind her father, departing from it with her husband on his horse in a similar manner. Tradition says that while she was busy talking with her young friends Bartholomew became somewhat impatient to take his prize away, and summoned her in the broad speech of Yorkshire with the inquiry: "Ann, art thou goeing, or art thou noot."

According to the custom of the times, but few even of Friends excepting, they employed slave labor, both in the field and in their domestic affairs; and some of their descendants remember to have seen in the old homestead a mark on the wall between the sitting room and kitchen where (though closed for many years) had been a small window at which Ann was wont to sit men riding a distance before us, I called to them, and they rode back quickly. One of them took him down from me in the road, and he took about four or five breaths, and died away, being sensible to the very last." — Daniel Longstreth to friends in England, 1752.

"A clouded marble slab was placed at his head by his son Daniel, with '1749 — Bartholomew Longstreth, aged 69 years 11mo. 15 days' on it. Some years after, an uneasiness being expressed by some of the members of the meeting with this stone, an attempt was made to remove it, but Daniel Longstreth replied, 'not while I live shall any one disturb it.' It remains there to this day." — Daniel Longstreth (gr. son of Daniel above named), 1831. It is still there (1873).

¹ The tradition may be true as to him, but if another story concerning the pair has any foundation in verity it is evident she was not similarly inspired. The difference in their ages is to be remembered. "Previous to their marriage she, when having her fortune alphabetically tried, said: 'I care not who knows the initials that turned up for me, for they were B. L. That would stand for old Bartholomew Longstreth, and I am sure I never will have him!'" From an account of B. L., accompanying a Family Tree in possession of Alfred Longstreth, of Philadelphia. The following is an extract from Abington Meeting Records: "At our monthly meeting held ye 29th of ye 11th mo., 1727. Whereas Bartholomew Longstreth and Ann Dawson having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before two monthly meetings, enquiry being made by persons appointed, and found clear of all others on account of marriage, are left to accomplish ye same orderly." On the 26th of 12 mo., 1727, the marriage of B. and A. was reported to have been "orderly performed."

to watch her slave women at work in the kitchen. Almost the last act of Bartholomew Longstreth's life was to go into the fields to direct his negroes about their work. Many of Bartholomew and Ann's descendants, however, have been conspicuous for their opposition to slavery, and the Society to which they belonged, at a very early day made the holding of slaves a subject of discipline, and, where persisted in, a ground of disownment.

Ann had been a thrifty housekeeper and good manager. An inventory of her estate taken 2 mo. 1, 1753, shows that it amounted, after deducting all claims against it, to nearly £2000, and included servants valued at £100. Her husband had left her the entire income of all his landed property, until his sons, who were to inherit it, should respectively come of age, except her son Daniel, whose estate was to remain in her hands until he should arrive at the age of 25 years, after which he was to pay her annually £6 during her life or widowhood.¹ They had eleven children :

² It is to be borne in mind that March, the third month of the year, according to present computation, was formerly reckoned the first month. These dates of birth (of the children of Bartholomew and Ann Longstreth), designating the months by numerals, are from authentic records (the family Bible, original entries by Ann and Bartholomew L.), but in substituting the names of the months for numerals, allowance must be made for the change from old to new style. The following is an extract from a letter of Daniel Longstreth (3-3) to his "loving cousins" in England, written 20th March, 1752, in which year the change from old to new style was made. He states that his "parents had eleven children, as followeth : Sarah was born January ye 8th, 1728-9, John was born June ye 10th, 1730, and lived till he was seven years old, Daniel, born April ye 28th, 1732, Jane, born March ye 18th, 1733-4, died [aged] 1 year and 8 months, Jane, born January ye 23d, 1735-6, Ann, born January ye 3d, 1737-8, John born October ye 25th, 1739, Elizabeth, born May ye 15th, 1741, rington township, Bucks county.¹ He is said to have wasted her fortune, and to have subjected her to personal ill usage, in consequence of which she left him, and returned to her son Daniel's, at the old homestead. Thence she removed to Charleston, in Chester county (now Phenixville), where her daughters Jane and Ann Coates resided. Here she built a house for herself, "on the hill by Mason's tavern,"² and made her home until 1775, when she returned to her son Daniel's, on the death of his wife Grace. About the time of his second marriage (1779) she removed again to Chester county, where she d. 3 mo. 18, 1783, aged 78.³

2-3. DANIEL DAWSON, hatter, of Abington, m. at Abington, 8 mo. 26, 1730, Elizabeth Hollowell, b. 12 mo., 14, 1711.⁴ They removed from Abington to Philadelphia, taking certificate from former to latter meeting, dated May 31, 1742, for themselves and dau. Deborah.⁵ He made a will dated Nov. 23d, 1744, and proved March 3, 1745, disposing of a good estate in houses, etc. The record is that he d. 1 mo. 1, 1746, which was 1st March, 1745, new style. They had seven children:

3-13. Daniel, d. 1 mo. 6, 1738.

ISAAC, born February ye 16th, 1742-3, Joseph, born Dec. ye 11th, 1744, Benjamin, born Sept. ye 17th, 1749." These dates agree with the above except as to the year of Benjamin's birth. In the original draft of his letter it appears that he wrote 1746. These figures were crossed out and 1749 inserted by another hand. The date in the old Bible of Bartholomew and Ann Longstreth, in the handwriting of Bartholomew, is 7 mo. 17, 1746.

¹ They "passed meeting" at Abington, 4 mo. 30, 1753, but the marriage was celebrated at the meeting house in Horsham. The name of "Dorothy Dawson, widow," was signed at the head of the list of witnesses. The Quakers at Hatboro mostly belonged to Abington meeting. The fact of the change of name of Ann Dawson Longstreth to Tomkins was probably not known to the writer of the letter quoted in the following note (note 3).

⁴ Dau. of Thomas (b. in England, d. 12 mo. 14, 1734), and Rosamond Till (d. 6 mo. 13, 1745), Hollowell, m. at Darby, Pa., 1702, lived at Abington; gr. dau. of John and Mary Hollowell, who emigrated to Darby from Hucknow, parish of Sutton, Nottinghamshire, England, bringing a Quaker certificate, dated 12 mo. 19, 1682.

- 3-14. Deborah, b. 6 mo. 22, 1742.
 3-15. James; m.
 3-16. Daniel, m. Sarah ———: d. in Philadelphia without issue.

2-5. ISAAC DAWSON, of Abington, removed to Philadelphia, taking certificate from Abington meeting, dated 2 mo. 24, 1738: was with w. Jane in Philadelphia, 1748. She brought a certificate, dated 8 mo. 3, 1752, from Burlington, N. J., meeting, to Philadelphia, being then a wid., as her husband had d. 9 mo. 12, 1748. They had:

- 3-22. William, d. 6 mo. 4, 1742.
 3-24. Jane, d. 1 mo. 30, 1749.
 3-25. Elizabeth, d. 4 mo. 4, 1749.
 3-26. Isaac, d. 6 mo. 21, 1749.
 3-27. Mary, b. 1 mo. 17, 1742-3, lived in Philadelphia. SERMON.

Jane Dawson (widow of Isaac Dawson, and dau. of Richard and Mary Blackham, of Burlington, N. J.), m. in Philadelphia, 11 mo. 9, 1752, ROBERT WORRELL, of Abington, Pa., son of Richard Worrell, of Lower Dublin. After her first husband's death, she appears to have gone back to her father's home in New Jersey, from which she returned to Philadelphia only a few weeks before her second marriage.

2-6. BENJAMIN DAWSON, b. abt. 1718, m. in Philadelphia, 5 mo. 19, 1744,¹ Elizabeth Fussell, b. abt. 1727. They lived

² Son of Solomon, and Susannah Coney Fussell, and brother of Elizabeth, w. of Benjamin Dawson. (2-6).

³ He was mulcted in "excise fines" in 1777-1780, in the sums of £2. 12. 6, and £19. 10. 9. Other "excise fines" levied and collected were as follows: Joseph Starr jr. £45. 18. 9, and £3. 5. 0; Moses Coates jr., £55. 2. 6, and £3. 5. 0; Benjamin Longstreth, £50. 5. 0, £3. 5. 0, and £19. 10. 0; Benjamin Coates, £10. 10. 8; Isaac Starr, £3. 5. 0.—Pennypacker's History of Phenixville, p. 122.

1732. When he was in his eighteenth year his father died, leaving him the care of a large family of brothers and sisters, to whom he supplied, as far as possible, a father's place, fulfilling his trust with good judgment and strict fidelity. He was a man of fine presence and great firmness of mind; a Friend in principle as well as by profession; a peace maker, often being called upon to settle differences arising between his acquaintances and neighbors; a man of benevolent and sympathetic nature, frequently interesting himself in behalf of the helpless and friendless; a man of integrity, possessing the public confidence, being often selected as executor and administrator in the settlement of estates, also at one time collector of the Provincial tax and attending to a variety of public affairs. He was a member of the Pennsylvania society for the abolition of slavery, and for bettering the condition of people of color, his diploma bearing date the 25th of 3 mo., 1793.¹ He adhered to peace principles during the Revolutionary war, notwithstanding the difficulties of his situation, being sometimes summoned to the head quarters of the army in his neighborhood, but receiving respectful treatment from the commanding officers. A company of soldiers was at one time quartered on him, and the battle of the Crooked Billet was fought along the road in front of his homestead.² For a time his capacious garret became a place of safe keeping for the Hattboro Library, a library which, though one of the oldest in the country, has still a flourishing existence. He maintained a correspondence with relatives in England, as late at least, as 1769. He m. 1st, at Abington meeting, 5 mo. 22, 1753, Grace Michener, who was b. in Moreland township (now Montgomery Co., Pa.), 3 mo. 22, 1729, and d. at the homestead, in Warminister, 4 mo. 16, 1775.³ They had nine children:

² He built a very commodious and substantial house, enlarging one erected by his father, and had what was then considered the most elegantly finished house in that part of the country. It bore on one end the initials of himself and wife, and a date, "D. L. G., 1766."

¹ In 1796, or '97 he made a voyage down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, and thence to the West Indies. He was captured by the British, and held a prisoner, because he sailed from a Spanish port. Later, he ascended the Mississippi, to Baton Rouge, and went thence to Pinckneyville, where he d. in 1812 after 15 or 16 years' absence from home.

² The ancestor of Moses Coates is said to have come to Pennsylvania before the arrival of William Penn, 1682. Others of that name in Pa. are descended from one who arrived in 1686.

² She removed to Philadelphia in 1795, and in 1797 entered into the wholesale dry goods business with two of her cousins. It is said she was the first woman who imported dry goods into that city. "While she continued in business, a period of about fifteen years, her sound judgment, kind disposition, and perfect uprightness, secured the esteem of a large circle of friends. In 1815 she removed to Greenway Farm, which she had purchased a few years before, and resided there until her decease, enjoying the simple pleasures of the country, superintending the business of the farm, and dispensing the hospitalities of a large heart, until prevented by the infirmities of age. Although her affections centred with uncommon force and ardor upon the members of her family, even to cousins of the third and fourth degree, they were by no means limited to those who were connected with her by the ties of consanguinity. Her love and interest took a much wider range, embracing, indeed, the whole human family. She felt especial sympathy for those who were in danger of being overlooked. She was a striking example of watchfulness in conversation, being rarely heard to speak of the faults of others, and when these were mentioned in her presence she generally had something to say of the irgood qualities, or, if nothing could be said in extenuation, she would turn the conversation into another channel, possessing that calmity which 'thinketh no evil, and hopeth all things.' She was remarkable for a happy, cheerful spirit, which diffused its influence like genial sunshine upon all around her, and a thankful heart induced her frequently to number her blessings. She was in the daily practice of reading the Holy Scriptures, which shem uch enjoyed, and was diligent in her attendance of our religious meetings as long as health permitted." Friends' Intelligencer.

Morris, b. 7 mo. 23, 1746, d. 8 mo. 28, 1814, dau. of Joshua and Mary Morris, of Abington. They settled in Southampton township, Bucks Co., near the old homestead. It was on his premises that Fitch, the inventor, first tried his steamboat.¹ They had nine children :

3-11. BENJAMIN LONGSTRETH, b. September (then called 7 mo.) 17, 1746, d. 8 mo. 4, 1802,² (buried Friends' ground, Valley, Montgomery Co., Pa.), m. Sarah Fussell, who d. 4 mo. 23, 1797 (buried Pikeland), daughter of Solomon Fussell, and his second w. Mary Wilson, b. 10 mo. 12, 1751.³ They lived at Phenixville, Pa., of which place he was the founder. He built the first iron-works erected there.⁴ They had twelve children :

- 4-59. Joseph, b. 11 mo. 25, 1773, d. 3 mo. 9, 1807; m.

² There seems to be a doubt as to the correctness of this date of B. L.'s death. The following is a copy of a memorandum made by Daniel Longstreth, 1841, of information from his uncle Isaac Longstreth: "Benjamin d. in 1798, of yellow fever, near the Valley meeting house, where he was buried. He took the fever in Philadelphia, and was on his way home, on French Creek, now Phenixville, Chester Co., Pa. He was 50 or 51 years old." In another place he makes a memorandum taken from a record of graves in Valley Meeting Cemetery, of a charge for digging Benjamin Longstreth's grave, 8 mo. 18, 1802.

JOHN LEWIS JUN., b. 3 mo. 29, 1781, d. 2 mo. 5, 1824, son of John and Grace Meredith Lewis, both of whom d. in Chester Co. Esther Fussell Lewis was a woman of remarkable solidity of character, and she exercised a commanding and beneficent influence commensurate with her rare ability and intelligence. In the community in which she lived her well balanced judgment caused her advice to be sought and accepted by brothers, sisters, friends, neighbors and dependants. Her life was one of distinguished usefulness and worth. It was she who so powerfully influenced her brother, Dr. Bartholmew Fussell, in his determination to secure the medical education of women. After her marriage she returned to the home of her husband, in West Vincent, Chester Co., Pa.¹ They had five children, all b. in Chester Co.²

² Mrs. Lewis is said to have been "one of the most careful and accurate of women." Her papers are an invaluable source of information respecting the family history. Before her death she sent copies of such family records as she possessed, which were quite extensive, to several of her nieces. She seems to have diffused her spirit through the family. It is remarkable for the interest which its members generally display in preserving its records and traditions.

About three years after their marriage they removed to Baltimore county, Md., where they remained nearly twelve years.¹ In 1828 they removed to Pennsylvania, near Philadelphia, where of these ladies in that work, that they "were among the most faithful, devoted, and quietly efficient workers in the Anti-slavery cause, including that department of it which is the subject of this [that] volume." . . . "Mariann and Elizabeth having lived to see the triumph of the Right, in the Presidential Proclamation of Freedom to the slaves, have gone from their earthly to their heavenly rest." . . . "Grace Anna still continues here, working for human welfare in such fields as still demand the laborer's toil, and finding mental profit and delight in the pursuit of natural science." (The dates of birth of Mariann and Rebecca have also been reported as follows: Mariann, 6 mo. 1, 1819; Rebecca, 10 mo. 6, 1821. — M. M. L.)

they lived until the year 1846, when they removed to Indiana, and settled at Fall Creek, Madison Co., in that state, where they d. "beloved of all who knew them well." They had nine children:

5-13. SOLOMON FUSSELL, farmer, was born near Phenixville, Chester Co., Pa., 6 mo. 28, 1789. He removed with his parents when a child to Baltimore county, Md., but returned to Pa. when a young man. He m. 1st, at Gwynedd meeting, Montgomery Co., Pa., 2 mo. 6, 1816, Milcab Martha Moore, b. 1 mo. 20, 1792, sister of Elizabeth Moore, wife of Joseph Fussell (5-12). In 1830, or '31, he went west, to seek a home for himself and family, and traveled as far as Milton, in Wayne Co., Ind., beyond which place the roads were at that time almost impassable. In the fall of 1832 he removed with his wife and five children from Chester Co., Pa., to Fall Creek, Madison Co., Ind., the journey being accomplished in a two horse wagon, and occupying an entire month. The next year was one of great mortality in his family. His wife died 8 mo. 16, 1833. Three of the children died within a single week, he at the same time being too sick to be conscious of his loss. As soon as he was sufficiently recovered, leaving his two only remaining children with a relative, he returned to the East, performing the long journey, though still in feeble health, on horseback. In the fall of 1836 he returned to Indiana on foot, taking with him a herd of fine cattle, a cow carrying his luggage in a pair of saddle bags. He m. 2d, at Fall Creek meeting, Ind., 12 mo. 1, 1836, Hannah Lewis, daughter of Joseph and Lydia Lewis, formerly of Willistown, Chester Co., Pa. He d. at Fall Creek, 3 mo. 1, 1849, greatly esteemed. His character was that of the strictest integrity. He had been all his life a conscientious anti-slavery and temperance man, abstaining as far as possible from the use of all articles produced by slave labor, and being among the first in his neighborhood, it is said, to refuse to give liquor in harvest, yet never lacking help, although his experiment was one which at that time few ventured to try, for fear their grain would be left to rot in the fields. Solomon and Milcah Martha Moore Fussell had 11 children :

5-15. DR. BARTHOLOMEW FUSSELL, was b. in Chester Co., Pa., 1 mo. 9, 1794. He removed in early life to Maryland, where he taught school, and read medicine, and where he found means to give Sabbath and private instruction to great numbers of slaves, many of whom, with hundreds of other fugitives of their class, he afterwards protected and assisted at his home in Pennsylvania, while on their way to freedom. He was one of the signers of the "Declaration of Sentiments" issued by the American Anti-Slavery Society in 1833, and he had the gratification of attending the last meeting of the Pennsylvania Anti-Slavery Society, called to celebrate the downfall of slavery in America, and for the dissolution of an organization whose purpose was effected. He was also well known as an advocate of common school education, of temperance, and of every other interest, which, in his view, pertained to the welfare of man. He became early convinced of the peculiar fitness of woman for the practice of medicine. "In the year 1840 he first gave regular instructions to a class of women, and it was through one of these pupils that the first graduate in America was interested in the study of medicine. In 1846 he communicated to a few liberal-minded professional men a plan for the medical education of women. Others, with indomitable zeal, took up the work, and finally, after a succession of disappointments and discouragements, from causes within and without, the Woman's College, on North College avenue, Philadelphia, starting from the germ of his thought, entered on the career of prosperity it is so well entitled to enjoy. Though never, at any time, connected officially with the college, he regarded its success with the most affectionate interest, considering its proposition as one of the most important results of his life."¹

5-45. DANIEL LONGSTRETH, b. 11 mo. 25, 1800 (son of Joseph, 4-10), resided at the old homestead of his family, in Warminster township, Bucks Co., Pa., which he inherited from his father. In youth he received a good English education, but, possessing a fondness for mathematics and the natural sciences, he was a diligent student through life, and was thus, to a great extent, self educated. He had an inquiring mind, a retentive memory, and a pleasure in the acquisition of new and curious information which seemed in itself a reward for the greatest pains taken to acquire it. He was in the habit of noting in a commonplace book or diary the facts and discoveries which especially interested him, and such as he deemed sufficiently important he communicated to the public through the medium of the newspapers and magazines of his day. He was, besides, much devoted to genealogical and antiquarian researches, and left copious memoranda of the results of his inquiries, which have been largely drawn from for the purposes of this record. His own opinion of the value of such studies is worthy of preservation. "These pursuits," he remarks, "have afforded me great amusement in spare moments. Many wiseacres may think them puerile and trifling. Be it so; but I am of opinion that anecdotes which disclose the virtuous actions of our worthy ancestors should be preserved and held up for the example of their descendants when about forming their character in youth and early manhood."¹ His love of local history, regard for scientific pursuits, and sympathy for an unfortunate man of genius whose merits seemed to have been overlooked and forgotten, if not designedly concealed, all combined to excite in him a deep interest in the facts relating to the life of "poor John Fitch, of steamboat memory," who had made the model of his first boat in that township in 1785. In 1833 Mr. Longstreth was actively engaged in collecting materials for a memoir of Fitch. He published a series of articles concerning him in the Bucks county newspaper, and corresponded on the subject with Watson, author of the Annals of Philadelphia, furnishing most of the facts which the latter used in his notice of the inventor in that work. Subsequently, Mr. Westcott wrote his Life of John Fitch, obtaining a part of his materials from Mr. Longstreth's papers, but poorly repaying the favor by inserting a very erroneous notice of Mr. L. (who was then dead) in that book.

Mr. Longstreth was a consistent member of the Society of Friends, and was for a number of years (1829 to 1836), clerk of the Horsham monthly meeting, and he was also clerk of the Abington quarterly meeting. In 1840 he opened, at Warminster, a boarding school for boys, which he conducted for some time in connection with his farm. The confinement proving injurious to his health, he closed his school, and afterwards acquired a knowledge of dentistry, which he practiced very successfully. He was also a surveyor, and attended to conveyancing, and the settlement of estates, and to a variety of public affairs. NOTES. I. WILLIAM FUSSELL (5-10) m. at Quakertown meeting, Bucks Co., Pa., Jane Foulke, dau. of Edward and Elizabeth Roberts Foulke. Their two elder children were b. near Chester Springs, Chester Co., Pa.; their three younger children, were b. in West Fallowfield township, same county. Concerning him the following from his son Joseph (6-18). "In consequence of the inflation and collapse which followed the peace of 1815, he found himself in debt, and to better his condition he removed in 1827, from Chester county, to the neighborhood of Philadelphia. Prospering here, he returned after a few years to his former neighborhood, and paid his old debts, principal and interest. His home was a station on the underground railway from which many a fugitive from slavery was speeded on his way to freedom. Himself and wife both d. at Fall Creek, Indiana."

II. Dr. BARTHOLOMEW FUSSELL (5-15) was an acquaintance and life long friend of William Lloyd Garrison and John G. Whittier. "It was during the residence of the poet in Philadelphia in 1838-40 that his stirring poem 'The Response' was written. It was addressed to the politicians clamorous for the suppression of the abolitionists, and Whittier bade them :

'Go, hunt sedition — search for that
In every pedler's cart of rags;
Pry into every Quaker's hat,
And Dr. Fussell's saddle-bags;
Lest treason wrap, with all its ills,
Around his powders and his pills.'

"Mr. Whittier speaks of 'the beloved physician of Kennett Square, Dr. Bartholomew Fussell' in his reminiscences of the Convention of 1833, in a recent number of the Atlantic."—J. F.

NOTES. I. GEORGE B. DAWSON, said to have been an officer in the British army during the Revolutionary war, a member of Tarleton's Legion, resided in Philadelphia after the close of the struggle. Among his descendants is understood to be DAWSON COLEMAN, Esq., a well known public man of Pa. (See pp. 147 and 368.)

II. Prior to the Revolution, JOHN DAWSON BUSCH, a native of Germany (perhaps of mixed English and German parentage), emigrated to this country, and settled in Gloucester Co., N. J. He was known here as JOHN DAWSON, and numerous children and grand children claim the family name of Dawson; but a brother, who settled in Pa., retained the name of Busch, which is still borne by his descendants. John Dawson (Busch) served as a soldier in the Am. army. (See p. 186, note.) He was twice m., and had by 1st wife, a son William, whose son, of same name, now res. near Glassboro, N. J. By second wife he had, besides daughters, Aaron, hatter, who res. 1873, Washington, D. C., and has a family, and Job, b. about 1800, dry-goods merchant, 422 South Second street, Philadelphia (1873). The last named has sons John C. and George Dawson, of the banking house of Brown Brothers, 211 Chestnut street, Philadelphia (1873).

III. PAUL DAWSON, tailor, Philadelphia (1873), b. in Ireland, 1826, came to America, 1848. He m. Mary Antist, and has had ten children, of whom three are living. He is the youngest son of John (d. about 1861), and Mary Dawson Dawson, cousins; grandson of Paul Dawson, who m. — W'belply, and d. at an advanced age, about 1829.

II. DR. JAMES DAWSON (see p. 225, 6-6), d. in Talbot Co., Md., Feb. 21, 1874. The following from an Easton paper : "Death of Dr. James Dawson. It becomes our duty to announce the death of our highly respectable and useful fellow citizen, Dr. James Dawson. This sad event occurred at his home in Bayside, near St. Michaels, on Saturday the 21st inst., [Feb. 1874] when he was in the 68th year of his age. His demise was not unexpected by either his friends or himself, for his health had for some months past indicated an early departure, and yet when death was at hand it was hardly less painful to those who loved or revered him, because it had been anticipated, while it found in him, who had long been fitting himself for this supreme event, hardly any better preparedness because of its having been foreseen and imminent.

"James Dawson was the son of Major John Dawson, of this county, and was born near the Royal Oak, in the year 1806 [1805.] After receiving in the common schools of the neighborhood such instruction as they afforded, he was placed at the Academy in Easton, then under most excellent direction and tuition. At a proper age he was matriculated at the University of Maryland, from which he graduated Doctor of Medicine in the year 1828. He commenced the practice of medicine immediately after receiving his diploma, at York, Penn., but returned to his native county and settled in St. Michaels. From this town he removed to Easton, where he united the business of an apothecary with his practice. He remained in Easton but a short time. Dr. John Barnett, of Bayside, being about to abandon his practice, by reason of his age, Dr. Dawson saw that an opening was made for him, and he again returned to St. Michaels, and there settled. Here he soon acquired a large and lucrative country practice, which he enjoyed for many years. But in 1843 or '44 he removed from the village to his farm just below, where he continued to exercise his profession with undiminished success and acceptance, at the same time giving attention to agricultural pursuits. Here he continued to live until his final departure, enjoying the confidence, respect and affection of the whole of that community in the midst of which he spent the greater part of his long life.

"Of his mental qualities it may be said he was endowed with great perspicacity, a quick apprehension, and sound judgment. Without pretending to extensive learning, he was well informed upon all subjects that belong to general culture, and particularly upon those relating to his profession. Justly regarding medicine as an empirical science, he naturally relied more upon experience than upon professional dogma, and as a man of independent thought and acute perceptivity, he depended more upon the results of his own observations, than upon the deductions of others. Eminently conservative in his opinions and practice, he nevertheless was not disdainful of novelties in doctrine, nor unreasonably tenacious in his adherence to ancient usage. Belonging to the 'old school' of medicine, he, who was ever youthful in his feelings, could not but be in sympathy with modern progress in therapeutic art.

"He was blessed with great cheerfulness of disposition, and buoyancy of spirits. Life seemed to present to him, like the moon to earth, its bright side only. His humor was inexhaustible and literally irrepressible. It was so ebullient that upon the most inopportune occasions it would, as it were against his will, bubble over. His wit, however, was never bitter or acrimonious, and though it sometimes irritated it inflicted no festering wound.

"Of his moral qualities, all who knew him are able to testify that he was honorable in his impulses and upright in his actions. In his youth a great exuberance of vitality may have betrayed itself in a manner which strict propriety might not approve; but for many years previous to his death religion had been a pervasive influence in his life, sanctifying motives which even without it were not unworthy, and consecrating conduct which even without it was never anything but respectable. He was warm and constant in his attachments. If nature had endowed him with strong antipathies and repugnances, she had also gifted him with a generous tolerance of the infirmities of others, while religion taught him to harbor no resentments or animosities. He was an affectionate parent, a kind friend, an obliging neighbor and a considerate master. He was always ready to obey the call of the poor for the discharge of his offices as a physician, but his charities were not confined to the gratuitous performance of his professional services. For many years he was an active and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church, of whose doctrine and polity he was ever an able defender, and of whose salutary influence, in amending the life and purifying the heart, he was a most conspicuous and worthy example.

"In politics he was an early Whig, and in the latter part of his life an earnest Republican. During the war of the Rebellion he warmly espoused the cause of the government, and he was one of those who, in his section, and at that dark time, were instrumental in keeping alive the sacred flame of patriotism.

"He married the daughter of the late Wm. Hambleton, of Emerson's Point, by whom there was born to him a large family. His domestic relations were of the happiest kind.

"He was buried at Emerson's Point, on Monday last, a large concourse of people following him to the grave, and ministers of different denominations participating in the funeral services."

CANADA.

JOHN WILLIAM DAWSON, LL.D., F.R.S., F.G.S., principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University, Montreal, and author of "Archaia," "Acadian Geology,"¹ "The Story of the Earth and Man," etc., is well known in the United States, not only by his published works, but as an eminent and popular lecturer on scientific subjects. He was born in Pictou, Nova Scotia, October, 1820. His father, James Dawson, publisher and bookseller at Pictou, was the son of John Dawson, of Ordiquhill, Banffshire, Scotland, who belonged to a family long settled there, and believed to have originally immigrated to Scotland from Ireland in the interest of James II, when the latter was struggling with William of Orange. They were a Roman Catholic family, but Dr. Dawson's branch of it became Protestants, and has connections scattered over England, Scotland, British America and Australia. The late Mr. R. Dawson, of Cruden, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, well known as a zoölogist, was of this family, and Mr. George Dawson, lecturer in photographic chemistry, King's College, London, is a branch of it.

Dr. Dawson's early academic training was received in the College of Pictou, Nova Scotia, under the principalship of the Rev. Dr. McCulloch, a graduate of Glasgow. After completing a course of four years in that institution, and spending some time in the study of the Natural History of his native province, he matriculated in the University of Edinburgh, session of 1840-1, and studied during the winter under Prof. Jameson. He then returned to Nova Scotia and renewed his geological researches. In 1842 he accompanied Sir Charles Lyell in his tour of that province. He returned to Edinburgh in the autumn of 1846, and again entered the University, devoting his time principally to the study of practical chemistry. At this time he contributed two papers to the Royal Society of Edinburgh and one to the Wernerian Society, and subsequently received from the University the honorary degree of Master of ¹ J. Dawson & Sons, publishers, Pictou, N. S., 1855; publishers, also, of Dawson's Map of Nova Scotia and Prince Edward's Island, 1851, and of A Handbook of Geography and Natural History of the Province of Nova Scotia, for the use of Schools and Families, by the subject of this notice. Dr. Dawson's portrait has been published in the New Dominion Magazine; also in a work on the medals of McGill College, by Mr. Landham.

Arts. In 1850 he was appointed superintendent of education for Nova Scotia, which office he held for three years. He afterwards served on various educational commissions, and in 1855 he was offered and accepted the office of Principal and Professor of Natural History in the McGill College and University, the oldest, and in many respects the most considerable university in Canada. This office, together with that of vice-chancellor, which has been since added, he now holds. During his connection with it the University has been extremely prosperous, and in respect to its course of study, and in public estimation and support, it may challenge comparison with most of the older universities.

Dr. Dawson is a Fellow of the Royal Society of London, of the Geological Society of London, and of the Academy of Arts and Sciences of Boston ; a Foreign Corresponding Fellow of the Edinburgh Geological Society ; a Member of the American Philosophical Society ; an Honorary Member of the Natural History Society of Boston, and a Corresponding Member of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, and of several other societies. He has also been several times elected President of the Natural History Society of Montreal. Among his contributions to the literature of Natural Science may be mentioned twenty-five papers published in the Proceedings of the Geological Society of London ; a work entitled "Acadian Geology," on the geology of the eastern provinces of British North America ; a work entitled "Archæia, or Studies of the Cosmogony and Natural History of the Hebrew Scriptures ;" "The Story of the Earth and Man," a popular scientific work illustrating the aspects of successive stages in the earth's history, as disclosed by geology ; besides several educational and scientific works of a more local nature, and numerous contributions to the Canadian Naturalist and other periodicals. All of these have been favorably received by the public. As a lecturer on scientific subjects Dr. Dawson is exceedingly popular. He is regarded as one of the most eminent and able opponents of the Darwinian theory of evolution. He unites the characters of a Christian and a man of science, and in his addresses and published works he seeks to emancipate his favorite study "from the control of the bald metaphysical speculations so rife in our time," and especially to deliver it "from that materialistic infidelity, which, by robbing nature of the spiritual elements and of its presiding Divinity, makes science dry, barren and repulsive, diminishes its educational value, and even renders it less efficient for purposes of practical research."

HON. JOHN A. DAWSON, of Pictou, N. S., cousin of the above named, is a member of the House of Commons of Canada.

S. J. DAWSON, C. E., commanded the Canadian "Red River Expedition" of 1858, and is the author of A Report on the Exploration of the Country between Lake Superior and the Red River Settlement, and between the latter place and the Assiniboine and Saskatchewan, printed by order of the [Canadian] Legislative Assembly, 4to., Toronto, 1859.¹

REV. ENEAS MCD. DAWSON, a Catholic clergyman, of Three Rivers, Canada, translator of the Count De Maistre's The Pope, is said to be a brother of the explorer, above named.

HON. WILLIAM MCD. DAWSON, a member of the Legislative Assembly of Canada, 1862-3, res. at Ottawa.

DAWSON BROTHERS, Montreal, booksellers, publishers of many educational and scientific works, and of the Canadian Medical Journal and Canadian Naturalist; SIDMONS & DAWSON, editors and publishers of the Educator and Herald and Prototype, and DAWSON & BROTHERS, publishers, at London, Province of Ontario; and MIDDLETON & DAWSON, booksellers and publishers of the Quebec Gazette, at Quebec, are well known Canadian names.²

"On no condition will they approach it, much less land on it, for it is the home of Manitoba — the Speaking God — whose voice they hear nightly as they camp by the lake or guide their fishing boats over its surface. The 'voice' is no myth. It assails not the Indian's ear alone, but the white man's as well. Whence comes it? The superstitious Ojibway hears and keeps away, piously pronouncing the name of God. The Englishman hears and examines. Not the inquisitive investigator, but the divinity of the place perishes by the invasion. Touched by the wand of science, the mystery of the place is resolved into a simple natural phenomenon — the beating of the waves on a peculiarly sonorous shingle. Along the northern shore of the island runs a low cliff of compact, fine grained limestone, which clicks like steel under the stroke of a hammer. When the wind blows from the north, the waves beating at the foot of the cliff dash the fragments of stone against each other, causing them to give forth a sound which resembles the ringing of distant church bells. So strong is this resemblance that the explorer was more than once awakened in the night with the impression that he was listening to chimes. When the breeze subsides and the waves play gently on the shore, low wailing sounds — spirit voices to the awe-stricken Ojibway — come up from the beach. And as the explorer lay on his bed of moss-covered rock at night and experienced their peculiarly impressive effect, he found it very easy, he says, to understand why the credulous natives should avoid the place."

NOTICE. The compiler solicits the aid of all interested for the correction of any errors or omissions which may be discovered in this volume, and to this end requests the communication of corrected and additional records.

He has reason to suppose that in many more instances than those in which the result has been communicated to him the collection and arrangement of family records has been undertaken as suggested and urged by his various circular letters. Not only more attention has thus been paid to the preservation of such records, as a result of his labors, but more will be paid in future; and he will be greatly obliged for the communication of any such additional records as may be sent him. He will undertake to arrange and carefully preserve the same for future use, and if they should not be printed by him they will be deposited in some proper public collection, and thus be made available to any future enquirer.

The additions and corrections following are, mainly, the result of a distribution of the proofs of the foregoing pages among the families interested.

ADDRESS,

CHARLES C. DAWSON,

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Concerning Mr. Charles Dawson, Mr. T. W. D. writes as follows: "My brother is a fair type of the old stock; a man of fine natural abilities, not having enjoyed the advantages of an early education, yet a man of fine sense and unflinching integrity; and he has on several occasions ignored and rejected proffered popularity and pecuniary gain in order that he might have the satisfaction of feeling that he stood for the right even when moral integrity seemed to be at a discount."

Page 336. Note, also, the following additional record. From Mr. Bertrand Dawson, Dawson, Sangamon Co., Ill., 1874. 1. WILLIAM DAWSON moved from Fairfax Co., Va., where he was b. and raised, to Bracken Co., Ky., in the year 1805, where he lived until his death, which occurred about 1855, at the age of 82 years. It is said that his gr. gr. father was from Ireland. He raised a family of ten children, five sons, of whom were, 2-1. John, the eldest child; 2-2. Reuben; and 2-3. Thomas, who d. unm. REUBEN DAWSON (2-2) was, in the early days of steamboating, a steamboat engineer on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers; afterwards, until his death in 1872, a government inspector of steamboat machinery at Louisville, Ky. He left one son, John (3-1) res. Louisville. JOHN DAWSON (2-1), was b. in Va., 1791, and removed with his father into Ky., in 1805. He was a volunteer in the war of 1812-14, was wounded and taken prisoner at the battle of the River Raisin, and taken by the Indians to Canada, where he was exchanged. He m. 1817, Miss Cary R. Jones, of Harrison Co., Ky., and in 1827 removed to Sangamon Co., where he d. in 1850. He was three times a representative of this county in the state Legislature, was a member of the constitutional convention of 1847, and for a number of years United States Pension Agent at Springfield. He was a farmer, laboring with his own hands, and was loved and respected by his neighbors, who honor his memory. He raised a family of ten children, seven of whom now live in Sangamon Co. Mr. Bertrand Dawson (3-1) above named, is of this number. In the Legislature of 1836-7, the delegation of Sangamon county was composed of two senators and seven representatives (two of the latter being JOHN DAWSON and ABRAHAM LINCOLN), noted then and since as the Long Nine. Their average height was exactly six feet, and they were not less remarkable for their talents and influence than for their stature.
